House Passes Fulbright's Postwar Plan By 360-29

Resolution Goes To Senate Friday, Expected to Face Pigeonhole There

By Mary Spargo
Post Staff Writer

The House of Representatives will send its historic declaration approving a policy of postwar international collaboration to maintain peace to the Senate on Friday, in the wake of the 360-to-29 passage of the Fulbright resolution yesterday.

The Senate is expected to refer the concurrent resolution, sped on its way by a 12-to-1 vote, to the Foreign Relations Committee, which already has before it a round dozen peace resolutions emanating from as many Senators.

Although the Foreign Relations Committee will meet today in executive session, the Fulbright resolution will not be considered, since House action was not completed until after the Senate adjourned yesterday. Earliest date for possible committee consideration will be September 29, but there is every evidence that this resolution will be shelved in favor of one sponsored by the committee itself.

Probable Senate pigeon-holing of the resolution in the Senate did not appear to trouble its supporters in the House. The bipartisan leadership which rolled up the huge count—70 more than the necessary two-thirds vote—asserted a great victory had been won.

Chairman Bloom (Democrat) of New York of the Foreign Affairs Committee said: "The House of Representatives has spoken for the people of the United States and the people of the world. We want a lasting peace."

Representative Eaton of New Jersey, white-thatched veteran, ranking minority member of the committee, declared: "The House of Representatives has spoken for the entire population of the country and the world in favor of substituting law for force in international relations."

Representative Fulbright, 39-year-old Arkansas Democrat, who wrote the resolution, said the action of the House of Representatives gave reason "to hope for a better world" and added that it was just the beginning of steps Congress will probably take.

Representative Luce, Republican Congresswoman from Connecticut, quipped: "Isolationism is dead but I don't know that it's buried yet. That accounts for the faint odor around sometimes."

Passage of the resolution was opposed by 26 Republicans and 3 Democrats. Of the Republican opponents 18 were from Illinois, Ohio and Michigan, long regarded as the heart of pre-Pearl Harbor isolationism.

Holman Asserts Patients Reject Too Much Food

Oregonian, McCarran Ask Details of Earlier Gallinger Probes

By Anne Hagner
Post Staff Writer.

Investigation of food served at Gallinger Hospital showed that "tubercular patients return to the kitchen almost as much as is served to them," Senator Holman (Republican) of Oregon, chairman of a subcommittee appointed to probe Gallinger conditions, reported yesterday after his second visit to the institution.

Accompanied by Senator Buck (Republican) of Delaware, another member of the trio chosen by Chairman McCarran of the Senate District Committee, Holman paid a surprise visit to the tuberculosis ward and declared:

"I am only a layman and can take no professional views of the situation, but my own observation is, if those patients don't eat, how do they gather strength to combat their disease? I am making no complaints or invidious comments. Instead I am asking Dr. William F. Ossenfort (assistant surgeon

Selingsgrove, Pa., Sept. 21 (AP).—A man fell from a plane and was killed today and the plane continued westward without slowing down.

The body landed in a field near the farm of Arthur Brouse, 5 miles west of here.

Father Draft Held Certain To Start Oct. 1

Senate Postpones For Week Action on Plans to Oppose It

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Draft of military age fathers starting October 1 appeared certain last night, as the Senate postponed for one week any action on legislation offered to stop it.

In the House as well as in the Senate, legislators turned their fire on alleged hoarding of labor by industry, determined to alleviate the fathers' draft as far as possible by a recanvass of available manpower.

Meanwhile, there was nothing in the picture to indicate Congress will block the call on fathers already ordered by Selective Service to begin next Friday. Senate leaders predicted the Wheeler bill will be recommitted when a vote is finally reached. Reliable House spokesmen said the similar May bill would never see the light of day.

Following up the Baruch manpower report, key legislators in both Houses moved to relieve ultimately the father quotas by investigations of industrial manpower designed to shake loose nonessential men.

The day was crowded with these developments:

1. Chairman S. Truman of the Senate Defense Investigating Committee told the Senate the Army and Navy can reduce manpower requirements "by several hundred thousand men" without impairing striking power and that "huge blocks of manpower are still being hoarded or wasted by the continuance of practices which management and labor have a clear duty to end."

2. The Senate Military Committee called Bernard M. Baruch, War Mobilization adviser, for questioning on his report that "more

WPB to Ease D. C. Bottleneck Through Decentralization

By Ben W. Gilbert
Post Staff Writer

The War Production Board yesterday announced plans to break one of its biggest bottlenecks—the bottleneck of Washington—by embarking on a decentralization program which will shift outside of Washington much of the Nation's production control machinery.

A WPB statement disclosed that the program has as its objective a 33 per cent reduction of necessary travel by businessmen in and out of Washington and a 25 to 40 per cent cut in routine paper work in some operations to "gear" WPB to "greater speed and responsiveness."

"The primary aim of the move is to produce greater speed and efficiency throughout the entire process of operations administration," WPB said, "but one of the first and most visible results is expected to be a slackening of the almost legendary tensions connected with doing business in Washington—the epic scramble for railroad tickets and hotel reservations, the traffic tie-up which was bound to occur when businessmen from every section of the country were swarming from the Union Station and converging on a relatively small office area in the Capital."

About 11,500 of the 17,300 WPB employes work in Washington, with the remaining 5800 assigned to 13 regional offices and 92 district

U. S. 5th Army Widens Hold Below Naples To 16 Miles

By Noland Norgaard
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Sept. 21.—Corsica and Sardinia, Mediterranean islands flanking the Italian west coast, were being mopped up tonight by Allied and Italian troops while the American Fifth Army widened its hold below Naples to 16 miles by capturing Eboli.

A great pall of smoke could be seen over Naples tonight from Fifth Army positions, field dispatches said, and reports of refugees indicated it was being systematically sacked and burned by the Germans, perhaps as a preliminary to further retreat.

American Liberators from the Middle East flew 500 miles up the Adriatic coast of Italy to bomb Venice for the first time, setting fires which sent smoke curling a mile high. They also cast bombs en route on Pescara, half way up the Adriatic.

The Middle East command announced at the same time the occupation of two of Italy's Dodecanese Islands—Coo (Cos) and Lero—and the Greek island of Samos. RAF fighters already are operating from Coo.

(Prime Minister Churchill told Commons that American forces had landed on Sardinia and were helping four Italian divisions drive out the Germans. At Salerno, he said, "we have recovered the initiative and are now able to advance northward on a broad front."

Napoleon's Birthplace Taken

French commandos and patriots captured Ajaccio, capital and main port of Corsica and birthplace of Napoleon. They clashed several times with German troops estimated at 12,000 men, last reported concentrated on the eastern side of the island. Two-Hour Address

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 21.—Winston Churchill pledged Parliament and the world today that a second front in France and the Low Countries—"which already exists potentially"—will be thrown open with a mass Allied attack "at what we and our American allies judge to be the right time."

In his two hours and seven minutes war report to Commons the Prime Minister ranged the whole global scene of the war, warmly defended the Allies' Italian campaign, which he called a "third front," and forecast a Stalin-Roosevelt-Churchill conference before the end of the year.

During the long speech, one of his most studied and most comprehensive if not one of his greatest rhetorically, Churchill sketched enormous Allied progress in air and sea warfare, disclosed American troops had landed in Sardinia, and asserted Mussolini never would have escaped if Italian carabinieri at Gran Sasso had obeyed the orders they had to shoot him if he attempted a getaway.

Bloodiest Days Ahead

Cries of "Hear, Hear" swelled into an approving roar through the chamber as Churchill declared: "The bloodiest portion—make no mistake about that—the bloodiest portion of this war for great Britain and the United States lies ahead of us. Neither this House nor His Majesty's Government will shrink from that ordeal."

Even now, the Prime Minister declared with feeling, Hitler's "main preoccupation" is with the mere menace of an inevitable and decisive thrust at Germany's heart from Britain.

During his speech, which he interrupted for a luncheon period, Churchill declared:

1. The RAF has increased threefold in the last 12 months the weight of bombs discharged on Germany, "havoc wrought is indescribable;" if the RAF's growth continues, the Allies should "be in a position when actual methodical destruction of every building of the enemy would become possible."

2. Although U-boats at present are attacking one convoy, no Allied merchant vessel was sunk in the

Significant Passages In Churchill War Review

London, Sept. 21.—Highlights of Prime Minister Churchill's war review before the House of Commons today included:

I have never regarded this African operation as a substitute for a direct attack upon the Germans in France or the Low Countries. At what we and our American allies judge to be the right time, this front will be thrown open and a mass invasion of the continent from the west will begin.

An American-British-Russian conference will take place "at an early date" and it is hoped that a Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin meeting will be held before the end of 1943.

No meeting during this war could carry with it so much significance for the future of the world, for without close, cordial and lasting association between Soviet Russia and their great allies, we might find ourselves at the end of the war only to have entered upon a period of deepening confusion.

The (Italian) Carabinieri Guards had orders to shoot Mussolini if any attempt was made to rescue him, but they failed in their duty.

It is a fact that for the four months which ended September 18, no merchant vessel was sunk by enemy action in the North Atlantic. In the first fortnight of September, no Allied ships were sunk by U-boat action in any part of the world. This is altogether unprecedented in the whole history of the U-boat struggle, either in this war or the last.

A new herd of U-boats has been coming out in the last week or so into the Atlantic. We for our part have not been idle, and we await this renewal of the conflict, which in fact has already begun—one convoy is being attacked at the present time.

In spite of the reduced number of U-boats which have been at work since the May massacre, rarely a day passes without us getting one of these ill-starred vessels.

For a whole year, we and our great Allies have had an almost unbroken success by land, by sea and in the air.

The Russian armies have advanced 1000 miles of front from the Volga almost to the Dnieper, a distance in many places of more than 500 miles, driving before them with prodigious slaughter the hordes of Germans.

The weight of bombs discharged by the Royal Air Force on Germany in the last 12 months is three times that of the preceding 12 months. The havoc wrought is indescribable.

Reds Smash Last Barrier To Dnieper

By James M. Long
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, (Wednesday), Sept. 22—The last Nazi barrier before the Dnieper crumbled yesterday as the Russian Army slashed across the Desna River line and surged on toward Smolensk and Kiev in a titantic drive to push the Germans out of Russia.

A Moscow-broadcast communique recorded by the Soviet Monitor here announced today that the Red Army, surging through powerful defenses, had scored big advances on every sector of the front, indicating that the Germans would become more and more hard-pressed to keep their feet on Soviet soil through the coming winter.

On all fronts, the Soviets liberated 1117 Russian communities, killed upward of 7000 Germans, destroyed 80 tanks, captured 34 more and took many prisoners and vast quantities of supplies, the communique said.

The Moscow radio said the Soviet Air Force, which reportedly had accounted for 63 more Nazi planes shot down, bombed concen-

Aussies Land By Plane, Rout Jap Garrison

Allied Headquarters, Southwest Pacific, (Wednesday), Sept. 22.—Australians landed by big American transport planes have seized Kalapit, 60 miles above newly captured Lae, New Guinea, and only 70 miles south of the enemy base at Madang, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

The transports swept down on a grassy field last Saturday night and Sunday, disgorging Australians, who repulsed counterattacks and drove the Japanese out of the immediate area. The daring move outflanks the enemy's base at Finschrafen on the Huon Peninsula.

Kalapit is inland on the Huon Peninsula northwest of Finschhafen.

"Our ground forces, transported by air, seized and occupied Kalapit, approximately 60 miles above Lae, repulsing several counterattacks and forcing the enemy to retire," today's communique said.

This swift ground action, emulating in part the airborne and seaborne pincers which enveloped Lae within 12 days, was coupled with reports of air action on a more extensive scale than it has been in many months, both in the South

MACARTHUR says its makes no difference whether he or some one else commands in Southwest Pacific, if war is won. Page 8.

By Kirke L. Simpson

Gen. George C. Marshall is the Roosevelt-Churchill choice for a world-wide field command to lead all Anglo-American forces in the smashing of the Axis.

Only approval of the unprecedented assignment by the British war cabinet stands between the United States chief of staff and the tremendous task of effectuating the global victory directives of the Quebec conference. Nobody expects anything less from the British war advisers than full indorsement of the nomination.

That word was given the writer yesterday by a highly placed official. It came as Washington seethed with rumors about Marshall's future. One version, as expressed on the House floor by Representative Sumner (Republican) of Illinois was that he was to be "kicked upstairs" (to a command in the European theater) because he stands for American rights."

Congress Concerned

Members of Congress were so concerned, it was disclosed, that a group representing the Senate Military Affairs Committee protested informally to Secretary of War Stimson that any shifting of Marshall would be deeply resented by the American people.

But reaction generally was enthusiastic to the report that Marshall would become global commander in chief. Senator Bridges (Republican) of New Hampshire, a member of the Military Committee, said, "I dislike to see him leave as chief of staff of the American armies, but if he is to be global commander of the Anglo-American armies of the world that is a greater opportunity for service, and I am gratified that he has been selected."

Not only would assumption of the global command give General Marshall authority over the Southwest Pacific, where Gen. Douglas MarArthur is commander; over Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's sphere in the Mediterranean, over Lord Louis Mountbatten's East Asia command, and over the even vaster operations that impend against western Europe. It would make him active director of all sea and air forces of the English-speaking nations, wherever found and however assigned.

Decision Made at Quebec

The date of any announcement of the new assignment is uncertain, but this much was made known to this writer yesterday: The nomination was perhaps the main decision of the global strategy conferences of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill in Quebec.

That decision was taken in acknowledgment that in successive conferences to cut the pattern of victory, East and West, Marshall was the outstanding contributer to strategic plans at Washington, Casablanca, Washington again, and then Quebec.

Rumors that Marshall is to be eased out of his present chief of staff assignment due to the pressure of interests opposed to him, presumably British, are in direct conflict with the facts. The American chief of staff has won the admiration and respect of all the British officials with whom he has come in contact, including Prime

To 'Play it Manfully'

MacArthur Says He's Willing To Assume Subordinate Role

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific (Wednesday), Sept. 22.—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander of Allied forces in the southwest Pacific, said today it was agreeable to him to play a subsidiary role in the war.

[Frank Robertson, International News Service correspondent in the Southwest Pacific, interpreted MacArthur's statement as indicating that he expects to be shelved along with his plans for a strategic offensive. Robertson said that observers at the Pacific headquarters believed the Australia-New Guinea theater, which MacArthur always upheld as the main base for a drive back into the Philippines and against Japan, is to be eclipsed by some other theater.]

Commenting on press reports that his command was to be made secondary and subsidiary since the appointment of Lord Louis Mountbatten to head the southwest Asia command, the general said.

"It makes little difference whether I or others wield the weapons just so the cause for which our beloved country fights is victorious.

"However, subordinate may be my role, I hope to play it manfully," the general stated.

"My strategic conception for the Pacific theater, which I outlined after the Papuan campaign and have since consistently advocated, contemplates massive strokes against only main strategic objectives, utilizing surprise, and air and ground striking power, supported and assisted by the fleet.

"This is the very opposite of what is termed island-hopping, which is gradually pushing back the enemy by direct frontal pressure with consequent heavy casualties which will certainly be involved.

"Key points must, of course, be taken, but a wise choice of such will obviate the need for storming the mass of islands now in enemy possession.

"Island hopping, with extravagant losses and slow progress—some pres sreports indicating victory might be postponed as long as 1949—is not my idea of how to end the war as soon and as cheaply as possible.

"New conditionds require for solution and new weapons require for maximum application new and imaginative methods. Wars are never won in the past.

"I have no personal military ambitions whatsoever, and am perfectly content in such role as may be prescribed for me."

3 Talks in Prospect

Russian Parleys' Imminence Revealed by Churchill Speech

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Cooperation by the United States, Great Britain and Soviet Russia is much closer than might appear to be the case on the surface.

Washington insiders, familiar with the efforts made to bring Russia to the council table, have been trying to intimate as much for several weeks. Now the speech of Prime Minister Churchill brings the improved situation more into the open. It indicates how fast events are moving toward a meeting of the leaders of the Big Three.

Mr. Churchill, in his address to Parliament, expressed the "confident hope" that he, President Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin will get together at some secret rendezvous "before the end of the year," according to Mr. Churchill.

Actually, three conferences are in prospect, according to Mr. Churchill, as follows:

1. An inter-Allied commission meeting in Algiers, in which American and British representatives will exchange information on military, economic and political matters with representatives of Russia. This commission, dealing with Mediterranean operations, was, as Prime Minister Churchill said yesterday, set up at the wish of Marshall Stalin—a wish expressed some time in August. The commission probably is already at work.

2. A meeting of the foreign secretaries of the United States, Brit-

Mass Allied Attack in France and Low Countries Promised by Churchill in Two-Hour Address to Parliament

North Atlantic in the four months ending September 18; in the first two weeks of September no Allied ships were sunk by enemy action anywhere in the world.

Promises Conference Soon

3. "At an early date" there will be a tripartite conference of the United States, Britain and Russia at which no question will be barred. Any differences may be referred to a Stalin-Roosevelt-Churchill conference which he "confidently hoped" would occur before the end of 1943.

4. The Allies are ready to throw large armies into Italy, there to deploy a mighty fighting front wherever the Germans try to make a stand. The vigor and weight of Allied efforts on this battle front will be increased throughout the fall and winter if necessary.

5. French troops, which have struck in Corsica their first blow to retrieve their motherland, are being steadily reorganized into an army of 300,000 to 400,000; the battleship Richelieu soor will join the French fleet.

6. United States naval forces already dominate the Pacific; surrender of the Italian fleet changed the Mediterranean naval picture decisively.

7. Lord Louis Mountbatten soon will arrive in New Delhi to set up a Far East Allied military headquarters comparable to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's establishment in North Africa; Japan's fundamental weakness lies in her steady loss of ships and planes faster than they can be replaced.

8. Seeking new weapons in the air-sea war, the Germans are using a bomb "which may be described as a sort of rocket-assisted glider which releases its bombs from a height and is directed toward its target by a parent aircraft." The weapon is used at close quarters against shipping close to the coast.

Switching with easy confidence from pure military to political affairs, Churchill looked to a further rapprochement of Russia, Britain and the United States by speaking of the prospect of a Stalin-Roosevelt-Churchill conference with these words:

"No meeeting during this war could carry with it so much significance for the future of the world as a meeting between the heads of the three governments, for without close, cordial and lasting association between Soviet Russia and their great allies we might find ourselves at the end of the war only to have entered upon a period of deepening confusion."

Mediterranean Campaign

On the military side, the Prime Minister delved at great length into the Mediterranean campaign. He declared it was not and never had been regarded "as a substitute for direct attack across the Channel on the Germans, on France and the Low Countries."

"On the contrary," he went on, "the opening of this new front in the Mediterranean was always intended to be an essential preliminary to the main attack upon Germany and her ring of subjugated and satellite states."

He disclosed that last May he and Roosevelt, meeting at Washington, decided on the elimination of Italy from the war as their principal immediate objective, but that no one "would have expected it to have been so rapidly achieved."

Originally the invasion of Italy was planned for September 15, he revealed, but it was moved up "as a result of decisions taken before the fall of Mussolini, and what has taken place in any case would have happened in Italy at the earliest possible moment."

"The Italian surrender was a windfall," Churchill said, "but it had nothing to do with the date of harvesting the orchard."

Daring Operation

His report of the Naples campaign showed the Allies had had no easy time of it in what he termed "the most daring amphibious operation we have yet launched or which I think ever has been launched on a similar scale in war."

The Allies could not have gone farther north without dispensing with shore-based air cover, and even in landing below Naples they were dependent "to an important extent" on carrier-borne aircraft.

He told of the careful planning of the Italian campaign and asserted that the claim of some of his critics that Hitler was given 40 days to move in on Italy "is as ill-founded in fact as it is wounding to those bereaved. The timing of our main attack in Italy was made without the slightest reference to the attitude of the Italian government."

"July 25 was a memorable day," Churchill said. "Even before we had half completed the conquest of Sicily or had set foot on the Italian mainland, Dictator Mussolini was overthrown and the Fascist regime which had lasted 21 years was cast down, vehemently repudiated by the whole mass of the Italian people.

"The Badoglio government came into existence with the intention of making peace in accordance with the will of the nation. They were, however, intruded upon at all points and overlaid by the Germans and had the greatest difficulty in maintaining themselves against this fateful pressure.

"We knew nothing about this new regime. Once fascism was completely overthrown, we naturally were anxious to find some authority with whom we could deal so as to bring about the unconditional surrender of Italy in the shortest time with the least possible cost in the blood of our soldiers.

"Presently feelers were put out by the new Italian government through various channels, asking for terms and explaining the deadly character of the difficulties in which they were involved. These difficulties arose from the menacing presence of German armies, police and spies all around them. . . . We were sympathetic to those difficulties."

(Here a member made an interjection which was not audible in the press gallery.)

"Wait and see," Churchill replied. "That is cheap criticism from people who must be hard put to it to find criticism, but I am going to answer very precisely and exhaustively even before we break off for the midday refreshment. We were sympathetic to those difficulties, but to all advances we made the reply: Surrender must be unconditional.

"On August 15 an Italian envoy, an officer with the rank of general, called on our Ambassador at Madrid, Sir Samuel Hoare, with credentials proving he came with full authority from Marshal Badoglio and that he came to say that when the Allies landed in Italy the Italian government was prepared to join them against Germany. When could they come?

"I was at this time not entirely by accident at Quebec for the conference and I was in closest contact with the President.

"With the approval of the war cabinet it was decided that Eisenhower should send British and American staff officers to meet the Italian envoy at Lisbon.

"We at once informed Premier Stalin of what was in progress. On August 19, a meeting in Lisbon took place.

"He did not oppose those terms, drastic though they were, but replied the purpose of his visit was to discuss how Italy could join the United Nations in the war against Germany.

"He also asked how the terms could be executed in face of German opposition.

"The British and American officers replied they were empowered only to discuss unconditional surrender. They were, however, authorized to add—this was the decision we took at Quebec—that if at any time, anywhere and in any circumstances any Italian forces or people were found by our troops to be fighting the Germans we would immediately give them all possible aid. On August 23, the Italian general departed.

"He then made his way back to Rome with great secrecy and danger.

"On August 31 the Italian envoy returned. He met General Eisenhower's representative at Syracuse. The Italian government were willing to accept the terms unconditionally, but they did not see how they could carry them out in the teeth of the heavy German forces gathered near Rome . . . and many other points throughout the country. . . .

"We did not doubt the sincerity of the envoy nor his government, but we were not able to reveal our military plans for the invasion of Italy . . . the real difficulty was that the Italians were powerless and until we landed in strength, we couldn't give them a date.

"We therefore timed the announcement for the moment we deemed would give us the best military chance and give them the best chance of extricating themselves from the German grip.

We would have done more if it had been possible to help this unhappy government who was beset on every side by insoluble problems and who have since acted towards us to their best ability both with courage and good faith.

Offered Aid at Rome

"We offered and prepared to land an American airborne division at Rome at the same time the armistice was declared in order to fight off two German armored divisions massed outside it to help Italians, but owing to the German investment of Rome's airfields which took place in the last day or two before the announcement of the armistice—of which investment the Italian government warned us—it was not possible to carry out this part of the plan."

As for Mussolini's escape, he asserted that Premier Badoglio's government had taken precautions to hold him, but that they were not ready for the method Hitler used successfully, "a heavy parachute descent at that particular point (Gran Sasso)."

"Unconditional surrender of course comprises everything," he said. "But not only was a special provision for the surrender of war criminals included in the longer terms but particular stipulation was made for the surrender of Signor Mussolini.

"It was not, however, possible to arrange for him to be delivered specially and separately before the armistice and our main landing took place, for this would certainly have disclosed the intentions of the Italian government to the enemy.

"The Italian position had been that although an internal revolution had taken place in Italy, they were still the allies of Germany carrying on a common cause with them. This was a position very difficult to maintain day after day with the pistols of gestapo pointing at the napes of many necks.

"We have every reason to believe that Mussolini was being kept under strong guard in a secure place.

"Mussolini himself was reported to have declared he believed he was being delivered to the Allies. This was certainly the intention and would have taken place, but for circumstances unhappily beyond our control.

"The measures which the Badoglio government took were carefully conceived and the best they could do to hold Mussolini, but they did not provide against so heavy a parachute descent as the Germans made at the particular point where he was confined.

"The stroke was one of great daring and was conducted with a heavy force and certainly shows there may be possibilities of this kind which are open in modern war.

"I do not think there was any slackness or breach of faith on the part of the Badoglio government and they had one card up their sleeve—carabinieri guards had orders to shoot Mussolini if there was any attempt at a rescue—but they failed in their duty, having regard to the larger and considerable German forces who descended upon them from the air who undoubtedly would have held them responsible for his health and safety.

Discusses Pacific War

Of the Pacific war, Churchill said:

"At the conference at Quebec much attention was given to the prosecution of the war against Japan, an offensive already on foot on a considerable scale in various parts of the Pacific. The main strength of the United States is deployed in that ocean. The main weight of the offensive operations there is in the Solomons and New Guinea, where General MacArthur—an officer of outstanding personality to whom we and our Australian brothers are under an immeasurable debt—is conducting a large-scale offensive.

"These operations give great promise for the future and will unfold stage by stage as the months pass by.

"While we were at Quebec we also received news of the evacuation of the Japanese from the Aleutian Islands, which are American territory. The occupation of Kiska, in which Canadian forces also took part, was a sequel to the annihilation of the Japanese garrison from the island of Attu, and it was certainly remarkable for the fact that the Japanese, who had occupied Kiska with a garrison of 10,000 men or more, were not prepared to await the assault but fled beforehand under cover of darkness.

"There is a new feature in the resistance of Japan. Hitherto we reckoned on their dying to the last man which they certainly did at Attu and in which respect we were prepared to serve them as well as we could, but at Kiska and also to some extent at Salamaua and Lae a somewhat different mood seemed to possess the enemy.

"Evacuation and retreat in order to save lives now seems to take a place in their method of fighting. We shall see in due course whether these new tendencies become pronounced; if so, while they will not alter the result they will save cost and trouble.

"The fundamental fact in the war against Japan is the steady diminution of Japanese shipping in relation to the task their war policy imposed upon them. The wasting process is most marked. They cannot possibly hold the vast areas they occupy except upon a certain minimum shipping supply. Their losses certainly exceed any means they have or can ever obtain of replacement.

"This also is true about their air force. . . ."

"I venture to dwell on these favorable aspects of the war against Japan only because I know it is realized throughout the United States that the slightest slackening of effort would destroy all (these aspects).

made in the reorganization of the Southeast Asia command which is being set up in India to intensify the war against Japan. The supreme commander, Admiral Mountbatten, will shortly arrive in India, accompanied by staff officers who will form a combined Allied headquarters modeled on that which has been set up under General Eisenhower."

Neutrals Told Not to Deal in Italian Assets

The United States and Britain warned neutrals yesterday against pulling German financial chestnuts out of the fire of invasion in Italy, and apparently set a pattern for handling German interests in territories to be reconquered later.

Disclosing that the Germans are trying to dump their Italian investments in neutral territory, the British-American statement warned that the two governments would not recognize such deals.

The democracies "reserve the right to treat as invalid any transfer to neutral ownership of any enemy-owned rights or interests in property in Italy," said the statement from the State Department.

The announcement went to all neutral governments in Europe and to Argentina.

German interests systematically have moved into the business of conquered nations, particularly France, where the Nazis reportedly took over parent companies to divert the country's industrial wealth to German holdings.

Following is the text of the State Department's announcement:

"It has come to the knowledge of the governments of the United States of America and the United Kingdom that certain concerns in neutral countries, in anticipation of the early occupation of Italy by Allied forces, contemplate acquiring or purporting to acquire enemy-owned shares in Italian companies, and other enemy assets in Italy. The two governments reserve the right to treat as invalid any transfer to neutral ownership of any enemy-owned rights or interests in property in Italy. Nationals or firms in neutral countries acquiring or purporting to acquire such rights or interests render themselves liable to all sanctions at the disposal of the governments of the United States of America and the United Kingdom."

New York Woman Gets First WAC Religious Post

Heading the first project of its kind under auspices of the Methodist Board of Missions, Miss Harriet Seibert, for 15 years director of religious education at Christ's Church, New York City, has been assigned to work with training units of the Women's Army Corps at Daytona Beach, Fla., the War Department announced yesterday.

Beginning October 1, Miss Seibert will represent the women's division of Christian service of the board of missions and church extension. She will cooperate with the Army and Florida churches in activities of the Second WAC Training Center at Daytona Beach.

Similar assignments have been given Methodist women in defense plants and defense areas throughout the Nation, but this is the first made of a military character.

Miss Seibert is a graduate of Barnard College and received her master's degree from Columbia University, thereafter studying at Union Theological Seminary in New York.

200 Leaders of Labor, Industry and Press to Sit in on Secrets of Army

John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Top-flight American industrial, newspaper and labor leaders will come to Washington next week for confidential conferences with ranking Army chiefs on the war situation, the War Department disclosed yesterday.

Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff; Maj. Gen. George V. Strong, military intelligence chief, and other officials will give the production and press leaders a secret report on Allied war strategy to impress on them the imperative need of stepping up our arms output to carry out offensives planned.

It was believed here that the unprecedented conference was decided upon by War Department chiefs as the best means of counteracting feeling that "the war is nearly over," which some officials declare has slowed up war production. They say that many manufacturers are turning their attention to postwar planning for reconversion of their plants for peacetime production and that there is a tendency to ease up on the part of employes.

Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, the Army's production chief, called the conference. It will be held Monday and Tuesday at the Pentagon Building, with probably a field demonstration of weapons and troops at a nearby Army post. Some 200 civilian leaders, including the heads of the major automobile, aviation, and other industrial companies, will attend.

"As our troops begin large-scale operations on the continent of Europe," said Patterson, "we are calling together the representatives of those on whom we depend for the instruments of war so that they may know precisely the military job that lies ahead.

Democracy's Way

"A conference of this type, in which our military General Staff reports to a cross-section of our industrial General Staff on the war situation, the strategy we are counting on for victory and the probable cost in men and material, is part of the way democracy fights a war. We are confident that the results will be of the utmost benefit to the effective prosecution of the war."

The labor delegation to the conference will be headed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. Members of President Roosevelt's Combined Labor Victory Committee have been asked to name labor representatives to attend.

Eyewitness Stories

The National Association of Manufacturers and the United States Chamber of Commerce were requested to send their leading officers. Invitations were sent to many War Department contractors. A delegation of representative newspaper publishers and editors, designated by the American Newspaper Publishers Association and the American Society of Newspaper Editors will take part.

Besides Undersecretary Patterson, General Marshall and General Strong, the conference will be addressed by Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff; Lieut. Gen. William S. Knudsen, Army director of production; C. E. Wilson, executive vice chairman of the War Production Board, and many War Department officials. Officers just returned from the war fronts will give eyewitness accounts of recent battles.

Nazis' Attempt To Close Halifax Harbor Was Foiled

Ottawa, Sept. 21 (AP).—German submarines attempted to close Halifax Harbor to shipping last June by sowing magnetic mines at the entrance but were foiled by the vigilance of Canadian and British minesweepers, Navy Minister Angus MacDonald disclosed today.

Although the Nazi undersea raiders laid some 60 mines in the channel they were discovered so promptly that not a single ship of importance was sunk and no lives were lost, a statement by MacDonald declared.

Axis Ship Torpedoed

London, Sept. 21 (AP).—An enemy supply ship was torpedoed and sunk and two escort vessels were left with stern awash or aflame in a close-range engagement with British light coastal forces off the Dutch coast yesterday, the Admiralty announced tonight.

and Southwest Pacific.

American heavy bombers wreaked havoc on supply lines just above the newly won ground of Kalapit, and the Japanese struck counterblows both on New Guinea and in the Solomons. Enemy action was particularly heavy in the Solomons.

Ninety-seven tons of bombs were dropped on enemy bases at Wewak and Madang, New Guinea, by American heavy bombers and the description of the attack included the now familiar "with a fighter escort."

One plane was destroyed on the ground, an undetermined number of others were set on fire, and two out of seven interceptors were shot down at Wewak, where 400 Japanese planes have been destroyed.

Bridges, Roads Damaged

Four bridges were destroyed, three damaged, the enemy's supply road along the coast was torn up in places and between 20 and 30 trucks were set on fire in the Madang sector. All the raiders returned, three of them damaged.

It marked the second straight day of air blows reported for the area most immediately menaced by the new air bases won at Lae and Salamaua. Yesterday's communique reported heavy airstrikes at Finschhafen and across Dampier Strait on New Britain.

The communique also reported a continuation of enemy air action in the Solomons. Twenty Japanese planes out of 30 dive-bombers and 20 fighters were downed in new raids on American-occupied Vella Lavella Island.

Increased Resistance

On Arundel Island, adjacent to New Georgia, where American forces in the Solomons are attempting to complete occupation, increased resistance was reported. The Japanese recently have moved in barges at night to reinforce their garrison on northern Arundel, a point within artillery shelling distance of the enemy's garrison at Vila, Kolombangara.

The Japanese air force, which has been moving in reinforcements at Bougainville, also raided the Munda airfield on New Georgia and Guadalcanal.

In addition to the planes bagged in the Wewak area, three others were shot down out of a force of nine Japanese bombers and 16 fighters which raided Allied positions at Nadzab, the Markham Valley air strip 20 miles behind Lae which was seized by paratroopers September 5. The Nadzab raiders caused "minor damage and casualties" and shot down one of the intercepting fighters.

(The Navy Department in Washington also reported the third Japanese raid in a week on Guadalcanal in the southern Solomons on September 19. Slight material and personnel casualties were sustained.)

WPB Announces Decentralization

Officials declined to estimate how many employes would be moved out of Washington by the program, but explained that gradual shifts would be made with additional jobs transferred from Washington to the regions as the latter effectively absorbed each additional work load.

Each of the 13 regional directors was designated a regional "chairman" and made a member of a WPB operations council to meet in Washington every two weeks to consider the decentralization program.

"It is believed that the move will create, in effect, 13 little WPB's, able to function without active assistance from Washington except in basic policy matters and in the instance of problems which are beyond their own resources," the WPB statement said.

Increased Authority

In practice, decentralization will be accomplished by the simple expedient of authorizing field offices to handle jobs which now must be done in Washington. Thus, field offices which now may handle priorities applications for materials valued at less than $500 shortly will be authorized to handle applications for perhaps $1000 worth, with the amount increased further within a few months.

A greater number of appeals from WPB orders will be heard in the field, it was said. Production expediting and redistribution of scarce materials will be handled in the field to an increasing extent, it was said.

By the end of the year, only over-all controls will be handled in Washington if present plans carry through, the statement said.

Coincidentally, the position of deputy vice chairman for field operations was abolished since the creation of the operations council made the job unnecessary. Wade T. Childress, who held the job, was recently sent out to the West Coast to act as the WPB representative in handling new production and manpower controls for the region.

Harcourt Armory, formerly assistant to Childress, will head a new Field Service Office, it was announced.

The new program was announced by H. G. Batcheller, operations vice chairman of WPB.

Marshall Slated As Global Chief

Minister Churchill.

The unprecedented scope of his contemplated ultimate command, giving General Marshall presumptive authority even over Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in the Mediterranean theater, Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the southwestern Pacific, and Admiral Lord Mountbatten in southeastern Asia, might under debate in Britain. It is understood to be wholly acceptable to Canada, however, and so far as known, to French forces in the Mediterranean.

One thing is absolutely certain. General Marshall stands so high in President Roosevelt's estimation, both personally and for his professional attainments, that the White House would veto any change in his present assignment that Marshall himself opposed, that was not a definite recognition of his abilities and—perhaps most of all—that Mr. Roosevelt did not regard as an important contribution to victory over the Axis.

The primary and dominating element of Allied war plans still is to smash Germany first, then turn the full weight of ever-increasing Anglo-American armed power on Japan. For that reason, General Marshall is expected to assume command of the "direct attack across the English Channel on Germany in France and the Low Countries" for which Prime Minister Churchill told Parliament yesterday the present Mediterranean campaign was "an essential preliminary."

"Our toughest job is to reach Berlin, and Marshall is the toughest soldier we (the Allies) have got to do it," a high-placed government official told this writer yesterday.

Father Draft Held Certain to Start Oct. 1 as Senate Postpones Action

workers are hired than needed" under the prevailing cost-plus-fixed-fee war contracts.

3. Senator Homer Ferguson (Republican) of Michigan, introduced in the Senate a joint resolution to abolish cost-plus-fixed-fee contracts, and force war agencies to renegotiate existing contracts on a fixed basis. Ferguson told the Senate that if manpower usage in industry is revised under fixed price contracts "it may avoid and is likely to avoid the drafting of fathers."

Early Action Promised

4. Chairman Andrew J. May of the House Military Committee announced his group will launch an investigation of alleged labor hoarding immediately after Senate action on the Wheeler bill, with Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt the first witness.

Amendment of the Wheeler no-father-draft bill to provide for induction of fathers under 30 years of age in advance of their elders earlier was proposed in the Senate by Senator Robert A. Taft (Republican) of Ohio.

Taft said that if fathers were thus divided into two age groups "in all probability it will never be necessary to draft those over 30. He defended his proposal on four counts: (1) that men under 30 make better soldier, (2) that those younger men "are not comfortable staying at home," (3) that most of them have not yet reached key positions, and (4) that they have not built up high fixed obligations that older fathers must meet.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark (Democrat) of Missouri told newsmen he may ask amendment of the Taft proposal to provide for three instead of two age "notches," with fathers under 25 called first, 25 to 30 next and fathers over 30 last. He said Taft's argument for calling men under 30 was more true of those under 25.

The Senate meanwhile recessed until Friday under an agreement between majority and minority leaders to defer actual consideration of the fathers' draft bill until next Tuesday.

MILTON BERLE
gives you his "Pick of the Post" on the newsstands today

HIS nimble sense of humor and his deep down love of people has won for Milton Berle an envied spotlight place in the theatre, on the screen and on the radio.

Thousands who have enjoyed him at his comic best wonder what this popular comedian chooses for relaxation in his "off stage" hours. For instance, what does Milton Berle read? Does he like mystery stories? What does he read to keep abreast of these changing times? Here is the answer from Milton Berle himself.

"This new Post really has what it takes to entertain folks. Naturally I'm a 'push-over' for Post cartoons and humor. And the short stories are always curtain raisers.

"Reading time is at a premium for most people in show business. The way the Post gets to the point of the situation quickly in its 'hot' articles on war affairs is what I like. Since I must be up-to-the-minute on every important topic, I scan my Post carefully every week."

and Southwest Pacific.

American heavy bombers wreaked havoc on supply lines just above the newly won ground of Kalapit, and the Japanese struck counterblows both on New Guinea and in the Solomons. Enemy action was particularly heavy in the Solomons.

Ninety-seven tons of bombs were dropped on enemy bases at Wewak and Madang, New Guinea, by American heavy bombers and the description of the attack included the now familiar "with a fighter escort."

One plane was destroyed on the ground, an undetermined number of others were set on fire, and two out of seven interceptors were shot down at Wewak, where 400 Japanese planes have been destroyed.

Bridges, Roads Damaged

Four bridges were destroyed, three damaged, the enemy's supply road along the coast was torn up in places and between 20 and 30 trucks were set on fire in the Madang sector. All the raiders returned, three of them damaged.

It marked the second straight day of air blows reported for the area most immediately menaced by the new air bases won at Lae and Salamaua. Yesterday's communique reported heavy airstrikes at Finschhafen and across Dampier Strait on New Britain.

The communique also reported a continuation of enemy air action in the Solomons. Twenty Japanese planes out of 30 dive-bombers and 20 fighters were downed in new raids on American-occupied Vella Lavella Island.

Increased Resistance

On Arundel Island, adjacent to New Georgia, where American forces in the Solomons are attempting to complete occupation, increased resistance was reported. The Japanese recently have moved in barges at night to reinforce their garrison on northern Arundel, a point within artillery shelling distance of the enemy's garrison at Vila, Kolombangara.

The Japanese air force, which has been moving in reinforcements at Bougainville, also raided the Munda airfield on New Georgia and Guadalcanal.

In addition to the planes bagged in the Wewak area, three others were shot down out of a force of nine Japanese bombers and 16 fighters which raided Allied positions at Nadzab, the Markham Valley air strip 20 miles behind Lae which was seized by paratroopers September 5. The Nadzab raiders caused "minor damage and casualties" and shot down one of the intercepting fighters.

(The Navy Department in Washington also reported the third Japanese raid in a week on Guadalcanal in the southern Solomons on September 19. Slight material and personnel casualties were sustained.)

offices.

Officials declined to estimate how many employes would be moved out of Washington by the program, but explained that gradual shifts would be made with additional jobs transferred from Washington to the regions as the latter effectively absorbed each additional work load.

Each of the 13 regional directors was designated a regional "chairman" and made a member of a WPB operations council to meet in Washington every two weeks to consider the decentralization program.

"It is believed that the move will create, in effect, 13 little WPB's, able to function without active assistance from Washington except in basic policy matters and in the instance of problems which are beyond their own resources," the WPB statement said.

Increased Authority

In practice, decentralization will be accomplished by the simple expedient of authorizing field offices to handle jobs which now must be done in Washington. Thus, field offices which now may handle priorities applications for materials valued at less than $500 shortly will be authorized to handle applications for perhaps $1000 worth, with the amount increased further within a few months.

A greater number of appeals from WPB orders will be heard in the field, it was said. Production expediting and redistribution of scarce materials will be handled in the field to an increasing extent, it was said.

By the end of the year, only over-all controls will be handled in Washington if present plans carry through, the statement said.

Coincidentally, the position of deputy vice chairman for field operations was abolished since the creation of the operations council made the job unnecessary. Wade T. Childress, who held the job, was recently sent out to the West Coast to act as the WPB representative in handling new production and manpower controls for the region.

Harcourt Armory, formerly assistant to Childress, will head a new Field Service Office, it was announced.

The new program was announced by H. G. Batcheller, operations vice chairman of WPB.

Minister Churchill.

The unprecedented scope of his contemplated ultimate command, giving General Marshall presumptive authority even over Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in the Mediterranean theater, Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the southwestern Pacific, and Admiral Lord Mountbatten in southeastern Asia, might ir debate in Britain. It is understood to be wholly acceptable to Canada, however, and so far as known, to French forces in the Mediterranean.

One thing is absolutely certain. General Marshall stands so high in President Roosevelt's estimation, both personally and for his professional attainments, that the White House would veto any change in his present assignment that Marshall himself opposed, that was not a definite recognition of his abilities and—perhaps most of all—that Mr. Roosevelt did not regard as an important contribution to victory over the Axis.

The primary and dominating element of Allied war plans still is to smash Germany first, then turn the full weight of ever-increasing Anglo-American armed power on Japan. For that reason, General Marshall is expected to assume command of the "direct attack across the English Channel on Germany in France and the Low Countries" for which Prime Minister Churchill told Parliament yesterday the present Mediterranean campaign was "an essential preliminary."

"Our toughest job is to reach Berlin, and Marshall is the toughest soldier we (the Allies) have got to do it," a high-placed government official told this writer yesterday.

Father Draft Held Certain to Start Oct. 1 as Senate Postpones Action

workers are hired than needed" under the prevailing cost-plus-fixed-fee war contracts.

3. Senator Homer Ferguson (Republican) of Michigan, introduced in the Senate a joint resolution to abolish cost-plus-fixed-fee contracts, and force war agencies to renegotiate existing contracts on a fixed basis. Ferguson told the Senate that if manpower usage in industry is revised under fixed price contracts "it may avoid and is likely to avoid the drafting of fathers."

Early Action Promised

4. Chairman Andrew J. May of the House Military Committee announced his group will launch an investigation of alleged labor hoarding immediately after Senate action on the Wheeler bill, with Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt the first witness.

Amendment of the Wheeler no-father-draft bill to provide for induction of fathers under 30 years of age in advance of their elders earlier was proposed in the Senate by Senator Robert A. Taft (Republican) of Ohio.

Taft said that if fathers were thus divided into two age groups "in all probability it will never be necessary to draft those over 30. He defended his proposal on four counts: (1) that men under 30 make better soldier, (2) that those younger men "are not comfortable staying at home," (3) that most of them have not yet reached key positions, and (4) that they have not built up high fixed obligations that older fathers must meet.

Senator Bennett Champ Clark (Democrat) of Missouri told newsmen he may ask amendment of the Taft proposal to provide for three instead of two age "notches," with fathers under 25 called first, 25 to 30 next and fathers over 30 last. He said Taft's argument for calling men under 30 was more true of those under 25.

The Senate meanwhile recessed until Friday under an agreement between majority and minority leaders to defer actual consideration of the fathers' draft bill until next Tuesday.

Allies Clearing Sardinia And Corsica

of the Italian port of Genoa.

Favorable progress in the conquest of Corsica, a department of metropolitan France, was reported in a French communique from Gen. Henri Giraud's headquarters.

The communique announced that "the whole western side of Corsica is now liberated" from the Germans and that advance troops are in possession of St. Florent. French troops, disclosed earlier to have landed on the island, have taken eastern Corte and the city of Sartene, the communique said.

Nazis Easily Repulsed

St. Florent is on the north coast of the island at the western base of Cape Corso. It is about 8 miles across the narrow neck of land from Bastia, which is occupied by the Germans. Corte is virtually in the center of the island and Sartene is in the south.

German troops attempting to recapture the heights of Sorba "were easily repulsed," the communique said. It added that light dettachments of French troops and Corsican patriots were probing enemy lines of communication and pushing forward toward Bonifacio, on the extreme southern tip of the island, and Port Vecchio, about 16 miles to the north.

Most of the 40,000 Italians garrisoning Corsica have teamed up with the French troops and guerillas, although "one Italian Fascist regiment" was said in a naval announcement to have joined the German defense. The Germans were reported strung from Bastia in the north to Bonifacio in the south. The French commandos participating in the attack landed from swift French warships.

In the Salerno area, 12 to 20 airline miles south of Naples, the German retreat northward to form a single line against United States and British troops of the Fifth and Eighth Armies appeared to be gaining impetus.

The capture of Eboli gave the Allies an important highway center and the key to German escape exits east of the Salerno battlefield.

Pushing Inland

While a portion of the Fifth Army was driving on east through Eboli, other units of Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's command worked through Montecorvino Rovella, a little north of Eboli and 9 miles inland.

Yet another prong of his army worked its way slowly through the rugged mountain area north of Salerno near smoking Mount Vesuvius.

German opposition was light.

Naples, announced objective of General Clark, was within 12-mile artillery range of his troops which captured the Sorrento Peninsula, flanking the Bay of Naples on the south.

American fighter-bombers battered large columns of German motor transport fleeing west from Potenza, 40 miles east of Eboli. Presumably, these columns, or such as survived the terrific rain of bombs and aerial machine-gun bullets, were hoping to escape on an inland road which heads northward at a point west of Potenza. Once again the German air force was wholly absent from southern Italian skies.

A military spokesman said the Germans were pulling out of the lower end of the Salerno front to avoid entrapment by the advancing British Eeighth Army. The bulk of the enemy already is north of the Sele River. In retreat closely pursued by the Eighth Army, the enemy was using infantry and small groups of tanks in a delaying action and suffering heavy losses from constant air attacks and ground blows from the Eeighth. Nowhere did the Germans make a determined stand.

Slow Advance Seen

Reports from the Italian front indicated the enemy had been unable to disengage himself sufficiently to destroy roads and bridges and plant minefields, or to salvage any considerable portion of vehicles disabled by aerial strafing.

Enemy positions north and northeast of Salerno are strong defensively and an allied spokesman said the advance necessarily would be slow.

Beyond the statement that the Eighth Army was driving rapidly north, nothing new was reported of Gen. Sir. Bernard L. Montgomery's divisions. They appeared, however, to be maintaining steady pressure on the Germans inland from the Salerno sector, bringing up the main body of British troops and adequate supplies to launch an attack once the Germans stand and try to reestablish their lines.

Near the Adriatic, where troops from the Taranto area had pressed 28 miles inland to capture Gioia, the news also was sparse. But it was presumed that the British Fifth Corps there was edging forward. For more than a week nothing has been reported on the column which captured the port of Bari, 200 miles up the Adriatic coast.

Attacking Road Junctions

The main weight of the increasing Allied aerial onslaught was directed against road junctions and railways between Naples and Rome. Such targets were pounded at Torre Annunziata, Sarno, Pompeii, Castelnuovo, Formia, Avellino and Calabritto. West of Potenza, 50 gasoline and oil trucks were attacked. Thirty were set afire, others were damaged. In various attacks, a total of 67 Nazi motor transports were destroyed and many more were damaged. No Allied nor enemy plane was lost throughout yesterday.

The air blows appeared to be inflicting extremely heavy losses on German personnel and equipment. A prisoner said over half his company were killed or wounded in air attacks in its retreat from Calabria to Salerno. The attacks also were believed putting a severe dent in German morale, already shaken by failure to throw the Allies into the sea at Salerno.

The landing in the Dodecanese on three islands off Greece began the development of the extreme right wing of the immense Allied invasion line now being drawn up from the Aegean Sea in the southeast to the Ligurian Sea facing Genoa and the French Riviera on the west.

Italians Cooperative

The occupation of the airfield at Coo meant that a relatively small but highly dangerous part of the four-to-one Allied air superiority had been carried to a point where it could be instantly effective against the southeastern corner of Hitler's stolen continent.

The Cairo communique disclosed that the Italian personnel on Coo Island was cooperating with the British fighter pilots who landed there. There was no indication exactly when the occupation took place, but the official announcement said several enemy air attacks had been beaten off "during the past few days" and that two Nazi planes had been destroyed.

During the night of September 18-19, the communique said, RAF twin-engined Wellingtons bombed targets in the Aegean Sea and on the Greek mainland, and on Sunday night RAF Beaufighters attacked Nazi aircraft on the Maleme Airdrome on Crete. Yesterday Beaufighters raked shipping at Scarpanto Island, just east of Crete.

Johnson Opposes Use of U. S. Soldiers As Postwar Police

Omaha, Nebr., Sept. 21 (INS).—Louis Johnson, chairman of the American Legion's newly created postwar planning commission, spoke out tonight against any proposal to use American soldiers as part of an international police force after the war.

Johnson, one-time Assistant Secretary of War and one of the key policy makers of the Legion, advocated (1) a general good neighbor policy throughout the world, (2) an arrangement for more or less continuous discussion and examination between all nations of any situations which may threaten war and (3) an agreement that all the nations will use forces they have to assist in seeing that the law is kept and the peace maintained.

It was almost certain that Johnson's views would be written into resolutions which will be adopted by the convention tomorrow and Thursday.

Johnson expressed the view that neither Great Britain nor Russia would have any part of an international police force.

trations of railway trains at Vitebsk, Gomel and Dzhankoi on the Central Front Monday night, causing many fires on trains carrying equipment and war materials. Several trains jammed with munitions were declared blown up by direct hits.

Soviet spearheads were reported witnin 18 miles of Smolensk and only 25 miles from Kiev. They were shelling Melitopol on the Crimean railway from three miles away, and they were so close to the middle Dnieper that Cossack patrols were breaking through at night to water their horses in the river.

Marshal Josef Stalin proclaimed the capture of Chernigov, only 30 miles from the Dnieper, after a fierce three-day battle, and in an order of the day declared the German Desna defenses had been cracked along the whole length of the river."

Previously the Russians took Slavgrod, only 15 miles from the Dnieper.

These were the latest Russian gains, averaging an advance of 10 miles a day, along the 600-mile front as the Nazis' east wall toppled:

Northern flank: Captured Yugovka, 6 miles northeast of Roslavl, in a 6-mile advance through heavily fortified woodland, bringing Soviet guns within close range of the Roslavl-Smolensk Railway.

Upper Dnieper: Smashed forward 12 miles from Novgorod-Seversky in a race toward the frontier of White Russia and Gomel, key rail junction midway between Smolensk and Kiev.

Desna line—A fierce three-day battle was climaxed by the capture of strongly fortified Chernigov, 30 miles from the Dnieper and 80 miles northeast of Kiev.

Eisenhower Completely Satisfied With Allied Situation in Italy After Personal Visit

By Clark Lee

Representing the Combined American Press. Distributed by the Associated Press.

At an Advanced Allied Command Post, Sept. 19 (Delayed).—After a visit to American forces on the Salerno Front where he conferred with field commanders, watched the artillery pouring shells into the German positions and came under enemy shell fire himself, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower expressed complete satisfaction today with the military situation in Italy.

Eisenhower traveled by land, sea and air in a variety of conveyances to inspect the forces which are now getting ready for the major battle to smash Adolf Hitler's army in Italy.

In a statement, the general said he was "completely satisfied with the progress of our invasion of southern Italy. The success of the operation to date exemplifies once more the results to be obtained through the use of air, ground and sea forces in the closest cooperation.

Praises Allied Chiefs

"Through the planning stages of the campaign and its execution to date, Cunningham (Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, Allied Naval Commander in the Mediterranean), Tedder (Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, Allied Air Commander in the Mediterranean), and Alexander (Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied Deputy Commander in Chief in the Mediterranean) have skillfully directed their respective forces and coordinated them with the other services.

"The conduct and morale of the troops of all three services is of the highest order and their efficiency is evidenced by the results they have achieved.

"The forces are rapidly getting into position to undertake seriously a major battle with the German forces in Italy."

Losses Reasonably Heavy

Our losses have been reasonably heavy, but no greater than was anticipated in view of the fact that we met resistance right on the beaches, he said.

While General Eisenhower was talking to Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the American Fifth Army, at the latter's headquarters, a German mortar shell came screaming through the air. The generals did not know whether to duck or just stand there, and before they could make up their minds the shell exploded a short distance away.

Others nearby, more accustomed to the sound of shells, had hit the dirt at the first whistle.

Gallinger Patients Reject Too Much Food, Says Holman

general of the Public Health Service) to visit Gallinger as soon as possible for a professional survey of the care of patients."

Call for Full Details

Meanwhile, at the District Building, the Commissioners received letters from both Chairman McCarran and Holman requesting full details of earlier Gallinger investigations, McCarran's specifying that he wanted the information "within 36 hours."

Commissioner Guy Mason, asked by reporters if Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, superintendent of Gallinger, would be suspended following release Monday of a General Accounting Office report alleging misappropriations of property, refused to comment.

In the office of United States Attorney Edward Curran it was learned that charges by the General Accounting Office, sent to the Commissioners in mid-July, have been turned over to his chief assistant, John Fihelly, who said that Lieut. Joseph Shimon had been assigned to the case.

"There are so many angles that must be investigated thoroughly that many weeks may elapse before the report is completed," Fihelly said. "We must be sure of our ground."

With the two Senators on their tour yesterday was R. A. Seelig, secretary to Senator Bone (Democrat) of Washington, whose report on inadequate food and insanitary conditions at the hospital first prompted senatorial interest.

Holman also declared that his letter to John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners, asked the number and frequency of his visits to Gallinger, his observations as a result of personal inspections, recommendations made heretofore, his opinion of how effective such recommendations have been, present recommendations and a statement of his present views regarding improvement of conditions at the hospital.

In addition, the Oregon Senator also sent a letter to Dr. Bocock asking for an outline of personal inspections and supervision of the work of his staff.

Holman's investigation yesterday of patients' food, in which he traced edibles from the storeroom to the wards, finally led him to the hogpen operated by the hospital, after it was explained that all wastes were disposed of by being fed to the herd of 150-odd hogs on the grounds.

"Good groceries are awfully expensive hog feed," he observed.

Col. Ben Stern Appointed Chief of CAA Information

Ben Stern, former Indianapolis Times political editor and one-time consultant to Elmer Davis, of OWI, yesterday was appointed Director of Information and Statistics for the Civil Aeronautics Administration, Charles I. Stanton, CAA administrator, announced last night.

Stern whose experiences include active service with the Marine Corps, in which he holds the rank of lieutenant colonel and of which he was Co-ordinator of Information, has been a special field representative of OWI.

During active duty with the Marine Corps he visited South Africa, Egypt, the Middle East, Balkans, India and the Pacific areas, on special missions.

Until called to duty with the Marines in 1933 he was secretary to U. S. Senator Van Nuys and clerk of the Senate Committee on the Judiciary. His newspaper work includes service with the Memphis Press Scimitar and International News Service. He is married, the couple having one child.

Doorstep Baby Case Is Closed

Indianapolis, Sept. 21 (AP).—Chief of Detectives Jesse McMurty announced today that juvenile court authorities have "made a decision" on the disposition of a six-months old baby abandoned last week on an Indianapolis doorstep and said "the case is closed."

McMurtry said the child would be adopted by parties named by the court but he declined to disclose any names. The court decision closed a search for the parents of the baby, which included investigation of a fictitious "Capt. Franklin of Fort Hayes, Ohio" who claimed to be the father of the child in a telephone call made to McMurtry several days ago. Nothing was said about the mother who was alleged to be a War Department worker of Arlington, Va.

"REGULAR" AGAIN AFTER 2 WEEKS!

"Cereal Brought Relief from Long Siege of Purgatives!"

Here's a sincere, unsolicited letter every disappointed "doser" will want to read:

"I was a sufferer from common constipation. Took pills or medicines of some kind, but got no lasting relief. Finally, I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Have been eating it about 2 weeks now, and have stopped taking pills and things. My bowels move regularly every day. I am a KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN eater from now on!" Mr. Burl Brown, Warren, Ark.

How do scientists explain KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN'S gentle-acting, amazing relief, so familiar to thousands? Simply thus: Lack of certain cellulosic elements in the diet is a common cause of constipation. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is one of Nature's richest sources of these elements—which help the intestinal flora lighten and fluff up the contents of the colon, for easy, natural elimination. ALL-BRAN does not "sweep you out." Not a purgative. It is a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!

If this is your trouble eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly. Drink plenty of water. See if it doesn't give you the relief you've dreamed of. Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

Thoughts on the care and use of meat

WITH so little time available, I've had to cut my food shopping trips down to about three times a week. And I've found this presents some real problems in how to keep meats at home, and what kinds to buy so they will keep. Under rationing, of course, we have to be extra careful.

I've discovered one simple little formula. When I shop, I buy a quick-cooking meat for use that very evening and a longer cooking, good-keeping variety for the next night or two.

Sometimes, when they're available, I get chops or ground meat to use right away. At the same time, I get lamb or beef ribs for long cooking, and wieners or sausage to keep.

Any meat that I want to keep for a day or two without cooking, like beef, pork, veal or lamb, I handle this way: After unwrapping it, I lay meat on pieces of waxed paper and fold it over so ends are open and pop it right into the refrigerator. I've learned that if it's wrapped too tightly, it may spoil.

Some, I know, store meat in the freezing unit of their refrigerator, or else have a special container for meat. I've tried putting meat right in the freezing unit, because it keeps well for a long time there—but I had a terrible time getting it out again unless I defrosted the refrigerator and of course it must be thawed before using.

I've been preparing meat for our dinners in a variety of ways, recently. Here are two of the ideas I have found especially good:

Kidney Saute—Allow 2 lamb kidneys per person. Wash and slice thinly; flour heavily; saute in bacon drippings or other shortening until brown. Add water to cover; season to taste with salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Cook until tender over low heat, about 20 minutes. Serve over hot toast, biscuits, rice or noodles.

Oven Barbecued Ribs—Use breast of lamb or pork spare ribs allowing about a half lb. per person. Place whole or half rack of ribs in pan, meat-side up, and cook 1 hour to 1 hour and a half in a 400° F. oven or until brown and done. Turn when half-way through cooking and season with salt and pepper.

STEP UP YOUR MEALS WITH SAUCES is the title of my article in this week's Family Circle Magazine. I think you'll find some interesting ideas in it. Your free copy is ready at your Safeway.

Will Provides Schooling Fund

An attorney, who held a degree of doctor of philosophy, left a will which provided for a $240,000 estate to be devoted solely to common school education for boys, it was learned yesterday.

James Hamilton, who died here on August 30, made up the will in 1919 when elementary school education was nowhere near as universal as it is now. Since that time, the will was revised only once, in 1922, but the provision for the education fund was left intact. The will entered probate division of District Court yesterday.

This will leaves the income of the estate mainly to his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Livingston Hamilton, of 2400 16th st. nw. On her death or in the event that she should remarry, it is to go into a charitable trust called the "James Hamilton Trust," with a purpose of assisting needy and deserving boys of the Protestant Episcopal faith who are American citizens, under 21, and who "evince an aptitude for education, in obtaining a common school education as distinguished from a collegiate or professional education in an institution of learning, such as a college or university."

The trust fund is to be administered by St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church of Holyoke, Mass.

Hamilton, however, held degrees from the United States Military Academy, Boston University and Cornell University.

IT'S A YOUNG AMERICAN TRADITION...

Across America, over twenty million hands clasp bright new pencil boxes . . . over twenty million freshly-scrubbed faces turn schoolward . . . over twenty million pairs of feet trudge their purposeful way. Another term begins!

Once again, we can give thanks that the right to free knowledge is this country's tradition; for the fearless thought it fosters is one of the Four Sacred Freedoms for which we now fight. It will be our children's strength, later to realize the full heritage of our Victory.

Youth will use that strength with wisdom. We know, because at Kann's we've been close to young people for half a century. We've seen four generations of fine Washingtonians off on their way to school, have shared their confidences, helped their mothers with their problems.

So Kann's can read the signs today. And we say with authority that America's future was never in better hands.

Richmond Neighbors Testify Murder Suspect Neglected Mother at Birth of Fifth Child

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Sept. 21.—Neighbors—Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Harmon—told the court today in the trial of Walter Paul Harrison, charged with the murder of his wife and four children, that the accused had neglected Mrs. Harrison at the time of the birth of her fifth child.

Harrison is being tried on the first of five counts of murder in connection with the quarry drowning of his 30-year-old wife and four small boys.

Testimony of the Harmons early this afternoon brought to a conclusion the prosecution's side of the case.

Miss Blennie Terrell, who told the court yesterday that she had been Harrison's sweetheart and that she did not know he was a married man when she became engaged to him, was not present during this morning's proceedings. She testified yesterday that she had had intimate relations with Harrison because, "I was desperately in love with him and he persuaded me."

Miss Terrell, who said she had been going with Harrison for about eight months under the impression that he was divorced, told the court that after they became intimate he swore her to secrecy and threatened to take her life and those of his wife and four children if she even mentioned it to anyone.

The young woman, 19 years old, said she and Harrison had planned to be married but testified that she had written a letter to the defendant breaking off their affair and alleged that they became intimate only three or four days before the drowning of the mans' wife and four of his children.

Harmon, who lives about 200 yards from Harrison's former home on the German School rd., said he and his wife were on friendly terms with the Harrisons, but that in his opinion "Harrison didn't do right by his wife while she was pregnant." He said the defendant was not at home often, at that time, and that when Mrs. Harrison returned from the hospital with the infant, she was not provided with household assistance.

Mrs. Harmon said she assisted Mrs. Harrison during her convalescence by giving the baby its morning baths. She added that Harrison went fishing on the day after he brought his wife home from the hospital, leaving her with no one to assist her but 10-year-old Walter, one of the boys who was drowned with his mother.

Throughout the trial today, the 31-year-old former streetcar motorman defendant appeared calm. He frequently passed notes to defense counsel, A. Clair Sager, suggesting questions to propound to witnesses.

The court opened this morning with a visit, in a drizling rain, to the water-filled pit on Petersburg Pike where all but one of the Harrison children, together with Mrs. Harrison, met their death on June 25. The Harrison daughter was the only child not in the automobile when it rolled into the water. Harrison, under the car when the accident occurred, has repeatedly claimed he was repairing the machine at the time.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Takoma Park grocery clerks have not seen much of Mrs. Theodore Ruhoff, 401 Carroll ave., this summer, and she doesn't expect to visit them often this winter.

On her cellar shelves are more than 200 jars of food canned from a backyard victory garden from produce left after she and Mr. Ruhoff had satisfied summer table needs.

She has bought only meat and potatoes to amplify the yield of her garden, considered half-sized by the victory garden office, since it covers an area only 25 by 29 feet.

Fourteen Varieties Grown

"And that holds true for the two weeks my son was home from camp," Mrs. Ruhoff said. Theodore B. Ruhoff is a private in the Army Engineers at Camp Edwards, Mass., and has a good appetite, according to his mother.

She served onions, beets, carrots, pea-beans, cabbage, cauliflower, eggplant, peppers, soybeans, limas, string beans, cucumbers, spinach. This winter she will serve them all again—from jars.

Except for a purchase of one dozen pints, she salvaged the jars from a supply of mayonnaise and pickle containers collected over a 20-year residence at the Takoma Park address.

In addition to vegetables, Mrs. Ruhoff has canned cherry and apples from trees in the same backyard—cherry conserve, pickled crabapples, baked apples for pies, apple sauce, mince meat, and jelly from the apple skins.

How she managed to raise so much from such a small area has mystified the District victory garden committee.

Her answer is plenty of water, double planting, and Mr. Ruhoff.

Mr. Ruhoff did the heavy work. This included watering. Since hosing was forbidden, Mr. Ruhoff dipped 40 buckets of water daily from pools into which Mrs. Ruhoff's old-fashioned water-cooled gas refrigerator drained. Even the spinach, planted during Washington's worst drought season, thrived.

The double planting, Mrs. Ruhoff's own invention, involved seeding of slow maturing onions in the same rows with faster maturing cabbage and tomato plants and among everbearing strawberries.

As for fresh food next winter, she hopes to raise lettuce and spinach under a cold frame, a wooden frame with a glass sash to catch and reflect the sun's heat.

Gardening and canning are a paying proposition, concludes Mrs. Ruhoff, whose recent ventures are her first in years. And not only in food, Mrs. Ruhoff's one entry won first place in the District canning contest—a $25 war bond.

Civil Courts Ruled Above the Military

Western Jurist Decides Against Army in Test Case

By The Associated Press

Seattle, Sept. 21.—Federal Judge John C. Bowen holds the power of civil courts is above that of the War Department, a decision which Assistant United States Attorney General Norman M. Littell termed without parallel in United States courts.

Under an order which the judge announced in an oral decision, the army will be instructed to relinquish a building taken over at the Seattle port of embarkation as an Army warehouse.

Even before the signing of the order today, however, Littell advised the court the Army would remain in possession of the warehouse "to maintain a supply line to our forces in the Far East," and that immediate appeal to the Circuit Court would be taken.

A petition filed by the Merchants Transfer and Storage Co. and the Skinner & Eddy interests, owners of the building, sought to have Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Undersecretary Robert P. Patterson cited for contempt of court for Army occupancy of the building on September 8.

The judge had refused to sign an order granting the Army occupancy when a condemnation hearing was held. Inasmuch as no denial of the building was issued, the judge ruled the war officials could not be held in contempt.

Littell in his arguments pointed out that under the Second War Powers Act the Army could have taken the building without court procedure, as it eventually did. He cited the comments of Chief Justice Stone that "I need not place a limitation on the act" and of former Chief Justices Hughes that "the power to make war includes the power to make war successfully."

Judge Bowen disagreed, asserting in his decision "the civil powers of government, even in time of war, are superior to the war powers."

Nazis Turn Naples Into City of Horror

By Relman Morin
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the Fifth Army in Italy, Sept. 21.—The Germans have turned Naples into a city of horror, killing thousands of Italian civilians and looting, burning and destroying, it was reported today by persons who filtered through the battle lines into Allied-held territory.

Civilians said the town already was without water or any means of lighting the houses. A little food was brought down from orchards and farms in the mountains, but the organization for distributing it has broken down completely under the harsh German restrictions regarding the curfew.

It means death to go out of houses at night looking for food and water, the Italians said. German soldiers patrolling the streets don't challenge or ask for identification. They shoot first.

Asked an estimate of how many Italians had been killed that way in the last two weeks, the people who arrived in this area said "thousands." They added that there are no medical supplies and epidemics of both typhoid and typhus are raging.

Since the armistice the Germans have turned on them like enemies, they said, and are beating them and treating them worse than in any occupied country in Europe.

Overton to Take Restaurant Code Testimony Today

The District Commissioners and representatives of health, restaurant and civic groups will testify at 10:30 a. m. today before a subcommittee of the Senate District Committee at a hearing on a bill establishing a restaurant sanitation code.

In addition to the Commissioners, those who will appear before Senator Overton (Democrat) of Louisiana, chairman of the subcommittee, are Robert Wilson, secretary of the Washington Restaurant Association; Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health officer; Dr. Reid R. Ashworth, director of the District Bureau of Food Inspection; James M. Myles, representing several civic organizations; H. F. Stephenson, member of the legislative division of Pennsylvania Railroad; J. K. Hoskins of the Public Health Service, and the Corporation Counsel of the District.

The bill would provide for sanitation grading of all Washington restaurants and would prohibit the employment of persons suffering from or carriers of contagious diseases. Penalties for violations would be increased from $300, under existing legislation, to $1000.

500 Quit Because One Won't Buy Bonds

St. Joseph, Sept. 21 (AP).—Officials of the Armour & Co. packing plant, employing more than 1100 persons, said they had ordered a shutdown today after about 500 workers left their jobs in protest against one employe's failure to buy war bonds.

Charles Ingersol, head of the local CIO union, said a committee would insist the employe be discharged before the others return.

ain and Russia. This must be pretty imminent if there is to be a meeting on the highest level before the new year. The scene of this meeting, according to reports from London, is likely to be Moscow.

Foreign Secretary Eden will represent Britain, Secretary of State Hull probably will represent this country, and Foreign Commissar Molotov will represent Russia.

3. The aforementioned meeting of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin.

It has been taken for granted that most of the questions at issue will have been settled by the foreign secretaries before the three leaders get together. Mr. Churchill said yesterday, however, that any "differences" developing at the earlier meeting will be "set aside" and then taken up when he, President Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin come together.

The meeting of these three men, certainly one of the most fateful in all history, will call for supersecrecy. Mr. Churchill said in an earlier speech that he and President Roosevelt were willing to travel great distances to meet the Russian leader. Most likely, though, they would expect Stalin to do some traveling also.

At the time of the Casablanca conference it was reported publicly that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill had offered to meet Marshal Stalin at Khartoum, Egypt.

Salerno Campaign Held Dual Axis Defeat

Madrid, Sept. 21 (AP).—Spanish corerspondents in Berlin said today that the Salerno campaign in Italy had been a "military and propagandist defeat" for Germany.

They also made other statements and predictions remarkable both for their content and origin, that the German Ukrainian administrative government already is evacuating Kiev, and that the "threat of evacution hangs over Smolensk."

Industry is helping win the war...
industry must help build a peacetime world

After the war is decisively won... what kind of world is essential for a just and durable peace?

This question is being asked today everywhere in the world. No expert is needed to tell you the answer.

It must be a world as peaceful and neighborly as your own town; a world in which decent people can bring up their children decently. It must be a busy world where factories and farms are working and where there are jobs for all.

How can such a world be brought into being? The surest way is to think and talk about it. Full and complete discussions on the porches of this country, over its fences, in churches, schools, clubs, and always at meals—that is how the terms of A JUST AND DURABLE PEACE can be formulated.

In your discussions keep in mind this fact; your terms of peace must be such that the people of other lands can agree with them. There must be provision in your plans for sustained production and for consumption of that production.

Only a world peace that squares with the conscience of men of good will can be just. Only a just peace can endure.

Richmond Neighbors Testify Murder Suspect Neglected Mother at Birth of Fifth Child

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Sept. 21.—Neighbors—Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Harmon—told the court today in the trial of Walter Paul Harrison, charged with the murder of his wife and four children, that the accused had neglected Mrs. Harrison at the time of the birth of her fifth child.

Harrison is being tried on the first of five counts of murder in connection with the quarry drowning of his 30-year-old wife and four small boys.

Testimony of the Harmons early this afternoon brought to a conclusion the prosecution's side of the case.

Miss Blennie Terrell, who told the court yesterday that she had been Harrison's sweetheart and that she did not know he was a married man when she became engaged to him, was not present during this morning's proceedings. She testified yesterday that she had had intimate relations with Harrison because, "I was desperately in love with him and he persuaded me."

Miss Terrell, who said she had been going with Harrison for about eight months under the impression that he was divorced, told the court that after they became intimate he swore her to secrecy and threatened to take her life and those of his wife and four children if she even mentioned it to anyone.

The young woman, 19 years old, said she and Harrison had planned to be married but testified that she had written a letter to the defendant breaking off their affair and alleged that they became intimate only three or four days before the drowning of the mans' wife and four of his children.

Harmon, who lives about 200 yards from Harrison's former home on the German School rd., said he and his wife were on friendly terms with the Harrisons, but that in his opinion "Harrison didn't do right by his wife while she was pregnant." He said the defendant was not at home often, at that time, and that when Mrs. Harrison returned from the hospital with the infant, she was not provided with household assistance.

Mrs. Harmon said she assisted Mrs. Harrison during her convalescence by giving the baby its morning baths. She added that Harrison went fishing on the day after he brought his wife home from the hospital, leaving her with no one to assist her but 10-year-old Walter, one of the boys who was drowned with his mother.

Throughout the trial today, the 31-year-old former streetcar motorman defendant appeared calm. He frequently passed notes to defense counsel, A. Clair Sager, suggesting questions to propound to witnesses.

The court opened this morning with a visit, in a drizling rain, to the water-filled pit on Petersburg Pike where all but one of the Harrison children, together with Mrs. Harrison, met their death on June 25. The Harrison daughter was the only child not in the automobile when it rolled into the water. Harrison, under the car when the accident occurred, has repeatedly claimed he was repairing the machine at the time.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Industry is helping win the war... industry must help build a peacetime world

After the war is decisively won... what kind of world is essential for a just and durable peace?

This question is being asked today everywhere in the world. No expert is needed to tell you the answer.

It must be a world as peaceful and neighborly as your own town; a world in which decent people can bring up their children decently. It must be a busy world where factories and farms are working and where there are jobs for all.

How can such a world be brought into being? The surest way is to think and talk about it. Full and complete discussions on the porches of this country, over its fences, in churches, schools, clubs, and always at meals—that is how the terms of A JUST AND DURABLE PEACE can be formulated.

In your discussions keep in mind this fact; your terms of peace must be such that the people of other lands can agree with them. There must be provision in your plans for sustained production and for consumption of that production.

Only a world peace that squares with the conscience of men of good will can be just. Only a just peace can endure.

Parade Permit Issued

Permit for a fire prevention parade to be held October 5 was issued to Fire Chief A. J. Bargagni of the Bethesda Fire Department yesterday by the Montgomery County Commissioners at their meeting in Rockville. The parade is to be held under auspices of the Bethesda Fire Department Auxiliary Firemen and will be followed by a demonstration as part of Fire Prevention Week's observance.

The county commissioners appointed Phil D. Poston, William F. Carlin and Walter L. Funderburk as appraisers to set a value on land to be taken by the county for extension of the present terminus of Brunett ave. to the Four Corners rd. in Fairway. The extension is to be built for the convenience and safety of children from that subdivision who now must attend Four Corners School instead of Parkside School and who otherwise would have to travel a dangerous route. The children are being transported by bus pending completion of the road.

Md. Pilot Marries Australian Girl, Bags 7 Planes

Miramar, Calif., Sept. 21 (AP).—The son of Mrs. James W. Stack, Crumpton, Md., was home on leave today after ten months overseas, during which he became a hero and a married man.

Capt. John R. Stack, 25, a Marine fighter pilot, has bagged two Jap planes and five "probables." He made over 35 combat hops and during duty in the Southwest Pacific accumulated 300 combat flying hours.

While he was not shooting down Jap aircraft he found time for a whirlwind courtship of Miss Joan Dawson, 24, an Australian girl.

A graduate of Washington College, Chestertown, Md., he was commissioned in the Marine Corps, May 22, 1942.

Prince Georges Extends Quarantine After Killing Hundreds of Dogs

The current quarantine on dogs in Prince Georges County, Md., which was to have expired October 16, probably will be extended for another three months. Dr. Mark Welsh, director of the livestock sanitary service of the Maryland Board of Agriculture, announced yesterday.

Dr. Welsh said the extension of the ban had been made necessary by the "persistent refusal of dog owners in the county to cooperate with health and law enforcement authorities in observing the quarantine and keeping their dogs confined."

Hundreds Executed

The ban was placed for a three-month period in July and provided all dogs must be kept confined or on leash and that those found running at large would be destroyed or their owners prosecuted. Several hundred dogs have been shot by police or destroyed in a gas chamber by the recently organized Prince Georges County Animal Rescue League.

Dr. Welsh said the Department of Animal Disease Control has uncovered cases of four dogs in the county that were definitely rabid and a number of people in the county who were in contact with those dogs were now undergoing treatment.

Last week, he said, a small dog showing "clinical evidence" of being rabid bit three other dogs and attacked a man. The dog escaped and is still at large. Police and health authorities are still seeking the dog and are also seeking any person the dog may have bit. The three dogs bit are now under observation and if any of them develop rabies, the quarantine will be extended immediately and rigidly enforced.

Of the estimated 12,000 dogs in Prince Georges County, approximately 4000 are unlicensed, unowned and running at large, Dr. Welsh said. The Animal Rescue League, which has established a dog refuge near Hyattsville, has picked up nearly 400 dogs in the last several weeks. Only about 20 of the dogs have been reclaimed by their owners. The rest were kept for three days and destroyed.

Dr. Welsh attributed much of the rabies problem in the county to the laxity of enforcement of the dog license law in both Prince Georges County and in Washington. A number of persons in Washington, unable to feed their pets because of food rationing, are driving the dogs into the county and "dumping them," it was said by police. Farmers in the county have complained that hungry dogs running in packs in the rural sections have killed thousands of dollars worth of livestock during the past summer.

County Police Chief Ralph W. Brown said yesterday police were reluctant to shoot dogs but it would be done if the people didn't cooperate in maintaining the quarantine.

State Prepares Registration for Ration Book 4

Baltimore, Sept. 21 (AP).—Registration for War Ration Book No. 4 probably will last at least three days during the latter part of October, State Office of Price Administration officials said today.

J. William Eggleston, State rationing officer, explaining that dates for issuance of the books had not been fixed, said that public school teachers would be asked again to volunteer their services in distributing the books.

Eggleston said the books probably would be used in the rationing of processed foods, picking up where the No. 2 books leave off.

Distribution of the No. 3 ration book in the State has been completed, he said, except to a few late registrants. The No. 3 book was mailed to 2,030,000 Marylanders compared with the 2,047,000 who received the No. 2 book, he said.

Wild Doe Shadows Maryland Hunter

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 21.—Deputy Game Warden Ralph Rhodes, Clearspring, Md., squirrel hunting, was sitting on a rock resting when he heard a noise behind him. Within arm's reach was a wild doe. Rhodes stretched out his hand, patted the deer and pulled its ears. The doe responded at him playfully.

Dry Cherry Leaves Fatal to Two Cows

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., Sept. 21.—P. C. Yost, dealer in livestock, reported the death of two cows at his farm near here last night because of eating dry wild cherry leaves.

Yost said he was advised by other livestock men that eating of green wild cherry leaves would not poison animals but that the dried leaves—even if eaten in only a small quantity—would be fatal.

Army Officer Convicted of Embezzlement

Maj. Garland Fielding Smith, a War Department agent for the rental of real estate in the District of Columbia, has been convicted of embezzlement and conversion of Government funds by an Army general court-martial, the War Department said yesterday.

The officer, who lives at 1629 Columbia rd. nw., was found guilty of violatig the 93d, 94th and 96th Articles of War, and sentenced to dismissal from the service, forfeiture of all pay and allowances, confinement at hard labor for two years and a fine of $2500.

A statement issued by the War Department last night said the court-martial of Major Smith was held at Fort Myer and ended Monday after a week of testimony and deliberations.

Smith, 33, was a manufacturer's representative in Washington before entering the Army as a Reserve officer. He was also at one time connected with an insurance agency located in the Insurance Building. A native of Utah, he formerly was a Mormon missionary and came here in 1928.

The general court-martial, headed by Brig. Gen. Lehman W. Miller of Fort Belvoir, Va., found Smith guilty "of violating the Articles of War by padding bills presented to the Government, applying to his own use rentals from property leased to the Government, and embezzling Government property."

Major Smith, it was said, was convicted on six specifications and three charges. The peculations totaled $3,282.96 in cash and property and involved transactions from September, 1941, to June of this year.

Maj. Henry C. Clausen, who as trial judge advocate presented the case for the Government, declared that Smith was entrusted with $2750 in Government funds as War Department agent to pay the rental on property leased by the Army and that he converted the money to his own use.

On another count, Major Smith was convicted of obstaining $225 by obtaining $1800 in War Department funds to pay the rental on other property in Washington actually only renting for $1575. A third such count covered $283.66 obtained in excess of the actual rental of garage space in Washington.

Maj. Paul G. Thayer served as defense counsel for Major Smith. The court-martial was convened on order of Maj. Gen. John T. Lewis, commanding general of the Military District of Washington.

Chancellor Of Exchequer Dies at 62

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 21.—Sir Kingsley Wood, 62, chancellor of the exchequer, died today.

The man who was credited largely with keeping Great Britain's wartime finance on an even keel died on the eve of the anticipated announcement of his pay-as-you-go plan for workers' income tax.

WOOD

Sir Kingsley had served as chancellor of the exchequer under Prime Minister Churchill since May 12, 1940, when he received the post in a cabinet shake-up.

He previously had served as lord privy seal and air minister.

On November 3, 1940, he was made a member of the war cabinet but was dropped from this inner circle in February, 1942, in another shake-up.

Minister's Son

Wood was the son of a Wesleyan minister. He commenced his political career in 1911 as a member of the London County Council, equivalent to a city council in the United States.

He had been a member of the same constituency since 1918 and in 1930 became chairman of the executive committee of the National Conservative and Unionist Association—the Conservative Party.

Sir Kingsley's death was announced in Commons, and Churchill prefaced his war review with a short eulogy of the cabinet officer.

The senior partner of a London law firm and a prominent insurance executive during the early twenties, Sir Kingsley also led the movement in Britain which resulted in the establishment of the ministry of health.

He was responsible for the taxation program by which Britain raised unprecedented amounts of money to pay the costs of the most expensive war in all history, while still keeping the country in a sound financial condition.

Vinson Called to Milk Crisis Parley Today on Capitol Hill

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

The Nation's "milk crisis" will be presented to Judge Fred M. Vinson, Director of the Office of Economic Stabilization, this morning as a production problem demanding immediate administration action.

"Unless something is done within the next few days to check the serious decline in milk production," declared Senator Aiken (Republican) of Vermont, "the damage will be so great we cannot hope to remedy it during the war years.

"Milk, right now, is a more pressing problem than manpower."

Capitol Hill Parley

Senator Aiken took the lead in arranging a Capitol Hill meeting between Judge Vinson and New England Congressmen. Other Senators were asked to come and will be present "from Maine to California," Aiken said last night.

Senator Danaher (Republican) of Connecticut said he would present "definite suggestions" to the OES chief covering a plan he thought would work and be acceptable to Congress. Although he refused to reveal his hand in advance, Danaher is not expected to propose a subsidy for dairy producers.

War Food Administrator Marvin Jones discussed three milk subsidy plans with the Senate Banking Committee last week—and got "no" to all of them.

"They've never worked out a way to get a subsidy to the marginal producer and that's where the greatest aid is needed," Senator Aiken said. "The Nation's small butter producers took a straight loss when the subsidy to roll back the price of butter went into effect."

Production to Fall Off

Department of Agriculture experts have warned milk production this year may fall two million pounds below the 200-million-pound goal and next year go down to 115 million pounds—despite earlier plans to increase milk consumption during the war years when other foods were relatively scarce.

Congressmen have argued a straight national increase of 1 cent a quart in the retail price of milk would alleviate the distress among dairy farmers, but Judge Vinson—like Marvin Jones—is under "hold-the-line" orders from the President, who has promised the cost of living will be rolled back rather than increased.

Ten Teams in Training

Meanwhile, it was revealed that 10 teams are in training at WFA here and October 1 will go into the field to explain food production aims for 1944, and ask farmers what prices they would expect for meeting such aims. Support prices for 1944 crops will not be announced until these expectations are studied and will be geared to them as much as possible.

This will be the first time a camp program has been launched in this manner, although it was tried out in miniature on the 1943 winter wheat crop. Wheat production goals which the States set for themselves fell only 50,000 acres short of the national aim.

"We called up Kansas by telephone and it added those acres," a WFA spokesman said yesterday.

The overall aims will be explained in meetings at which prospects for farm machinery, fertilizer, transportation and market facilities will be outlined. Although some shifting may be necessary when the teams return to Washington in November, the program will be one the States themselves have worked out.

Funeral Rites for Mrs. Jett Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Myrtle T. Jett, of Lorton, Va. wife of Clarence B. Jett, construction superintendent of the reformatory there, who was killed Saturday in an automobile accident in Washington, will be held at 2 p. m., today in the Occoquan Methodist Church. Services will be conducted by the Rev. W. Boyd Bryant. Burial will be in Pohick Cemetery.

Mrs. Jett, in addition to her husband, is survived by one son, Clarence Wallace Jett, cadet at West Point; three sisters, Mrs. David Flatford of Lorton, Mrs. M. O. Jarvis, and Mrs. R. H. Jones, both of Washington, and two brothers, John Y. Tyers and Marshall C. Tyers, both of Lorton.

Germany Develops Fog Grenade

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 21.—A fog grenade was described on the Berlin radio tonight by a Nazi colonel as Germany's newest weapon. The speaker said the grenade developed a cloud up to a radius of 600 yards to dazzle the enemy and conceal Nazi army movements.

Weapons throwing the grenades are fully motorized but are lighter than ordinary artillery, the speaker said, while their many barrels and electrical fuses permit mass firing.

The bursting grenades, however, were described as less accurate and less effective against machine-gun nests than artillery.

Netherlands 'Siege'

London, Sept. 21 (AP).—An act calling for a "special state of siege" in the Netherlands during the first stages after the country's liberation from the Nazis has been signed by Queen Wilhelmina, Netherlands Premier Pieter S. Gerbrandy announced tonight in a broadcast to Holland.

The Queen said recently many patriots already had been trained in England to administer the state of siege under a military officer.

Tojo Speaks Today

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—The Berlin radio reported today in a broadcast recorded by OWI that the Japanese Premier, Hideki Tojo, will make an important speech tomorrow to announce "drastic measures and changes within the home front to meet the present serious war situation."

The Japanese cabinet was reported to have held an "extraordinary conference" lasting from 10 a. m. until 7 p. m. today, with only a half-hour interruption.

Congregation Votes 300 to 9 For Retention of Dr. Marshall

By Robert Tate Allan
The Post Church Editor

His congregation likes him so much that they do not want him to leave. So young Dr. Peter Marshall, pastor of historic New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, may not accept the call to the pulpit of Highland Park Presbyterian Church, Dallas, Tex.

DR. MARSHALL

The congregation, by recent vote of 300 to 9, indicated to the Washington City Presbytery, local ruling body of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. (Northern), that they want their pastor to stay. The Presbytery, final authority in such matters, must give a pastor a release to accept another pulpit.

Must Be Dissolved

In the language of the Presbyterian law, there must be a "dissolved relationship" between the church and pastor.

The Washington City Presbytery has announced a special "called meeting" for Friday at 3 p. m. at New York Avenue Church to consider the pastoral matter.

Dr. Marshall, among the city's most outstanding younger ministers, announced to his congregation June 27 that he would accept the Texas call, effective October 1. He could not be reached yesterday for comment on his flock's desire to keep him here. He has served since 1937.

Was Steel Mill Puddler

The Scotch-born minister rose from a steel mill puddler to one of the Nation's leading clergymen in 11 years. Believer in cooperative Christianity, he has served on the Federation of Churches' evangelism committee, and is popular among clergymen and laymen of all faiths. He is very much interested in church youth work, and is in demand as speaker for high school and college assemblies.

Among the Nation's most historic churches, New York Avenue contains the pew where President Lincoln once knelt in prayer. The Lincoln Tower memorializes the Great Emancipator.

Sinkings Statement Confirmed by Nazis

By the Associated Press

A DNB broadcast from Berlin yesterday said "the statement made by Churchill in Commons Tuesday saying that no Allied merchantman has been sunk in the North Atlantic in the course of the last four months was confirmed by competent military circles in the Reich capital."

Chicago Polio Cases Expected to Reach 1000

Chicago, Sept. 21 (INS).—Infantile paralysis cases in Chicago will total at least 1000 before the epidemic begins to wane, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, predicted tonight.

Twelve new cases were reported today, bringing the total to 738. Two new deaths were reported, bringing the total to 70.

ONE LONG PANIC!—That's Joe E. Lewis' Troika engagement to date. The owners of the New York

CARMEN CAVALLARO, nationally popular orchestra leader, who opens in the Statler's Embassy Room tonight

Post, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Backus; their star columnist, Earl Wilson, and a delegation from the New Yorker magazine flew down for Joe's opening. The spot was so crowded on the weekend that chairs had to be put on the dance floor. . . . Everything that Joe E. Lewis does is a tour de force of comedy. But do wait all night at Troika, if necessary, to hear his "Can't Get the Merchandise" and "H. B. Kaltenborn Blues." . . . Dancers Columbus and Carroll open at the Troika tomorrow.

Consuelo Flowerton, favorite singer of Manhattan's cafe society, will be the next topflight star to waltz into Olmsted's Club . . . Those tricky skits being done by Bea Howell at Olmsted's were written by pianist Harold Fonville.

TOP BRACKET VISITORS. War correspondents Leland Stowe and Frazier Hunt engage in long colloquies in the cocktail lounge of the Hotel Lafayette almost every afternoon . . . The Duncan Sisters, now vacationing after their long Troika engagement, often dine at Ruby Foo's.

THIRTEEN'S LUCKY for Del Courtney, whose orchestra of smoothies opens at Del Rio tonight. He has 13 men in his band, likes to open engagements on the 13th. (Goodness, tonight's the 21st.) Del's a California lad, started his band at the University of California.

LA CONGA reopens tonight. With bongo drums and a hi, diddle diddle! Many's the lad who's saved up a little "A" gas stamp just for tonight and La Conga. Louis Belancourt's rumba band and sweetly singing Mary Keefe will help to make your evening hectic.

FLOOR SHOW SNAPSHOTS. The Casino Royal's new show includes Dancers Martin and Ruth, Contortionist Jansen, Singer Pat Purcell and the Mil-Ray Girls . . . Watch the "Music Box" skit at the Balalaika and you'll find yourself making gestures like a wooden soldier . . . It's an all girl show at the Lotus except for those fugitives from Borrah Minnevitch, the Harmoniacs.

BANDSTAND COMPLEXES. "Appalled by the teacher shortage," Maestro Sandy Sandifer of the Metronome Room and a former professor at Texas Wesleyan, is planning to use his spare time in teaching English to Washington high schoolers.

Kaiser Visions 7 Ct. Per Day Medical Care

Group medical care can be provided by industry for workers at a cost of 7 cents a day per worker, Henry J. Kaiser, West Coast shipbuilder, said last night in discussing postwar health planning on the American Forum of the Air, which is sponsored by Theodore Granik, and was broadcast nationally by the Mutual Broadcasting Co.

Also on the program which was staged at the Shoreham Hotel, were Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association; Dr. Ernest T. Boas, chairman of the Physicians' Forum for the Study of Medical Care; Dr. Louis H. Bauer, speaker of the House of Delegates of the New York State Medical Society; Dr. Kingsley Roberts, director of the Medical Administration Service, Inc., and Robert J. Watt, international representative of the American Federation of Labor.

Should postwar industry undertake to furnish low-priced group medical care, Kaiser said, it then easily could spread to where whole communities could undertake it.

Dr. Fishbein opposed any such plan, saying that the selfish interests of industrialists, politicians and others interested must not be allowed to impair the medical system.

Agreeing in principle with Kaiser, Dr. Boss foresaw thousands of young physicians coming back from the war with no practices, and communities stripped of war industries and a population unable to afford medical care.

Dr. Bauer denied that organized medicine has opposed the practice of medicine by physicians organized into groups, on the prepayment or nonprepayment plan.

Dr. Roberts pleaded for a change in medical practice that would give the layman more of a voice in how it is conducted.

Watt explained the higher incidence of illness among low-income families than among the higher groups and cited as a reason the inability of the low-income group to pay for medical care.

2 Drivers Charged With Homicide In Traffic Deaths

Verdicts of negligent homicide were returned by a coroner's jury yesterday against two drivers, recently involved in District traffic accidents, both of whom were ordered held for Municipal Court action.

Out on $1000 bonds, they are Fred W. Cole, jr., 39, of 119 Maryland ave., Parkland, Md., and Daniel J. Walsh, 43, of 1156 Abbey pl. ne.

According to police, Cole was the driver of a taxi which collided with a car driven by Clarence B. Jett of Lorton, Va., Saturday night. Mrs. Jett, a passenger in her husband's car, was killed instantly when the car overturned twice before coming to a stop upside down at 6th and K sts. nw.

Walsh, police said, was the driver of a car which crashed into Garfield Monument on July 24, injuring Mary Gentzler, 47, of 30 Franklin st. ne. Mrs. Gentzler died four days later at Casualty Hospital.

Lieut. Harold Haug, 23, Camp Pickett, Va., was knocked down last night by a hit-and-run motorist while crossing Third st. near Constitution ave. nw. He was treated at Casualty Hospital for leg and body injuries and removed to Walter Reed Hospital. Police were seeking the driver of the car.

The 'A and Eagle' Has Learned to Fly

Impassable roads? Mountainous territory? An urgent need to move fighting men, supplies and even Jeeps by air? Our armed forces have found the answer. It is one of the thrilling new developments of the war—the use of gliders, which are now being produced in imposing numbers.

Can skilled metal workers and cabinet makers turn quickly from manufacturing refrigeration equipment to making glider parts? Yes indeed!

Our Refrigeration Division volunteered long ago to help Uncle Sam build gliders. The shops that once made equipment for ice cream and frozen food dealers the country over were revamped completely and old and new workers trained for this important enterprise.

INCIDENTALLY, our Refrigeration Division was created many years ago as a result of experience gained in making millions of tons of ice to produce the world's most popular beer.

The total of the drive will be announced at the War Bond Cavalcade to be held at 8:30 tonight in the Shoreham Hotel. A two-hour program featuring the Quiz Kids will be held, with many notables expected to be present, according to Bernard Margolius, publicity chairman.

Frank Lee, restaurateur at 1241 7th st. nw., forfeited $50 on a charge of having roaches on premises and dirty shelving, dishes, floors and walls.

Haberdashery Rifled

Men's pants, shirts, hose, hats and sweaters, valued at $124.50 were stolen after forced entry into the Dunbar Co. Haberdashery Store at 1632 L st. nw., Barnard Zarin, proprietor, reported to police.

Taken from a truck owned by the J. B. Macke Co. of 212 H st. nw. was a large suitcase containing 50 cartons of assorted cigarettes and keys to fit all Macke vending machines. The truck was parked by the concern at the time of the theft, police said.

United Nations Center Asks Volunteers

Call for a thousand volunteer workers to man facilities at the United Nations Service Center, scheduled to open the latter part of next month at 500 North Capitol st., was sounded in a report made yesterday by Mrs. Harry Bernton, director of civilian defense volunteers.

Mrs. Bernton read the report at a meeting of the War Hospitality Committee at St. John's Parish Hall, 819 16th st. nw.

The center's canteen and bar will be sublet to the District of Columbia Welfare and Recreation Association, it was announced. It is planned to continue the center in operation for some time after the war as a haven for returning enlisted men and officers.

Hope that the center would become self-sustaining was expressed by Floyd Akers, chairman of the executive committee of the war hospitality committee.

Winfree Johnson, chairman of the lodging committee, reported that bed facilities for servicemen during weekends are fast approaching maximum capacity. Beds available last Saturday totaled 2340 for whites and 43 for Negroes.

A class to train additional badly needed volunteers for the information services will begin tonight at the Chamber of Commerce Building, it was reported by Mrs. Jean Jackson, chairman of the committee.

Mabel Cook, representing the USO, reported that three new centers, one opening Saturday in Bethesda, another in Anacostia on Sunday, and a third, for men and women in uniform, which will be dedicated Saturday, October 2, will bring a total of 16 such clubs to the D. C. area.

It was reported that Youth Hostelries, Inc., has four havens now in operation in the area, and 11 more are planned.

Efforts are being made to expand club facilities for officers, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, chairman of the officers' service club committee, reported.

D. C. Lieutenant, Reported Missing, Held by Germans

Second Lieut. Peter Branch, who was announced as missing in action by the War Department last May, is a German prisoner, it was learned here yesterday.

BRANCH

The navigator of a bomber, Lieut. Branch had been decorated in London with the Air Medal and the Oak Leaf Cluster for meritorious achievement in flights made over enemy occupied territory.

He is the son of Randoph W. Branch, 1733 20th st. nw., an attorney with the Federal Trade Commission, and attended Western High School and George Washington University. In 1940, he went to Canada and enlisted in the Royal Canadian Air Force, but returned to join the United States Army before Christmas of that year.

Trained at Maxwell Field, Ala., and Muroc Air Base, Calif., he was sent overseas in October, 1942. He has two brothers, Lieut. Hugh Branch of the Army and William R. Branch, a third officer with the merchant marine.

"Either we 'sat on the valve'... or the bottom of the sea!"

Here's a true story about one that got away. An Alcoa Master tells how an attacking U-boat was foiled by a daring decision . . . a staunch ship . . . and a nervy black gang.

"Enemy sub—5000 yards astern!' yelled the lookout. She was Nazi all right . . . surfaced to overhaul us. Even at that distance we could see she was a big one, heavily armed. We knew it would be hopeless to try to give her a fight.

"Our only chance was to out-run the Heinie. I signalled for full speed ahead . . . but even full speed seems like standing still when you've got a killer on your tail. The sub continued to creep up on us . . . before long she'd have us like a duck on a pond. In desperation I called the engine room—begged for more speed.

"Somehow that gang wheedled another knot out of her, but it wasn't enough. The sub began to shell us. Luckily, the range was still pretty long. Even so, those shots were coming much too close for comfort.

"It looked bad. But the gang below had an ace in the hole. They were all for 'sitting on the valve'. (Hold down the safety valve so as to increase steam pressure.) It was chancy, but I had confidence in my ship . . . and my men. All they needed was my order. They got it . . . and you could feel the ship shudder as they poured on the steam.

"Suddenly we were holding our own . . . beginning to gain! When the chief engineer came running up to see if we were going fast enough, we were practically out of danger. He grinned proudly. 'You know, skipper, I'd bet a month's pay that those Nazis think we're a mirage.'"

The American Merchant Marine needs the services of every experienced man who has a license as a deck officer, or as an engineer. If you hold such a license, and are now working ashore, you may serve your country far better by going back to sea, even though the present shore job is war work. The hundreds of new ships which will be completed this year will need men like you as officers. Get full information at the nearest office of the U. S. Employment Service or write the War Shipping Administration, Washington, D. C.

The Gallinger Mess

Charges of irregularities have been added to striking evidence of mismanagement and neglect at Gallinger Hospital. Along with Senator McCarran, we completely reserve judgment as to whether these accusations against Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, the superintendent, are true. Malicious reports are sometimes circulated by disgruntled individuals. Certainly, however, the alleged irregularities brought to light through the Comptroller General's office demand the most searching type of investigation from Senator Holman's subcommittee.

If hospital employes have appropriated to their own use food, liquor and personal services paid for out of hospital funds, not only dismissal from office but also prosecution will be in order. Such crimes, if committed, would be all the more despicable because of Gallinger's almost constant need of more food and more personal services than its appropriations have provided. We hope that the Holman Committee will leave no stone unturned until this whole sorry mess has been laid bare and the responsibility for it has been traced to source.

When all the alleged petty graft has been eliminated, however, there will still remain the problem of rescuing Gallinger from mismanagement at the top. For the bungling which is largely responsible for the hospital's present plight reaches up to Congress itself. In the budget for the current year, for example, the District Commissioners asked once more for an assistant superintendent for Gallinger. Whether or not Dr. Bocock has played fast and loose with hospital commodities, he has been grossly overworked for many years. Without an assistant, it has been literally impossible for him to attend to all the administrative details that arise from an institution of this size. The Senate agreed with the Commissioners that he should have an assistant, but the salary for that proposed official was eliminated by the House. At the same time the House allowed an assistant superintendent for Glenn Dale, a smaller institution.

Much of the deterioration in the type of service given at Gallinger is probably due to its loss of nurses. With a total staff of 165 nurses authorized, Gallinger now has 67 vacancies. And even this staff is poorly managed because the head nurse appears to be beyond retirement age and no longer able to direct housekeeping and nursing functions in so large an institution. Still worse, this lack of able leadership has discouraged nurses from accepting positions at Gallinger, so that it seems impossible to replenish the staff under present conditions. What is obviously needed is a thorough investigation of the hospital and its management all the way up to the failure of Congress to provide this institution with the funds required to secure adequate and competent administration. Meanwhile, the alleged violations of law are under investigation by the District Attorney and it may be taken for granted that evidence in his possession will be turned over to a grand jury if his findings sustain the charges that have been made public.

Two Philosophers

There will be a good deal of rejoicing in this country at the news that the celebrated Italian philosopher, Benedetto Croce, now in his late seventies, is in the territory occupied by the British forces after the landing in Sorrento, below Naples. A British broadcast speaks of Croce as having been "liberated" by the invasion, a phrase which seems to imply that he had been placed under some form of arrest in the final days of the Fascist regime. This would have been natural enough, for Croce's opposition to Mussolini was well known and of long standing. and philosophically of course he stood at an opposite pole to the whole Fascist theory of government. His rank as a former senator—he was appointed by the King more than 30 years ago—doubtless gave him a certain immunity, but this need not have applied in the crisis which followed the Italian invasion. He was also to some extent protected by his reputation abroad, for he has been considered in many quarters to be the foremost of contemporary thinkers. Certainly, he has been one of the most influential thinkers of this generation, though perhaps less so than the great Italian sociologist, Pareto, who died the year after Mussolini came to power.

Croce's greatest influence possibly has been less upon politics directly than upon literature and art, which, however, may prove the more powerful in the long run.

Another philosopher about whom there has been much apprehension is George Santayana, who evidently was still living in his carefully protected solitude at Rome when the Germans took possession of that city. Despite his many years of residence and teaching in the United States, Santayana seems never to have been naturalized as an American citizen, a fact which may now give him a certain protection. He is a Spaniard by birth and presumably still has the status of a Spanish national. Unlike Croce, Santayana has remained utterly aloof from politics, and there seems no particular reason for the Nazis to molest him. Nevertheless, he is now almost 80, and at this particular moment Rome cannot be an especially comfortable spot for anybody, even for one spiritually so far removed as Santayana from the ephemeral tempests of this world.

Glance At The Record

It is immensely edifying to hear accusations of treachery from the lips of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini. The term has, apparently, it own very special meaning for them. Both of them are now quivering with indignation and injured innocence over their "betrayal" by the Italian people. Their attitudes transcend effrontery. Here is a morality so warped that it is impervious to shame, incapable even of a sense of guilt.

The record of their guilt, written in human blood, is unlikely ever to be erased from the memory of man. It is, by now, a long and tedious and familiar record—too long for full recital here. But some of its highlights are worth recalling briefly, if only to remind us freshly of the moral hideousness against which we are waging war. Here are some of the protestations of Adolf Hitler made in the days when there were still some who would give him credence:

"The German people have no thought of invading any country."—Berlin, May 17, 1933.

"Germany has neither the wish nor the intention to mix in internal Austrian affairs or annex or unite with Austria."—Reichstag, May 21, 1935.

"We have no territorial demands to make in Europe."—Berlin, March 7, 1936.

"We are ready to acknowledge and guarantee these states (the Low Countries) at all times as inviolable neutral territory."—Reichstag, January 30, 1937.

"We succeeded in arriving at an agreement (with Poland) which, for the duration of 10 years, basically removes the danger of any clash . . . We are two peoples. They shall live. One cannot annihilate the other."—Sportspalast, September 26, 1938.

"The German Reich and the Kingdom of Denmark will under no circumstances resort to war or any other form of violence against each other."—Article I of pact signed in Berlin, May 31, 1939.

"I will not war against women and children. I have ordered my air force to restrict itself to attacks on military objectives."—Berlin, September 1, 1939.

"We (Germany and the Soviet Union) have, therefore, resolved to conclude a pact which rules out forever any use of violence beween us."—Berlin, September 1, 1939.

"In the spirit long existing of good German-Norwegian relations the Reich government notifies the Norwegian government that she has no intention, through her measures now or in the future, of infringing upon the territorial integrity or the political independence of the Kingdom of Norway."—Berlin, April 9, 1940.

What happened on the heels of these protestations needs no repetition here. As for that satellite aggressor, Mussolini, who now whines that even his own followers have turned upon him, it is necessary to recall only Ethiopia, Albania, Greece—and the infamous "stab in the back" administered to stricken France. Such is the background of the men who now prate about "betrayal!"

War On The U-Boat

Of all the many revelations made by Winston Churchill in his comprehensive review of the war before the House of Commons yesterday, none will arouse greater interest or produce a larger measure of satisfaction in Allied lands than his disclosure regarding the progress which has been made in fighting the U-boat menace.

Not many months ago this menace was only too real. We were then not winning but losing the crucial Battle of the Atlantic. U-boats were sinking more ships and more tonnage than were being built in the shipyards of the United Nations. Had this trend not been reversed, there would have been—there could have been—no Allied landing in North Africa, no Mediterranean campaign and no invasion of Italy, and Great Britain, the base from which the European Continent will ultimately be invaded from the west, would have been starved out.

Fortunately, the tide began to turn some time this spring, and with heartening swiftness. According to Mr. Churchill, not an Allied ship has been sunk in the North Atlantic during the past four months and during the first two weeks of September no Allied ship was sunk through enemy action in any ocean of the world. It must not be assumed from this, however, and Mr. Churchill was careful to point out this fact, that the U-boat's fangs have definitely, finally and completely been drawn. We must expect from the enemy, he said, "frenzied efforts to retaliate." In fact, a renewal of the submarine war in the Atlantic is now in the offing with the Germans likely to employ new weapons perfected during the period of lull. But in this period of declining ship losses the United Nations have had time to make good most if not yet all of the tonnage losses incurred during four years of war and to replenish military and civilian stores in the British Isles. So today, Mr. Churchill pointed out, "we have substantial margins between us and what is called the danger level on which we have never retrenched even at the worst times."

The fact is that on no weapon did Hitler place greater reliance in keeping the Allies at arm's length and preventing them from coming to close grips with the Nazi forces on the Continent than on the U-boat. That weapon has failed to do the intended job. More and more the U-boats, which were the hunters in the great expanse of oceans, are now the hunted. As Mr. Churchill says, the Allies can now be defeated by the submarine only through "gross neglect of duty in the shipyards and on the seas and inexcusable falling off of technical ability on both sides of the Atlantic."

Good First Step

The fog of deep uncertainty, which for so long has surrounded America's postwar policy, was partially lifted yesterday when the House of Representatives, by the overwhelming vote of 360 to 29, approved the Fulbright resolution. That resolution, as amended on the floor, is simplicity itself. It declares the will of Congress as favoring "the creation of appropriate international machinery with power adequate to establish and to maintain a just and lasting peace among the nations of the world, and as favoring participation by the United States therein through its constitutional process."

This happens to be the very minimum of commitment the United States can make at this time without giving rise to suspicions and fears that after this war we shall, as we did after the last war, return to a policy of isolation. But it is a foundation upon which a cooperative order can be built with the United States as one of the participants.

Congressman Fulbright, the sponsor of the resolution, spoke wisely and well when in the course of Monday's debate he said that "this resolution is no panacea for all our afflictions . . . It is simply the first small step in the process of building a policy which I hope may have better results than that which we have followed in the past. We now have, throughout the world, ample evidence of the inevitable consequences of that policy. Surely it is worth while to try a new approach to the problem of total war, even though no one can guarantee the success of our efforts."

The fact that such a very large percentage of his colleagues in the House agreed with him is gratifying. Nor can we lose sight of the circumstance that this approval of the Fulbright resolution comes immediately following a period of adjournment in which the members of the House had an opportunity to sound out sentiment in their constituencies. The action of the House is a reflection of the way Americans overwhelmingly feel. It is now up to the Senate to go and do likewise.

Well Done

The career of Col. Edmund W. Starling has been an expression of the dream of every American boy who aspires to be a policeman when he grows up. Colonel Starling began by tracking down train robbers. For the past 30 years he has been a member of that silent, efficient corps, the Secret Service. He has been charged with the heavy responsibility of keeping five Presidents safe from harm. Since the beginning of Mr. Roosevelt's first term, he has been top man of the White House protective staff. Now, at 67, he has decided to retire—"for warm sunshine, fishing and loafing." He has earned his rest.

Colonel Starling will have some rich experiences to mull over in his retirement. He traveled to Europe with President Wilson and stood behind the World War leader in the mirrored hall of Versailles. He was with Warren Harding when that tragic hero of "normalcy" died in San Francisco. He accompanied Mr. Roosevelt to Rio de Janeiro. Despite the exacting cares of his extraordinary assignment, Colonel Starling managed always to be poised, affable and friendly to newspapermen and other White House callers. He will be missed in the Capital by both the lowly and the great and will carry with him a multitude of affectionate good wishes.

THE ASTRONOMER

He has outstripped the grudging steps of death,
He runs like wind upon the edge of light;
Precision is his tool, no fog-born breath
Can dim the computations of his sight.
He charts the pathways of ascending stars;
He plots the schedule of the sun's eclipse;
Foretells the fickle moon; and nothing mars
The sureness of his bright apocalypse.
An intimate of heaven's coterie,
He knows the comets that have flashed and gone;
He sees time pass into eternity,
He watched the stars set over Babylon.

He looks not toward the skies, a gulf to brook;
But looks out from them, as a king might look.

Triangular Conference

By Mark Sullivan

Invitation to Stalin

PRIME MINISTER Churchill, in his speech to the House of Commons this week, said it is "confidently hoped" that there will be a meeting of himself and President Roosevelt with Premier Stalin of Russia before the end of the present year. While this is still a "hope," it is a more confident hope. Back of Mr. Churchill's announcement lies an important condition not widely understood.

Since the beginning of the war, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill have met six times, have been together on some occasions for days, on the last occasion for weeks. But at no time has Premier Stalin of Russia met with them.

A meeting of all three has been at all times desired by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill. Failure of such a meeting to take place has been due quite apparently to Premier Stalin, for whatever reasons he may have. Some of the reasons can be inferred, and are valid; others are surmised.

What reasons Mr. Stalin may have—and the central fact that no meeting has taken place—has given concern to the British and American Governments. But they have been careful, for motives of good taste and proper diplomacy, not to communicate their concern to the public. Even though the condition has sometimes embarrassed them, they have been careful, when under the necessity of saying something, to be guarded and tactful, careful to give no hurt to Russian feelings.

AFTER THE MEETING of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill at Quebec last month—with Mr. Stalin absent and the world beginning to wonder why he was absent from all such meetings—Mr. Churchill apparently felt obliged to say something. What he said (in his Quebec speech of August 31) was in the spirit of fairness and good feeling. He said that "It would not have been suitable for Russia to be represented" at the Quebec conference, because that conference dealt largely with prosecuting the war against Japan, with which Russia is not at war. But, while giving Mr. Stalin the benefit of this reason for absence from the Quebec meeting, Mr. Churchill made it clear that some meeting with Mr. Stalin is desired and has long been desired. He said:

"Nothing is nearer to the wishes of President Roosevelt and myself than to have a threefold meeting with Marshal Stalin. If that has not yet taken place, it has certainly not been because we have not tried our best, or have not been willing to lay aside every impediment and undertake further immense journeys for the purpose."

Having thus made emphatic that Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt wish for a meeting; that they have tried to bring about a meeting, "tried our best"; that they have been willing to lay aside everything else and undertake any journey however long—having made that clear, Mr. Churchill was again careful to give Mr. Stalin an "out." He said that Mr. Stalin, being "in direct command of the victorious Russian armies, cannot at the present time leave the battlefront." Graciously he added: "Marshal Stalin is certainly not wasting his time." But yet once more Mr. Churchill emphasized the wish of himself and Mr. Roosevelt to have a meeting, "The President and I will persevere in our efforts to meet Marshal Stalin."

That guarded and studiously fair speech of Mr. Churchill is all that has been on official record from the American or British governments about Mr. Stalin's apparent reluctance to meet with Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill. Not on official record is an increasing amount of speculation about failure of a meeting to take place, and possible disturbing consequences that may ensue. The speculation grows in proportion as the need grows daily more urgent for agreement of the three heads of government.

THE REPEATED frustration of efforts of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill to bring about a meeting with Mr. Stalin may be due in part to reasons of personal temperament. Mr. Stalin may feel that it would be embarrassing to sit in a meeting of three in which the other two speak the same language, while he would be obliged to speak and hear through an interpreter. A possible reason for delay and postponement may be some trait of the Russian temperament—some persons think this may be the explanation.

The disquieting fact is that every day that passes without a meeting changes the conditions in which the meeting will take place. As Mr. Stalin's armies approach nearer to German soil, he becomes more justified in standing by his position on matters between him and Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill. And seriously disturbing is the fact that lack of a meeting creates greater and greater temptation to the Germans to try to drive a wedge between us and Russia, to the end of a separate peace or other advantage. Mr. Churchill's present expression of "confident hope" that a meeting will take place before the end of the year is welcomed in Washington.

Rome

By Paul Schubert

Hitler And The Church

AT THE TIME of Italy's capitulation, German headquarters was filled with orderly bustle. Momentous decisions were to be taken. Would the Reichswehr be ordered into the Italian peninsula in strength, to make a delaying fight of it there while the Po Line was strengthened? How about the Balkans? Crete? How about southern France?

The Fuehrer is thrilled to the marrow by hours like these. How he likes to make history—to issue the orders that send hundreds of thousands of men into action, to write the proclamations filled with bombast and braggadocio . . .

How does he know what decisions to make?

AH, HE HAS that wonderful gift of intuitive prescience! His inner voices tell him the best course to take. They say he never makes a mistake . . .

Well—hardly ever . . .

Once before the Fuehrer announced that if the armies of the United Nations ever tried to get a foothold anywhere on the soil of the Continent they would be repulsed — aber sofort — and thrown back into the sea. Their punishment for such presumptuous daring would be schrecklich!

Very good. Tell the trusty Wehrmacht to throw the invaders out of Italy. Let the lightnings descend upon the Americans and English—the full, awful might of the German army in all its invincibility.

So the grey tide rumbled and trod the Italian roads, marching again . . . poured through villages in endless thousands of dusty men, seized the cities, posted up road signs and guide posts in hard Teutonic lettering, ousted mayors, police chiefs and replaced them with military administrators—

So the blitz took Rome, as it had once before taken Paris.

Another achievement for the historic record of the corporal and Fuehrer, who tosses off countries and their capitals with such careless ease.

"Take Rome for me!" And lo, Rome is taken!

Then the fighting began, further south at Salerno . . .

We are not here concerned with the fighting, and whether or not that was to go as Hitler's intuition predicted.

We are interested in Rome.

Rome is more than the Italian capital. Rome is the seat of the church, the spiritual home of Catholicism, church whose power and organization mantles the earth, whose followers number hundreds of milions—church with greater influence upon Europe than any other Christian organization.

Europe's political leaders have always been suspicious of Europe's religious leaders, jealous of the power of religion to influence the masses—to cross frontiers . . . jealous of the fact that the church, however militant, preaches peace—jealous of the fact that when Europe enters upon hard times, the suffering masses ultimately grow weary of political and military leaders and fill the churches in search of solace—

Hitler is a cynic.

Many of Europe's political leaders have formed alliances with the church. One such alliance, the Holy Roman Empire, endured for a millennium—

But Hitler is a Fuehrer. He is top ruler, or nothing. He does not believe all the hooey about the Pope's spiritual leadership—that's only smoke screen. The Pope is a politician, and everybody knows it. At least, every good Nazi knows it.

When Hitler took Rome he thought of an excellent joke.

He would set himself up as "Protector of the Pope." Proclaiming this latest of his monstrous whoppers to the world, he would surround the Vatican City and make the Pope a prisoner . . . And if the Holy Father made one single, ever so little false move—just one . . . let him look out, that's all. The rumbling Teutonic thunders would envelop him, and who knows? Perhaps Hitler would decide to put an end to Catholicism, if not to Christianity!

GERMAN JOKES have a way of backfiring. And Hitler's intuition has a way of leading the Fuehrer and his followers into deep, dark waters.

When Hitler imprisoned the Pope in Vatican City, a shudder went through Catholic Europe, including Catholic Germany—and a goodly percentage of the Germans are Catholics.

Had Hitler treated the Holy Father with great-hearted consideration, he had a chance to turn the capture of Rome into a prestige-winning episode.

As it is, he has turned our troops into an Army of Rescue. When we take Rome—and we shall drive the Germans out—Hitler must either let us liberate the Pope . . . or he must abduct the Pope to keep the Holy Father from liberation. Whichever course he chooses, he has made a monumental mistake.

Big Three Or Four

Walter Lippmann and others have pointed out the dire consequences of our lack of a foreign policy. Would a foreign policy have prevented our entrance into either of the world wars? I do not think so. But I submit the present power of the United States, Russia and the British Empire is so great as to be able to prevent not only world wars but all wars.

Is there anything to prevent such an alliance? Certainly there is nothing in the history of Russia or of the United States that would indicate their desire for world conquest nor anything in the last hundred years of British Empire history to indicate such a desire. The truth of the matter is that the British Empire is struggling for its existence and if the present British government can maintain the empire as a great world power they will be fortunate. No combination of powers that one could possibly conceive would be in a position to resist the "Big Three." I see no reason why the potentially great power of China should not be asked to join them. Anyone who accused China of aggressive intentions would be laughed at.

A world government, of course, is the ideal for the well being of humanity, but the experience of the past 25 years furnishes conclusive evidence of its impracticability. Advancement in any line of human endeavor has been by compromise, forced by social and economic conditions and not accomplished by the ideals of brotherhood and justice. This is still a rough and tough old world, and the sooner that fact is realized by our Government and its foreign policy based thereon, the less likelihood is there of another world war. As for the old turtle-shell isolationists, their beliefs are as dead as the deadest dodo. DAVID M. PECHIN.

Washington, Sept. 13.

Super Hodgepodge

Of late some Americans of note have advocated the formation of a super-government—a great international federation of nations to control world affairs and to prevent future wars and thus establish permanent peace on this earth. These advocates are going so far as to ask us to surrender our national sovereignty, a large portion of our constitutional liberties, and virtually to crucify the American Republic in the joining and operating of this international super-government to insure lasting peace.

They argue that the American Republic is composed of 48 sovereign States and governments all united in one Union, and therefore we ought to be able to organize a super-world sovereignty and enforce its decrees by a super-military force, thus crushing all revolt in minority nations or groups of nations. They forget that in the United States we all speak the same language, hold the same ideals of religious freedom, and the same notions as to our democratic form of government, whereas in Europe, Asia and Africa the different nations speak different languages, hold different views on the subject of church and state relationships, and entertain different political ideas as to monarchical and democratic sovereignty.

Such a super-federation of varied ideals and languages would constitute a religio-political hodgepodge beyond human control and instead of leading to political unity and harmony would constitute a constant cause of confusion and turmoil. America would have to mix in every dog-fight in foreign countries if it attempted to police recalcitrant nations in the future. Such a merger would destroy peace and promote wars.

Unified Air Power

The two big stories on the front page of my copy of this morning's Post are the Salerno engagement and the request of Army and Navy heads for more troops. The reported facts of the Salerno story and the statements of the Army and Navy heads seem to contradict each other. The two stories, appearing so coincidentally, should bring but one conclusion: What we need is a unified air force, with a loud voice in broad tactical planning—a voice so loud that the use made of air power will be "enough and on time."

The censorship through which correspondents' accounts of the Salerno engagement has passed undoubtedly is controlled by men whose primary interest is on the terrestrial plane, so we newspaper readers are told in as quiet manner as possible that a naval bombardment and aerial "support" have saved the Salerno bridgehead. It would be interesting to hear the account which a leader of the aerial "support" gave to flying buddies on his return to his base.

We of the uninformed public, not qualified to question the tactical judgment of military experts, nevertheless, by processes of common sense come to the questions: Why, like reserve troops, is air power called in to "support" a ground action? Why, if air power could save the bridgehead didn't it make the bridgehead possible in the first place? Under a unified air force air-minded planners would have been asked how many troops they needed to make a bridgehead, not necessarily at Salerno and not necessarily with paratroops. Our boys are the best fighters in the world, have the best equipment and the best leaders, but their job is made tougher when planners put the cart before the horse.

In this wonderful country of ours, where aviation was born, our military thinking still has to be "air-conditioned." I fervently hope that The Post and other up-to-the-minute papers continue to hammer away for a unified air force. POST SUBSCRIBER.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

War Bond Sales

I'm buying a bond for a freckled kid
Who lived down the street a way—
A boy with a dog just a while ago—
A name on a list today! . . .
I'm buying a bond for a barefoot lad
Who only a short time back
Was romping the fields of the old-home town,
But died in a far attack!

II

I'm coming across in the memory
Of youngsters who left the town
With laughter and jokes and their heads held high
To take on the scrappers' frown;
The kids who were down in the swimmin' hole
Or played in the high school show—
The boys who'd be out on the sandlots now . . .
Except that it can't be so!

III

I'm signing for all I can take aboard;
I thought I had done my share
Until in the hometown sheet today
I saw "Johnny Adams" there;
He'd brought me my papers every night,
A child on a bike bright red;
He's riding the path to the house right now,
I thought . . . but the lad is dead!

IV

I've read all the ads in the War Bond drive,
The work of the writers slick;
But, God, when I think that it takes that stuff
It leaves me a little sick;
The picture of boys on a village green
Or trooping across the meed
Who now lie under a cross-filled field
Is all that we ought to need.

V

I listen to speeches o'er mikes galore
That tell of the War Bond drive,
But all I hear is the cannon's roar—
The whine of a power-dive;
The speeches, the music, the ballyhoo—
All leave me a little cold . . .
For I know a boy who just died for me—
And couldn't be quite that old!

VI

The Hollywood stars will cavort this day—
"All out for the bond drive show!"—
The orators gather to do their stunts
But I will not have to go;
These noisy appeals I will not require;
Enough is the inner call
That comes with the thought of the home town kids
Who died ere they lived at all!

VII

This taking of War Bonds?
Bunk!
Since when was investment on sure things
A sacrifice? Scrap such junk! . . .
I'm doing a painless and little thing!
One sales point alone rings true:
The debt to those lads from the old home town—
Who, asked for their lives, came through!

* * * *

The ODT will curb most deliveries beginning October 11, permitting only foodstuffs, laundry, etc. It looks like trying days ahead for the man who said he would never carry bundles.

On Second Thought

With perky veil and chic galore
My new fall hat remains in the store,
The swank green dress I meant to buy
Will have to catch another's eye.
The purse to match is still on display—
Because I bought a bond today!

A new fall outfit gone to pot,
You think I'm sorry? Well, I'm not,
Instead of "pretties" or a trifle
I bought some Yankee lad a rifle.

HARRIED L. BOSSARD.

Could it be that Mussolini is scared speechless?

Capri has now been taken by our side and artillery is being used from its heights. Nothing is harder for the tourist to imagine. Capri, the quiet, beautiful, restful isle off Naples to which folks used to go to get away from excitement!

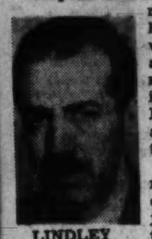
We remember being the object of an amphibious battle off Capri that was the greatest up to now. We had been a hotel guest there for two weeks. An hour before checking out we had a cocktail. We paid our bill and took the steamer for Naples. Fifteen minutes out there was a terrific tooting and signaling astern. The steamer stopped, as a puffing motorboat overtook it. From the bow a hotel messenger was frantically yelling for "Senor Phillips," and waving something.

It was the bar check for the cocktail, amounting to about 8 cents in American money!

Marshall's Future

By Ernest Lindley

Shift Might Disturb Balance



LINDLEY

THERE IS nothing sinister in the proposal that General Marshall assume command in the European theater. It is proof, rather, of the high regard in which his achievements and abilities are held in London as well as in Washington.

Unless Germany suddenly collapses, a majority of the troops for the invasion of Europe will have to come from the United States. Seasoned British and Canadian divisions will be available for the first lines of attack and doubtless will share with the Americans the hazards of making the initial landings, as they have done in Sicily and Italy. But their number is limited. For fighting on the huge scale which may develop—whether in the Balkans, southern France, northern France, the Lowlands, or Denmark—the bulk of the trops will necessarily be American, for we have the only great Allied reservoir of highly trained and fully equipped combat troops. This is the superme undertaking for which the new American Army has been mobilized in the year and three-quarters since Pearl Harbor.

If a majority of the troops are to be American, it is fitting that the supreme command should be held by an American. Although the British public might prefer a British general, the British government may see advantages in fixing on any American, the responsibility for the direction of campaigns which may cost us heavily in casualties. This would be a safeguard against the possibility of accusations that the British were holding back their own troops and letting us suffer the losses.

IF AN American is chosen, the choice boils down probably to Marshall or Eisenhower. Eisenhower has done a great job, in British as well as American eyes. But he is Marshall's junior and protege. For the final coordinated assaults on Europe, Eisenhower's African-Mediterranean command, the British Middle Eastern Command, and the operations based on Britain might be placed under one supreme Allied generalissimo.

Marshall has the complete confidence of both Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt, and there have been circumstantial indications for more than a year of an informal understanding that Marshall would assume the Allied supreme command in the war against Germany when the stage was set for the large-scale final invasions of the continent. Moreover, many of Marshall's admirers and friends would like to see him given the opportunity to reap the glory that would go with such a command. He has done a magnificent job in creating the new American Army. It is now ready to fight on an immense scale. Marshall's views on the strategy of the war have become very influential. So, it would seem appropriate on many counts that he have the honor of leading to victory the Army which he developed.

BUT SOME of Marshall's professional colleagues—in the Navy as well as in the Army—take the view that he cannot be spared from his present position as Chief of Staff. Even though a man of the Marshall school of thought were chosen to succeed him, the change would inevitably lead to readjustments. No two men think and work exactly alike. Uncertainties would be injected, at least temporarily, into what is now a smooth-running Army organization. Perhaps even more important, the shift might unsettle or disturb the balance of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Combined (British-American) Chiefs of Staff, in both of which Marshall carries great weight.

It is unquestionably true that while everyone knows the name of Pershing, few can remember the names of the American Chiefs of Staff during the first World War. As Supreme Allied commander in Europe, Marshall's position would be more nearly comparable to Foch's than to Pershing's. But in 1917-18 there was only one main enemy and only one main front. Marshall's present position, with the place it provides on the Combined Chiefs of Staff, is undobtedly more important than any field commander's.

Another consideration is Marshall's prestige in Congress, which is now almost without precedent and probably could not be quickly approximated by a new Chief of Staff.

It is a staggering tribute to one man that he is regarded by so many diverse but competent judges as, if not indispensable, at least the best equipped to administer the American Army, to represent it before Congress and the public, to represent it on the highest Allied strategy-making body, and to command not only it but all the Allied forces in what may well prove to be the most intricate and hazardous but most powerful offensive campaigns in the history of warfare.

Legion Hears Gen. Marshall

War Aims Outlined

By the Associated Press

Omaha, Sept. 21.—Chief of Staff Gen. George C. Marshall told the twenty-fifth national convention of the American Legion today that great offensives were "just about to begin" against the enemy in Europe and Asia, and his Commander in Chief, President Roosevelt, urged increased effort in civilian defense and other phases of the national program.

Both cautioned that the war was not yet won, President Roosevelt reiterating that the end "is not in sight until unconditional surrender has become a reality."

Lieut. Gen. Omar Bradley, recently returned from Sicily, in a review of combat experiences declared that the Germans encountered by American troops are "cunning, unscrupulous and somebody to be exterminated." General Bradley and Lieut. Gen. Simon B. Buckner, who has been directing American operations in Alaska, accompanied General Marshall to the convention.

Receives Medal

Speaking after receiving the Legion's Distinguished Service Medal, General Marshall said:

"Now at last we are ready to carry the war to the enemy, all overseas, thank God, with a power and force that we hope will bring this conflict to an early conclusion.

"But please remember that this phase is just about to begin, a point which seems not to be understood by our people here at home, possibly because they are far removed from the agonies of war except for those whose sons or husbands have been engaged in the fighting."

Successes in the Mediterranean, Marshall said, will free huge naval forces for the war against Japan.

President Sends Message

"We are similarly engaged in planning regarding other forces, particularly air," he said, "and it will probably interest you as much as it will discourage the Japanese to learn that our most difficult problem is to find sufficient bases from which to operate the vast forces which are to be poured into the Pacific . . ."

President Roosevelt, in a message read to the convention by the legion's national commander, Roane Waring of Memphis, said every American's duty, both to himself and to his country, was "in increasing his effort in the war job he has, or in getting into a war job if he hasn't already done so."

"In certain fields particularly where the need might not at the moment look large but where we shall not have time to prepare should the actuality arise, increased effort and awareness are needed," he went on. "Civilian defense is an example of this sort of latent need. We don't wait until the house catches fire to be sure that our community has an up-to-date active fire department."

3-Point Program

A three-point program, to insure world peace after the war and to safeguard the vital interests of the United States, was advocated by Louis Johnson, former Assistant Secretary of War. He proposed in a prepared speech:

A good neighbor policy effective throughout the world.

An arrangement for "more or less continuous discussion and examination between all nations of any situations which may give cause for trouble or which may menace war."

An agreement that all the nations will use the force they have to assist in seeing "that the law is kept and the peace maintained."

British-American Connection In Pacific

Once it is clear how indispensable is a British-American alliance in the Atlantic, it will also become clear that the alliance is necessary to the defense of the Pacific. American naval power in the Pacific must, in order to be effective, hold securely a chain of bases from continental United States through Hawaii, Wake, Guam and the Japanese mandated islands to the Philippines. It is, however, a line which cannot easily be held securely unless there is an anchor at the other end. This anchor can be provided only by China. The possibility of any direct attack upon Japan herself depends upon having China as an ally, and for its full success it depends also upon having Russia as an ally.

We shall examine our relations with Russia in the next chapter. Let us note here, however, that we are powerless alone to open the ports of China. The Chinese armies and American Air Forces in China can be built up and maintained only because India is an ally of China and of the United States. It is only from India that Burma can be reconquered and the Burma Road reopened. Is it not, therefore, undeniable that American commitments in the Atlantic and the Pacific dictate the need for an alliance with the British Commonwealth of Nations and with the empire?

No doubt there are, between the British and Americans, conflicting commercial interests at some points, and there are some unhappy memories and some social difficulties. But only by making sure that the vital common interest in security is settled can the lesser conflicts of interests be dealt with safety by open discussion and by negotiation. Only when it is certain that the two great systems of states—the British commonwealth and the American republics—will not go to war with each other, and that neither will permit the other to be destroyed, will there exist the security within which they can safely work out their differences.

The British commonwealth is both inside and outside the area of America's defensive commitments. Canada lies in the midst of it; Australia and New Zealand within it. Thus the overthrow of the American position in the world would mean the break-up of the British commonwealth. At the same time the citadel of British power is the United Kingdom, and the outlying strong points from Gibraltar to Singapore are at the strategic frontiers of the Americas. Thus the overthrow of the British position in the world would mean a revolutionary change in the system of defense within which the American republics have lived for over a century.

There are twenty American republics and, counting Eire and South Africa, six British nations within this community. All are self-governing. The sovereignty of of their independence is attested by the fact that Eire within the British commonwealth and the Argentine and Chile within the Pan-American system have been free to remain neutral. This is proof that the British commonwealth is a commonwealth and not an empire, that the association of American republics is not the facade of United States imperialism.

It is a demonstrated fact that London cannot and does not dominate so near, so weak, and so strategically important a dominion as Eire, but must treat with it as a sovereign independent state. It has been demonstrated that the United States can not and does not dominate on the crucial issue of war and peace American republics like the Argentine and Chile. How insubstantial then is the fear that Britain could dominate a powerful nation like the United States, or be dominated by us.

The fall of France in 1940 was a conclusive demonstration that France also is a member of the great defensive system in which the American republics live. The fall of France laid Spain and Portugal open to the possibility of invasion and domination. This in turn opened up the question of the security of the Spanish and Portuguese island stepping-stones in the Atlantic. The fall of France gave Germany the sea and air bases from which Britain was besieged and American shipping along our eastern shore subjected to a devastating raid. The fall of France uncovered the west coast of Africa from above Casablanca to Dakar, and opened up the threat of a seaborne and air-borne invasion of South America. The fall of France had equally momentous consequences in the Pacific. The surrender of French Indo-China to Japan completed the envelopment of the Philippines, and provided the base from which Japan conquered Burma and closed the Burma Road.

It follows that France is primarily a member of the same community to which the United States belongs. The security of France is an American interest, and the security of the American position is a French interest. The same holds true, for the same reasons, of Spain and Portugal. The Netherlands is also one of the outer bastions of both France and Britain. And so is Belgium, which has an empire on the Atlantic. Another member of the Atlantic community is Denmark, which on the northern approaches to the American continent holds Greenland as a colony. Norway, too, is a member. For Norway is a country which in relation to Europe is strategically an island lying on the outer limits of the Atlantic world.

Thus we see that the Atlantic Ocean is not the frontier between Europe and the Americas. It is the inland sea of a community of nations allied with one another by geography, history and vital necessity.

The members of this community may not all love one another and they have many conflicting interests. But this is true of any community except perhaps the community of the saints. The test of whether a community exists is not whether we have learned to love our neighbors but whether, when put to the test, we find that we do act as neighbors. By that test centuries of experience have shown that there is peace and order on this side of the Atlantic only when there is peace and order among our neighbors on the other side of the Atlantic. Whenever they have been involved in great wars the New World has been involved.

The security of this community, which has its geographical center in the great basin of the Atlantic, turns upon the relations of the two great powers—Britain and the United States. In this area they have the arsenals and military formations necessary for waging war. Therefore, their alliance is the nucleus of force around which the security of the whole region must necessarily be organized.

The Gallup Poll . . .

By George Gallup
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 21.—If the proposal to lower the voting age to 18, as voted into effect in Georgia last month, were put to a public referendum in the ten States with the largest voting populations, it would win majority support today in six States, but face a close fight in the other four.

On the theory that if men of 18 are old enough to be drafted they are old enough to vote, bills to lower the voting age were introduced into the Legislatures of 31 States last year, and following adoption of the proposal by Georgia in a public referendum there has been talk of amending the Federal Constitution to make the change universal.

The attitude of the people in the ten States with the largest number of votes cast in 1940 was measured by the Institute on the issue as follows:

"Congress may be called upon to consider a constitutional amendment to allow persons 18, 19 and 20 years old to vote in elections. Would you like to have your Congressman vote for or against this proposal?"

The vote of the 10 States follows:

	For	Against	Undecided
New York ...	55%	40%	5%
Pennsylvania.	53	40	7
Illinois	48	47	5
Ohio	51	43	6
California ...	52	42	6
Michigan	52	44	4
Massachusetts	47	46	7
New Jersey .	58	36	6
Missouri	48	47	5
Indiana	49	44	7

The States which show a majority in favor in the survey are New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, California, Michigan and New Jersey. In the remaining States—Illinois, Massachuseets, Missouri and Indiana—there are more voters in favor of the proposal than against it, but the favorable vote is less than a majority.

The above figures indicate what would likely happen if there were a full turnout of voters in any referendum held in those States on the lower voting age issue. In Georgia, only about one-sixth of the State's voters took part in the referendum last month which resulted in adoption of the 18-year-old voting age by a large majority.

The chief obstacle in the path of Nation-wide adoption of the measure is the likelihood of vigorous opposition from Republican leaders. A lower voting age would benefit the Democratic Party more than the Republican Party because young voters tend to be Democratic. The Democratic leanings of the young people have been shown in many public opinion surveys and in analyses of recent elections.

Renegotiation Reform

Single Board, Super-Tax Urged

Senator Hatch (Democrat) of New Mexico, proposed yesterday that a single Government board be set up to take charge of war contract renegotiations now handled by half a dozen separate agencies.

This proposal and accompanying changes in the renegotiations law were contained in a bill presented to the Senate while a group of House Naval Affairs Committee members called for termination of the renegotiations law January 1, 1944, and future recovery of "excessive" war profits through a supertax which would allow for conversion of industrial plants to peace production.

Is Substitute Proposal

The Naval Affairs group headed by Representative Maas (Republican) of Minnesota, prepared the plan as a substitute for recommendations drafted by the Naval Committee's staff and approved by Chairman Vinson (Democrat) of Georgia, to keep the renegotiation law and have the Government pay for postwar industrial reconversion.

Maas said the proposed supertax would levy up to 85 per cent on the net 20 per cent margin of excess profits which industry is allowed to retain before contracts are renegotiated.

Senator Hatch, who pointed out that his bill grew out of studies on renegotiation by his subcommittee of the Truman National Defense investigating committee, declared that experiences of the past 18 months "indicate that some renegotiations procedure is still necessary."

He said that while the excess profits tax is effective in "a large way" to prevent excessive profits, there were still "scandalous' cases of profiteering by a few war contractors. He called renegotiation a powerful weapon "to guard against unpatriotic and selfish practices."

Impartial Appeal Agency

Senator Hatch said that the proposed single seven-member price adjustment board would coordinate renegotiations now under control of the War and Navy Departments, Maritime Commission, Treasury, War Shipping Administration, and four subsidiaries of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. Besides coordinating the work, he said that the single board would make possible publication of price adjustment policies, and provide an impartial appeal in cases of "basic policy or obvious injustice."

A second major part of his bill would establish an automatic exemption to reduce the number of companies which would have to go through renegotiation. To win such exemption, he explained, the contractor would have to show that his profits before the deduction of Federal income taxes and excess profits taxes did not exceed 8 per cent of his total sales. Second, he would have to show that his total sales were not more than three times his average total sales during the years 1938 to 1939 inclusive.

2 WPB Agents Seized by FBI

By the Associated Press

Francis A. Capell, 40, and Richard C. Atherton, 32, investigators for the War Production Board, were arrested in New York yesterday by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation on charges of bribery, Director J. Edgar Hoover announced.

Hoover said the two men were arrested at a clothing manufacturer's office immediately after a package containing $1000 had been handed to Capell.

Hoover said the manufacturer was advised by the two men last Saturday that he had violated WPB regulations, but was told if he complied with requirements the investigators would "forget" the matter for $1000.

Capell has been employed by the WPB since last July, and is a former Westchester County (N. Y.) peace officer. He lives at Sunnyside, Long Island, N. Y.

Atherton has been with the WPB since December, 1942, and previously was employed by a New York accounting firm. His home is in Brooklyn.

Army Authorizes "Discharge" Buttons

A lapel button to be worn by those honorably discharged from the Army during the present war has been authorized by the War Department and is now being manufactured, it was revealed yesterday.

Representative Rogers (Republican) of Massachusetts said yesterday the War Department had informed her that full information as to procedure in obtaining such buttons would be released as soon as enough are available. The War Department announcement followed on the heels of congressional demands for such insignia to prevent the honorably discharged veterans from being called slackers.

Taber Urges Removal of Davis, Calls OWI Continuing Menace

By Edwin D. Gritz
Post Staff Writer

OWI Director Elmer Davis and Representative Taber (Republican) of New York exchanged heavy fire yesterday as the information agency became a major objective of the first economy drive of the fall session of Congress.

Besides urging the removal of Davis, Taber declared that OWI's operations "are a continuing menace."

Davis, in a formal statement, countered with: "Congressman Taber is wrong as usual. He says our overseas activities are getting worse instead of better. The men we are fighting, the German and Japanese propaganda agencies, take a different view."

Taber, ranking Republican on the House Appropriations Committee and frequent OWI critic, expressed his intentions of moving for reorganization of OWI.

Representative Johnson (Democrat) of Oklahoma, member of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Deficiencies, also warned that not only OWI but all other agencies not directly tied with the war effort face difficulty in obtaining more funds from Congress.

Pointing out that "a great propaganda battle is now being fought in enemy and occupied countries," Davis said that the Japanese and Germans have warned their countries against the effectiveness of American and British propaganda. He also pointed out that the July 4 issue of Das Reich, magazine organ of the German propaganda ministry, which is a mouthpiece of Dr. Goebbels himself, said in part:

"The attack of Congressman Taber (last summer) has caused the American public to look more closely into the OWI, its men, and its dollar-devouring giant machinery."

Davis said that Taber's attack on OWI is obviously "of vital interest to Dr. Goebbels, who has found our activities increasingly effective."

London Factories Hum in Subways

London (AP).—A subterranean factory in the tunnel of a London subway produces some of the most complicated electrical devices used by the British Air Ministry. Men and women who are daytime employes of the London passenger transport board comprise the nearly 150 spare-time workers who devote five nights a week to this work.

The tunnel factory, which is at present lined with work benches and lathes, was originally converted for the purpose of making shell cases over two years ago.

OPA Issues Call For Volunteers To Check Prices

Does anybody want to be a price panel assistant?

There'll be no payment for services, since it's all voluntary, but the OPA, currently jousting with the problem of finding enough persons to visit groceries, restaurants and other places of business, to check on violations of price regulations, yesterday issued an apeal for help.

It also announced that classes for would-be price "panelists" would be conducted today and tomorrow at Force School, 1740 Massachusetts ave. nw., at 3, 6 and 8 p. m., both days.

Those willing to help OPA with its problem may join any one of the classes, with the OPA making it easy by having a registrar handy to enroll volunteers.

The OPA cautiously pointed out that volunteer price panel assistants are "not snoopers," but "are to introduce themselves and explain themselves before checking prices in the stores and other places subject to its authority.

Volunteers are urgently needed in the Dupont, Lincoln Park and Kalorama section of the District, OPA said.

Rudy Vallee Will Be Star Of Midnight Bond Shows

LIEUT. RUDY VALLEE and his "Lucky 'leventh" Coast Guard Band, from the Eleventh Naval District, will headline the greatest war bond shows of them all in both Loew's Capitol and the Earle theaters at midnight, Monday, October 4.

Outline of the plans for this intensified drive to move a large number of Series E war bonds of low denominations was the occasion for that luncheon at the 400 Club yesterday, with the District War Activities Committee of the motion picture industry as hosts.

The two performances of "Midnight with the Stars" will run simultaneously, exactly as is done in observance of the President's birthday celebrations. All of the stars on the bill will appear at both houses. They will include the combined stage shows of the Earle and Capitol theaters, plus whatever other outstanding artists and personalities are appearing that week on the legitimate stage and in the night clubs. According to present schedule, the program will consume a full two hours and a half and consist exclusively of flesh-and-blood entertainment of the first rank.

Rudy Vallee and his Coast Guard Band of 40 pieces would be a whole show in itself, what with all the specialty artists appearing with it on its present tour, in which Washington was included only recently by quick and special arrangement.

Admission to the midnight performances will be to bond purchasers only. Fifty-five hundred bond seats, with face values ranging from $25 to $100 go on sale today at every theater in the Greater Washington area that is an authorized issuing agency. Purchase prices, of course, range from only $18.75 to $75.

These seats will be reserved by price sections, but not by individual seat locations. There will be a reserved $25 section, $50 section, and so on in each theater. Only the actual seating capacities of the Capitol and Earle will be sold.

It is important to the public to know that these bond seats can be purchased only at the issuing-agent theaters in the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia. It is anticipated that by reason of the magnitude and quality of the attraction, all seats will have been disposed of by September 30, when the 15-billion-dollar Third War Loan drive officially ends. Bonds must bear a September date to be credited to the drive.

Here, it seems to me, is the ideal opportunity to aid in putting the drive over, while enjoying one of the greatest all-star bills ever rounded up for one evening in the theater. Under the co-chairmanship of John J. Payette, of the Warner interests, and Carter T. Barron, of Loew's, the War Activities Committee, with the full cooperation of every showman in this territory, is bending all its energies—in cooperation again with the Treasury and the Coast Guard Service—to make this the prime event of the whole War Loan drive for the small bond buyer. It remains only for the amusement-seeker with a patriotic urge to take advantage of the opportunity.

In the Same Groove

Also with a view to lending impetus to the final days of the bond campaign, A. E. Lichtman, president of Lichtman Theaters, has announced that prizes will be awarded the four leading war bond and stamp sellers among the District's Negro school children during the last week in September.

With full approval of first assistant superintendent, Garnet C. Wilkinson, all school children in Divisions 10-13 are eligible to compete. Stamps and bonds will be handled directly through the public schools and all the pupils need do is contact their teachers or principals.

First prize will be a $50 war bond; second, a $25 bond; third, $15 in war stamps, and fourth, $10 in stamps.

When Sidney Kingsley's "The Patriots" is presented here later in the season by the Playwrights' Company as a Theater Guild-American Theater Society subscription play, Walter Hampden will be starred in the role of Thomas Jefferson. In his distinguished support will be Cecil Humphreys, as George Washington; Julie Haydon, as Jefferson's daughter, Patsy, and Guy Sorel as Alexander Hamilton, Jefferson's chief opponent in the turbulent years from 1790 to 1800, when all was not going too well with the Republic.

Since this seems to be a preponderantly War Bond column, this would seem to be as good a time as any to make known that the Roxyettes sold $48,000 in bonds at Monday night's rally in the Earle Theater. That is quite a step ahead toward their goal of $500,000 in the Third War Loan drive.

Add second paragraph above: Sonya Stokowski, daughter of Leopold Stokowski, famous conductor, has been added to the cast of Sidney Kingsley's "The Patriots." She will portray the role of Mrs. Alexander Hamilton.

Gwen Dew, the only woman correspondent in the Far East when Japan attacked, will appear in person on the stage at RKO-Keith's Theater, tomorrow night at 9:15 o'clock, in conjunction with the first day's Washington showings of Jimmy Young's "Behind the Rising Sun." Representing Newsweek and the Detroit News in the Orient, Miss Dew was taken prisoner by the Japs in Hong Kong and held in a concentration camp for six months. She is a personal friend of James R. Young and also has written a best-seller of her experiences, "Prisoner of the Japs."

Cotrasts

Lunched with Clara Belle Walsh, and scattered around the room were the Col. Jimmy Roosevelts, Vera Zorina, Nunnally Johnson, Mrs. Merwyn Leroy, Square Shooter Gene Buck; at next table Frank Freeman, Eddie Mannix and Walter Wanger. Outside the window, beside a shimmering swimming pool, beautiful and bronzed bodies flexed their muscles, while I listened to Ruth Mitchell, the late Gen. Billy's sister, and Capt. Fred Winkler swap stories about foreign prisons they were in and the brutal treatment they received. Ruth was in 11 in 13 months, he in 5. After lunch we repaired to the Walsh apartment. Winkler removed his shirt, and I doubt if any one has ever had as many sword cuts as he received and lived to show them. Believe me, if all you folks who hesitate about buying bonds could see those scare you wouldn't hesitate. He was left for dead, piled in a truck with 17 other bodies. His escape is told graphically in his own words in "Four Years of Nazi Torture" . . . Miss Mitchell's escape was put through practically single handed by Mrs. Carveth Wells, after the darndest battle with Sumner Welles and the State Department. Ruth Mitchell's book, "The Serbs Chose War," will be out next month—after the OWI delayed its printing for a month. She lectures here at the Philharmonic October 3, and she's been speaking three and four times daily at our defense factories to help speed up war work.

Worth Fighting For

Freedom for those two is not an idle word. They make you want to go out and take on another job the minute you've finished your day's chore and sell bonds instead of sleeping. Ruth was condemned to death. She's certain the reason she wasn't shot was because she told the Germans she was related to Admiral Richard Byrd and United sister of Billy Mitchell. At that time the Germans were terrified of starting a war with us. She told me that while driving west with the Carveth Wellses they stopped at a New Mexico hotel. The porter was very solicitous, so Mr. Wells, thinking to impress him, said, "You know, this is Miss Mitchell, who's been in 11 foreign prisons." The porter replied, "O, that's all right, lady, I've got an uncle in Sing Sing right now."

Selznick Maker Offer

David Selznick has made Miss Mitchell an offer for "The Serbs Chose War." Mrs. Wells has a Hollywood job. She'll chaperon her famous mynah bird, Mr. Raffles, which she picked up in the jungle after its mother had been killed by a snake. Mr. Raffles supports Dorothy Lamour in her next picture. How Mrs. Wells saved its life and trained it is still another story.

$50,000 Bond Fixed For 2 Spy Suspects

Detroit, Sept. 21 (AP).—Mrs. Emma Leonhardt and Mrs. Marianne von Moltke, indicted by a Federal grand jury last week with six other persons on charges of conspiracy under the Espionage Act, stood mute on arraignment this afternoon before United States District Judge Edward J. Moinet and were ordered held under bond of $50,000 each.

Mrs. Leonhardt's husband, Carl Leonhardt, has pleaded guilty.

The Leonhardt home, Federal investigators said, was a meeting place for members of the group indicted.

Mrs. Von Moltke is the wife of Heinrich A. von Moltke, suspended Wayne University instructor.

Easier to Smile Than Hurl a Can, Grocers Are Told

The Commerce Department advised the nation's grocers yesterday:

"No matter how much you may want to throw a tin can at an overbearing customer, it is much wiser to smile and take it."

It is one of more than two-score suggestions by the department in a "wartime guide for retail grocers."

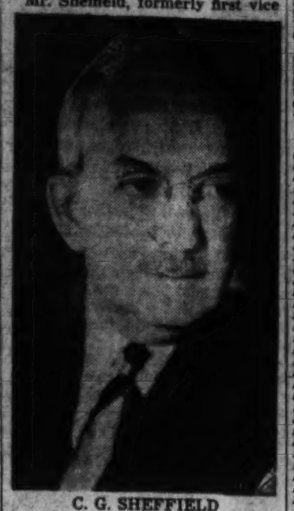
Meat Output Up 15%

Chicago, Sept. 21 (AP).—Production of meat in federally inspected plants during the last week increased 15 per cent, the War Meat Board reported today.

C. G. Sheffield Elected Head Of Garfinckel

Clarence G. Sheffield has been elevated to the presidency of Julius Garfinckel & Co., Inc., succeeding William E. Schmid, it was announced yesterday. Mr. Schmid, retired at his own request, was elected to the newly created post of chairman of the board.

Mr. Sheffield, formerly first vice president, has been associated with the Washington department store since its incorporation in 1939.



C. G. SHEFFIELD

Prior to coming to Washington, Mr. Sheffield was associated with the New York City department store of B. Altman & Co. for eight years.

At the same time it was announced that Raymond A. Lee has been elected comptroller of the company, also a newly created post. Reelected officers are: Miss Elisabeth Fairall, vice president; Gordon A. O'Neill, vice president; Jennings A. Snider, secretary and treasurer, and Irene W. Streeter, assistant treasurer.

Reelected to the directorate for three-year terms were Richard P. Dunn and Mr. Sheffield. Other directors are Miss Fairall, Murray McConnel, Mr. Schmid and Sidney F. Talliaferro.

The elections took place at a meeting of the board of directors, following a stockholders' session Monday in Fairfax, Va. Shareholders ratified four proposals, one of which was an amendment to the charter authorizing the issuance and sale of additional preferred and common stock. Details of the latter plan were revealed upon registration last week with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Frazer Resigns As Willys Head

Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 21.—Joseph W. Frazer, president and general manager of Willys-Overland Motors for five years, today announced his resignation, effective September 30.

The board, meeting today, accepted the resignation. Ward M. Canaday, chairman of the board, will head Willys-Overland pending appointment of a successor.

Frazer, 51, made no immediate announcement of his future plans and gave no reason for the resignation. He replaced David R. Wilson, another motor industry pioneer, as president of Willys-Overland on January 19, 1939.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Sept. 21 (AP).—Strength in cash markets and in Winnipeg wheat together with scattered buying stimulated a moderate price advance, led by oats, of most grain futures on the board of trade today.

Evening-up operations in the September deliveries, in which trading terminates tomorrow, tended, however, to impart an unsettled tone to the general market, particularly in rye where the nearest delivery sold off fractionally near the close in listless trading.

Range follows:

Wheat—	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.
September	1.48⅞	1.48⅞	1.48¼	1.48⅛
December	1.48⅛	1.48⅝	1.48⅛	1.48⅛
May	1.48⅝	1.49⅛	1.48⅝	1.48
July	1.48¾	1.48¾	1.48¼	1.48⅝

Gus Dorazio Given Split Decision Over Hart

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Out in Chicago, our friend Tommy Devine has fallen for a likely tale in crediting the University of Michigan's coach, Fritz Crisler, with the invention of the spinner play by happy accident in 1931. Tsk, tsk, Tommy, maybe you shouldn't have written that story.

POVICH

According to the Crisler version, he was coaching Minnesota one afternoon 12 years ago against Northwestern and Jack Manders was his fullback when all of a sudden the spinner play developed by mistake. With the ball supposed to go to the left halfback, the center misdirected the pass and gave it to Manders.

"Jack was surprised and the first thing he tried to do was to get rid of the ball," Crisler recalls. "He tried to hand it to the halfback but he wouldn't take it. So the only thing left was for Manders to spin around and hit it out on his own. He went up the middle for a good gain. I said to myself then 'better put a number on that play' and I've worked with it ever since."

It's a pretty story all right, and it may indeed, be true, but if so Crisler had not been a very observing football coach because back in the East football coaches had been using the spinner play for several seasons. The most notable exponent of the spinner, and perhaps the man who can take credit for originating it, is Dr. H. C. (Curly) Byrd, then the coach at Maryland University and now the institution's president.

Byrd sprang the spinner play on his opposition back in the mid-twenties and on one occasion when his Maryland team walked through the Western Maryland eleven of Dick Harlow, Harlow sought out Byrd after the game and asked him as an old friend to "show me how you run that play. I don't know how to stop it, and I'd like to use it." Byrd diagrammed the play for Harlow.

The spinner man on Byrd's teams was a 180-pound fullback, Gerald (Snitz) Snyder, who in one session back in 1928 gained a total of 1300 yards, mostly with the spinner. The play helped Byrd's teams to knock off Yale twice in a row when Yale was still a power in football. Snyder used both the spinner and the fake spinner, but when he carried the ball himself he was the personification of leg-drive through the middle.

Byrd set up the spinner play with some shenanigans in his line play featuring the cross-block by the men up front in his unbalanced line. With his guards or tackles, or one of each, hitting the opposition from an angle, the holes were opened for Snyder on the fake reverse that evolved as a spinner. His double-wing formation enabled Byrd to provide the fakery.

Maryland never had another fullback who could work the play as well as Snyder, although the efficacy of the spinner was proved one day against V. M. I., even in a game when Maryland was beaten, 7 to 6. Bill Evans, now a captain in the Marines, was Snyder's successor at fullback, and on the spinner he broke far across the scrimmage line 14 times. Eleven times he was brought down by the safety man, but he never gained more than 18 yards. On that afternoon, Byrd maintains, Snyder would have scored a half dozen touchdowns with his ability to go all the way.

If Byrd desires to claim credit for another football innovation, he can point out as well that it was he who probably originated the 6-3-2 defense in a year when the accepted defenses were the 7-2-2 or the 7-3-1. His Maryland teams stopped Yale's famed off-tackle power plays with the six-man line that featured three backers-up.

The spinner was supposed to be on its way out a few years ago, and it has, indeed, been abandoned by many coaches after the first wave of enthusiasm for it. The defense has had great success in stopping it with the five-man line and thus a more flexible secondary defense, and the spinner doesn't work so well, anyway, off other than a double-wing formation which has now fallen into the discard in favor of the single-wing and the T.

When he joined the Nats three weeks ago, Buck Newsom asked Manager Ossie Bluege for the job of pitching against the Yankees in his first start for the Washington team. It was no bit of bravado. Newsom was simply being very canny.

"They look like the softest touch in the league to me," said Newsom. "I'd rather pitch against the Yanks than any other batting order in the league. They've got more guys who can be pitched to. They're nothing to be scared of this season."

Newsom has been accused of many things, but the big galoot is a pretty shrewd operator when it comes to sizing up the opposition. Two of his three starts for the Nats have been against the Yankees, and he has beaten them twice, allowing only two earned runs in the two games. One of those runs, in fact, bore a taint.

It looks now as if Newsom had the Yankees pegged correctly. Certainly on their hitting they don't measure up as a team that should be in the world series. "The only guys on that club who figure to make trouble for a pitcher are Keller, who isn't hitting, and Bill Dickey. If you can sidearm that Bill Johnson, he belongs to you," quoth Buck.

Late Rally By Soldier Falls Short

Only 3203 Fans See Close Bout At Uline Arena; Streak Snapped

Post Staff Writer

By the slim margin of a split decision, Gus Dorazio, 200 1-2, Philadelphia Italian last night brought to an end the sensational winning streak of Al Hart, 226, Army War College Negro soldier, by taking a 10 round verdict that was as close as the proverbial dead heat at Uline Arena.

Referee Eddie Lafond and Judge Frank Schuyler cast their votes for Dorazio, Lafond giving him a 91 to 88 margin while Schuyler saw it even closer, 94 to 92. Judge Bob Eller had Hart on top 94 to 89 but it was not enough to bring to an end Hart's great streak which had previously included 23 victories and two draws in his past 25 starts.

Contrary to expectations, Hart not only took all the terrific inside pounding to the midsection which Dorazio dished out, but actually was coming along faster at the finish. Had it gone a couple of more rounds, it is doubtful if Dorazio would have been on top, as Hart made his best showing by far in the ninth and tenth heats.

Dorazio Fades

Dorazio, long known as a great finisher, was definitely on the defensive at the finish. Dorazio had won five of the first eight rounds and was apparently coasting along to a fairly easy victory when Hart made his great rally that all but pulled him through.

Gus was throwing his vaunted left hook that was boring into Hart's midsection for those first eight rounds. In the third he suddenly shifted and sent a couple of rights to Hart's face that brought blood from the big Negro soldier's nose. Again in the seventh, Dorazio had Hart bleeding slightly.

Hart was counterpunching beautifully, and at odd moments made Gus stop short when he unloosened one of his copyrighted body attacks, shoving a vicious left and a hard right to Dorazio's face, which stopped the Philadelphian short.

Style Shift Costly

Dorazio, for the most part, forsook his crouching and weaving style, and it was then that Hart scored most of his points. When Gus weaved and bobbed, Hart had trouble connecting with any degree of success.

The Post score sheet had the fight exactly even, with Dorazio winning five of the eight rounds and Hart taking the ninth and tenth by comfortable margins, which gave each fighter an 89-point total at the finish.

In defeat, Hart showed more boxing prowess and ability than he has shown in many of his victories, many of which were unpopular. He showed he could take care of himself against a dangerous body puncher, reputedly his weak spot, and in the later stages, came on to outslug and outhit Dorazio. But in the eyes of the judges and Referee Lafond, Dorazio had too big an early lead, and so it was that Gus was given a break that atoned for what he thought was a bad deal last spring when Joe Baksi was given the decision over him in much the same manner.

Draws Only 3203

Dorazio thus qualified for a shot at Jimmy Bivins, which promoter Goldie Ahearn has lined up for Uline Arena on October 12. The fight, postponed from Monday night and shunted to Uline Arena from Griffith Stadium, drew only 3203 fans who paid a gross gate of $7036 far below Ahearn's expectations.

Mayon Padlo, 149, Philadelphia, who was good enough to hold Fritzi Zivic to a split 10-round decision in Zivic's Pittsburgh home town, had little trouble in recording an eight-round verdict over Jimmy Morrison, 143½, Newark, N. J., Negro in the semifinal, showing a fine left jab and a nice right throughout.

Five-round preliminaries saw Eddie White, 195, New York, knock Otis Harris, 191½, of the Army, kicking in 1:07 of the third round; Tee Hubert, 163, Washington, maintain his unbeaten status by knocking out one Leroy Fleming, 161, in 2:48 of the first round and Speedy Duvall, 158, Washington, outpoint Lou Mays, 163, of Des Moines, in a slugging affair.

Barons Turn Back Grays, 4-2, As 4000 See Series Opener

The Birmingham Black Barons won the first game of the world series from the Washington Homestead Grays before 4,000 last night at Griffith Stadium, 4-2, behind the pitching of Al Sadler.

Johnny Wright, on the mound for the Grays, struck out eight, walked none, but allowed eight hits in the six innings he pitched. Ray Brown relieved him. Of the three runs made off Wright's hurling, only one was earned, the others cropping out of errors by John Gibson and Sam Bankhead.

Felix McLaurin started the fireworks in the first inning with a double to right scorching past Leonard at first, and came home when Sampson lined to right. Clyde Sampson, who doubled, crossed the plate on Gibson's error, a bad throw to second.

Cool Papa Bell led off for the Grays with a triple to the left-field wall, and scored on Buck Leonard's long fly to center. The scoring ended until the fourth, when Lester Lockett doubled over Bell's head, and came home on Lindsay's drive to left.

In the seventh Walker and Radcliffe touched Brown up for hits in a row, and McLaurin was safe on Bankhead's error which allowed Walker to cross the plate. Sadler walked Leonard and Gibson in the ninth, and Tom Easterling hit safely to right scoring Leonard, but was caught off first trying to stretch the hit to a double.

The second game of the series will be played at Bugle Field in Baltimore Thursday night, and the third game at Griffith Stadium Friday night.

Browns Here In Twi-Night Double Bill

Johnny Niggeling, Candini on Mound For Nats Tonight; Schedule Changed

The Nats will seek their tenth straight victory tonight, with no objection to making it eleven in a row, in a twilight-night doubleheader with the Browns commencing at 6:30 p. m.

With the dual objective of preserving even their slender chance to stay in the pennant race and at least maintaining their three-game grip on second place, the Nats will be meeting, in the Browns, a team they have licked 13 times in 19 games this season.

Johnny Niggeling and his knuckle-ball will be tossed at his former mates by Manager Ossie Bluege in one of the games. Bluege's other starting pitcher will be Milo Candini. Both have contributed victories to the Nats' nine-game streak. In a previous start against the Browns, Niggeling was beaten, 2-1.

Clark Griffith has shuffled the Nats' remaining schedule to provide for a night game with the Browns tomorrow. Friday and Saturday are open dates, to be followed with a Sunday double-header against the White Sox, and another twilight-night twin bill against the Sox on Monday.

Tuesday is an open date but the Cleveland Indians move in on Wednesday for a twi-night doubleheader and a night game on Thursday. The Nats will close their season with single games against Detroit on the following Saturday and Sunday.

With all teams idle yesterday, the Nats remained nine games behind the league-leading Yankees and three games ahead of the third place Indians.

Dallas, Sept. 21 (AP).—Abel Gonzales, triple-threat star of the Southern Methodist University football team, was ordered today to report to Notre Dame September 30, under the Naval V-7 program.

Gonzales is the Southwest Conference's top passer. Ray Rasor, star guard also has been ordered to report to Notre Dame.

Terrapins Ready For Opener With Curtis Bay Guards

The University of Maryland's first-string line-up is just about set for the opening football game Saturday against the Curtis Bay Coast Guard Cutters from Baltimore.

Only two starting positions appeared yesterday to be uncertain as Coach Dr. Clarence E. Spears ran his charges through their paces.

At center three squad members were running neck and neck, Percy Wolfe, on the freshman team last year; Alex Bobenko, Jayvee center last year, and Jim Ansdorff, a freshman.

Three backs appeared in the running also for a starting halfback post, Bill Hickman, Bob Hillis and Gordie Taylor.

Men who saw no action in the practice game Saturday against the Army Specialized Training Corps team at the university held scrimmage sessions last night while the first-stringers ran through lengthy signal drills.

Lustig Pays $33,000 for Va. Yearling

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 21.—A total of 67 yearlings from nine breeding farms in Maryland and Virginia were sold at auction today for $182,350 at Westbury, Long Island, in the eastern division of the annual Saratoga yearling sales, transplanted this year because of the war.

Top bid of the day was $33,000 which Henry Lustig, New York restauranteur and owner of the Longchamps Stable, gave for a chestnut colt by Stimulus out of Heloise, by Friar Rock. The colt was in the ten-horse consignment from the Nydrie stud of Ray Alan Van Cliff of Esmont, Va.

The 67 yearlings brought an average of $2,722 per head, which horsemen said was just about double that brought by the consignments from the same farms a year ago.

In addition to the Stimulus colt, Lustig also bought three other yearlings, paying a total of $40,600 for the quartet. Lou Tufano, Long Island contractor who owns Market Wise, also bid in four for $5,300 and the Belvedere farm of A. Garden of Baltimore took the same number out of the ring for $3,700.

Restrictions On Grid Seat Sale Ordered

ODT Requests All Colleges, Schools Not to Sell Tickets Outside Own Areas

Office of Defense Transportation yesterday called upon all school, college and other football teams to restrict sales of tickets to residents of the area in which the game is to be played.

The already heavy overload on intercity transportation systems was given as the reason.

ODT also asked that football teams use coach accommodations in trains and to refrain from making reservations until the day before departure.

It was explained that football teams, whose playing schedules are fixed in advance, can obtain reservations well ahead of travel dates, but members of the armed forces and those traveling on war business often must travel on short notice. Deferring reservations will keep space open for essential travel, ODT said.

(The Sale of tickets for the 1942 Army-Navy game was restricted to residents of the immediate Annapolis (Md.) area by presidential order. This was the only ticket restriction enforced last season.)

Two Rough Boys Head Rassle Card At Arena Tonight

Cowboy Luttrall and Babe Sharkey, two behemoths of the mat who mix fisticuffing with wrestling, will headline tonight's show at Turner's Arena.

The boys are down for a finish match and both have hopes of finishing it early—possibly with a right to the jaw or a slam in the body.

The semiwindup brings together the Blue Streak, a masked grappler, and Dick Lever of Salt Lake City.

A couple of shipyard workers—Johnny Long of Baltimore and Jim Stefano of Philadelphia—will clash in a special 30-minute bout. Michele Leone, the Boston Italian, will take on Tommy Mahoney, while Sailor Ed Clay and Lloyd Mathis will raise the curtain at 8:45 o'clock.

Two Halfbacks Face Release By Redskins

Unless another National Football League club has something to offer in the way of a trade, the Redskins will probably release one and possibly two halfbacks via the waiver route before leaving for Buffalo tomorrow night for Sunday's exhibition game with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Only in the halfback department is the Redskins' 29-man squad overstocked. Coach Dutch Bergman is working with 5 guards, 5 centers, 5 tackles, 2 ends, 2 fullbacks, 2 blocking backs and 8 halfbacks, one of which, Jack Jenkins, will be available only for the first league game, October 10, here, with Brooklyn.

Three new players—Ted Williams, Ted Lapka and Joe Gibson—joined the squad for yesterday morning's workout in College Park, all gained in weekend deals.

In the Cardinals the Redskins will meet a team which won only three league games last year. Phil Handler, in his tenth year with the Cards but head coach for the first time, has a squad of 12 holdovers, the most prominent of which is Marshall Goldberg, and the rest rookies, including the great college end from Boston College, Don Currivan.

Cardinals Buy Sacramento Star

St. Louis, Sept. 21 (AP).—William E. Byerly, right-handed pitcher from Sacramento, will report to the St. Louis Cardinals tomorrow as a possible help to the team's shorthanded mound staff during the remainder of the season.

The Cardinals purchased Byerly and Infielder-Outfielder Escal Ora Burnett from their Sacramento farm. Burnett will report next spring.

The Browns also acquired two new players, purchasing Weldon West, southpaw pitcher, from Memphis of the Southern Association and signing 18-year-old Henry Schmulbach, a second baseman with Washington University of St. Louis.

4 Lettermen On Gonzaga's Squad of 38

With four of last year's lettermen back in uniform and a much lighter line than it has had for the last two years, Gonzaga High will open its football schedule Friday against the National Training School for Boys at the Bladensburg Road school's field.

Of the returning men, only Jimmy Nalls at left guard was a regular last year, Coach "Bo" Richards said. Two others, Tony Musilino and John Flanagan are battling for the right guard position and Chester Coakley, who alternated at backfield positions last year is playing quarterback. The rest of the 38-man squad is pretty green, Richards said, but they make up for it in enthusiasm.

The rest of Gonzaga's schedule follows: October 3, Mt. St. Joseph at Baltimore; 9, Devitt Prep, no site selected; 15, Georgetown Prep, no site selected; 24, Calvert Hall at Baltimore; 29, open; Nov. 5, open; 11, Eastern at Eastern Stadium; 19, St. John's at Griffith Stadium.

Macks Buy Three

Philadelphia, Sept. 21 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics announced today the purchase of Second Baseman Joe Rullo, outfielder Bill Burgoo and Catcher Tony Parisse from the Wilmington Blue Rocks of the Interstate League, with whom the A's have a working agreement.

That's why rationing was born

FEW PEOPLE ARE CROCODILES—they're neither grabbers by intent nor greedy by nature.

But it would be easy to slip into the category of the greedy in times like these. And that's why rationing was born—needed things being scarce must be distributed evenly in fairness to everyone.

Less needed things are less restricted. And only your own Americanism dictates that you buy these sparingly. Buy only what you need. Give the other fellow a chance.

In the same sense of fairness you are limited in your purchase of IMPERIAL. And you can see why this is a needed restraint—all of us must help make the present supply of whiskey last longer, now that distillers are making urgently needed war alcohol instead of whiskey. Remember—one man's banquet may mean another's bare cupboard.

In spite of the whiskey shortage there has been no change in the official price of IMPERIAL except for new federal excise tax in 1942...and OPA adjustments.

Eastern High Green, Light, Willing

Tide to Use T-Formation This Season

Coach Mentzer Looks To 1944, Hopes for Best Friday in Roosevelt Opener

(This is the first of a series of articles on high school football teams of the Washington area.)

The wagon of Eastern High's football hopes is hitched to no star this season, what with an entirely green team, but take Coach Dick Mentzer's word for it and watch Eastern next year.

It's sort of damning a team with the faintest of praise to talk about next year's hopes before this season has even begun, but after all, Eastern was no great shakes last year—finishing third in the Eastern Division—and except for Nicholson at left end is greener than the wilted grass at Eastern Stadium this year.

Wait Until 1944

But next year will be a different story. Of that Mentzer is confident. The entire line, now sophomores will be coming back with this season's experience behind it unless Selective Service lowers the draft age limit below the present 18 years.

"And," Mentzer said yesterday, "all of these boys are going to be good. They have plenty of guts and they're willing to learn."

The line isn't too heavy, of course. Nicholson, only letterman on the squad, weighs 170, and except for Vorobey, who will play right tackle and weighs 180, is the heaviest man on the probable starting line-up. The average is brought down considerably by Cocimano at center, a flyweight 135, and the average of the whole starting team is about 150.

Actually, Mentzer isn't at all sure just how his team will look when it goes on the field against Roosevelt Friday. It had a midfield scrimmage with St. John's last week, but neither team was trying to score, so there were no positive results.

Mentzer, assisted by Woody Smitherman, Eastern's baseball coach, and Frank August, who transferred from Tech this year, has been putting his 40-odd squad through intensive workouts for the last three weeks and is beginning to get some of the rough spots ironed out.

"At least they know what the Notre Dame T-formation is by now and how it's supposed to work," Mentzer said. "We'll see how well they can put it into practice Friday."

Four Los Angeles Players Join Chicubs

Chicago, Sept. 21 (INS).—Four members of the Los Angeles Angels pennant winners in the Pacific Coast League, have become members of the Chicago Cubs tonight.

Although the Angels are owned by the Cubs, the four players were reported transferred to the parent club through a sale.

Eastern's Gordon Drives Through the Line

Bainbridge Grid Coach Pleased After Scrimmage With Navy

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Sept. 21.—Coach Joe Maniaci, Bainbridge Naval Station football mentor, expressed himself as "well pleased with the way the Commodores looked" following a practice scrimmage this afternoon with Navy.

"The scrimmage served to iron out a lot of rough edges before our game against the Camp Lejeune Marines at New River, N. C., next Saturday," Maniaci said. "Frankly, they looked good."

A second backfield was run in by the Bainbridge coach midway in the scrimmage.

The Commodores used the T-formation extensively while Navy employed its single wingback.

This was Navy's second practice scrimmage in four days. The Washington Redskins came over Saturday to give the Tars a stiff workout.

The Middies meet their first scheduled opponent of the 1943 season when they play N. C. Preflight here Saturday.

3 Awarded Medal of 13th Air Force

Maj. Charles B. Lingamfelter, 24, 3928 Livingston st. nw., has been awarded the Air Medal, the War Department announced yesterday.

Lingamfelter

A member of Army Thirteenth Air Force, Air Force, he was decorated for meritorious achievement in 25 operational flights against the enemy in the South Pacific from June 27 to December 23, 1942. He also was presented with the oak leaf cluster for piloting his plane on five "strike" sorties during the period from January 2 to February 10, 1943.

Major Lingamfelter is a native Washingtonian and graduated from Woodrow Wilson, where he was a captain in the cadet corps. He attended George Washington University before enlisting in the Air Corps over three years ago. He received his training at Maxwell Field, Ala. Shot down and wounded in action, he was returned to the United States this summer. In August he visited his aunt and uncle, Capt. and Mrs. Walter Emerson, 1316 Madison st. nw. He is slated to receive the Purple Heart Medal.

His wife and son live with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lingamfelter in Catonsville.

Also receiving Air Medals as members of the 13th Air Force were Lieut. Harry M. Sarratt of South Carolina, who was reported killed in action April 12, 1943, and received his award posthumously, and Staff Sergt. English F. Beach, 6313 Powhatan rd., Riverdale, Md.

Lieutenant Sarratt, a native of South Carolina, had previously been given the posthumous award of the Order of the Purple Heart which was received by his sister, Ruby C. Sarratt, a nurse at Emergency Hospital. His brother, who was educated in Washington schools, is Ensign Claude H. Sarratt. His aunt, Mrs. H. B. Hare, lives at Maryland Courts Apartments, 518 9th st. ne.

Red Cross Golf To Be Played As Scheduled

Although the Class B section of the Times-Herald Cup play scheduled yesterday at Kenwood was postponed due to the soggy condition of the course, the District Golf Association's Mixed Scotch Foursome event will be played as scheduled today at Chevy Chase.

The last tournament of the season for the women golfers in the upper handicap bracket will be played next week, probably on Friday. The postponement will mean a slight extension in the women's schedule as the last scheduled event is the NBC Cup for Class A players next Tuesday at Washington Golf and Country Club. Entries close on Friday.

The Red Cross is already assured of $100 from today's mixed tournament at Chevy Chase from entry fees of $5 per team with 20 duos entered to date. Dr. W. C. Barr, secretary of the DGA, will accept post entries on the tee and field may be doubled by the late starters.

Play will be selective drives and alternate shots with half the combined handicap allowance. Club handicaps may be used. Prizes will be in war stamps.

Sweetser Invited To Kenwood Tourney

Kenwood Pro George Diffenbaugh, who persuaded the board of governors at Kenwood to stage an 18-hole invitation next Thursday, September 30, for pros and amateurs to be invited by the club, yesterday announced Jess Sweetser had been invited to compete.

Sweetser, national amateur champion in 1922 and runner-up in '23, has been playing at Burning Tree since he moved to Washington on a temporary assignment. Prizes will be awarded for low net and low gross scores, with club handicaps prevailing.

100 Houses Offered for Around $1000

Building of the Bolling Field-Camp Springs, Md., road leading to the Army's Camp Springs new airbase, has given a few alert persons a chance to realize ambitions to own their own homes at a price within reach of war deflated purses.

All one needs is about $1000 and a lot on which to move the house selected. There are 100 such houses either to be sold or wrecked to permit road work to progress along Sumner rd., Nicholas ave., Sheridan rd., Stanton and Pomeroy sts. ne.

The $1000 should cover the entire cost of buying and moving any one of the houses, according to Barnard K. Segal, head of Arrow Wrecking Co., charged with their demolition if not sold.

The houses range from 1 story and 3 rooms to 10 rooms and 2 stories. None is over 8 years old, according to Segal, and many of them are less than a year old.

The smaller houses can be put aboard a low-truck trailer and carted off, he said, pointing out that the cost of moving the largest house, if a mover could be found, would not exceed $500 if located within the District. With the most costly of the doomed structures not exceeding $200, a wide margin is left in the estimated overall expense of $1000, to be used for necessary setting on foundation, painting and other minor repairs.

Price Ceiling Charge Dropped

Charges of violating price ceiling regulations in the sale of meat were dropped yesterday by the U. S. Attorney's office in a case against Max Chidel, butcher in the O Ctreet Market. Chidel was charged with the sale oon July 2 of a pound of veal cutlet to Emma Green, 1850 Kendall st. ne. at 10 cents above the ceiling price.

Secret Weapon

Chicago.—Police are looking for a robber who devised a new technique in holding up Miss Doris Duse. Confronting Miss Duse, the bandit cried: "See this," and held aloft what appeared to be a wriggling snake. When she revived, she told police, her purse containing $15 was missing.

Hitch-Hiking Era

Fort Worth, Tex.—Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Howard's son failed to arrive at the airport. So they invited a young Marine officer to ride back with them. He did—introducing himself as Lieut. Col. James Roosevelt, en route to Washington to visit his father, the President.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

State Department Hires Top-Notch Men

State Department is continuing to hire top-notch men in Government despite the uncertainty over its policies and its jurisdiction over other Federal agencies operating in the overseas field. Charles Taft, brother of the Senator, is expected to resign as administrative head of the Office of Defense Health and Welfare to join the department. Alvin Roseman, another top assistant to Paul McNutt, is being lined up for a State job. Morris Rosenthal, who was squeezed out of his job at the Office of Economic Warfare when Leo T. Crowley took over, is scheduled to take a job with Herbert Lehman's Relief and Rehabilitation Agency, which is under the State Department, but to what extent is another department mystery and it'll remain a puzzle until the fuzzy lines of authority are cleared.

KLUTTZ

Roy E. Stryker, the former Columbia University professor and Rex Tugwell protege, who gave up his academic work to become an ace Government photographer, will quit OWI to head up the photographic unit for Standard Oil of New Jersey. . . . Paychecks for employes in GAO's freight rate section at Friendship are habitually delayed. . . . Col. Ed Foley will be sent to Italy to head up the finance division of military government. He has been given a free hand in picking his staff and he has chosen several men who served under him when he was general counsel of Treasury. One is Lieut. Col. Bernard Bernstein. . . . The GOVERMENT GIRL CLUB is giving an informal dance Friday night at the St. John's Parish Hall, 321 16th st. nw., at 9 p. m. The club will sponsor the premier of the new movie, "Government Girl," to open at Keith's in November.

The secretaries committee at the office of Price Administration will give a dance Friday night in the Interior Cafeteria to sell war bonds and stamps. The WAC orchestra, now appearing at the Army show, will donate its talents. Admission will be $2.50 in war stamps and war bonds will be sold during the affair. The committee was organized to put the heat on their bosses to make sure they purchased their quota of war bonds and up until yesterday half the quota in the price division had been raised largely due to the effort of the girls. Yesterday the secretaries distributed a leaflet to their bosses just to remind them. It was in the form of a memo. At the top was a picture of a secretary and at the bottom a picture of a boss. In the center was a bar of music, "I've got my eyes on you." The girls really deserve to put OPA over the top.

It's the expert opinion that Congress won't delay the drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, and it's hard to see how they could in view of the testimony offered by General Marshall. Anyway, Federal officials are trying to find a way of putting fathers on equal footing with fathers in other essential industries, but how, is the real problem. In theory pre-Pearl Harbor fathers in essential industries—and Government is one of the 25—aren't supposed to be drafted until the supply of fathers in nonessential jobs are exhausted. But in reality many of the local draft boards are paying no attention whatever to Selective Service rules, and they're reclassifying Government fathers to 1-A and a number have been called up for induction after October 1.

To protect fathers in essential industries, it has been proposed that they be left in 3-A, by order from Selective Service, until January 1 or until all the nonessentials are called. But the plan was rejected by Selective Service. At that point an alternate proposed was offered which called for the designation of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers in essential industries so they'd be distinguished from 1-A's who weren't in essential jobs. But Selective Service turned thumbs down on this plan, too. However, neither of the rejections was final, and some plan may be devised to protect the essential fathers for awhile after October 1. The whole idea is being studied by a Selective Service committee.

However, if the committee fails to bring forth an acceptable idea, and if the local boards go through with their plans to draft fathers in essential jobs, high Government officials are planning to ask for the deferment of fathers. But that would cause a big ruckus on Capitol Hill. Only one thing is certain, fathers in Government will have anxious days after the first.

Maximum prices set for Concords are: 4.5 cents a pound in sales in carlot or truck lot quantities in Zone 1, including Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia.

Miniature Warehouse On Display

AT "BACK THE ATTACK"—Col. R. L. Benson, British military attache, and Lieut. Col. R. G. McKay find the miniature warehouse display in the Fighting Quartermasters Exhibit, at "Back the Attack," exceptionally interesting. Pvt. Herman Goldberg demonstrates

Capt. Alf Heiberg.

The special performance will include an appearance of a number of airborne nurses who handle evacuation of wounded by air.

Highlight of the show will be a demonstration of speed model planes by the Academy of Model Aeronautics. Special lectures and demonstrations will be given throughout the day by enlisted specialists from the Materiel Command, Air Service Command and Aviation Engineers in the Air Force area.

"This war is proving the camera is surer than the eye," Lieut. Col. B. C. Powers, expert of the experimental photographic laboratory at Wright Field, a speaker at the Air Force program, said yesterday.

Colonel Powers returned from England and Africa a short time ago after participating in the African invasion as intelligence officer for the first complete photographic group to go into combat.

Thousands of Guests

With both afternoon and night performances in the arena and on the stage canceled by Lieut. Col. Frank T. McCabe, officer in charge of the great "Back the Attack" Army show, thousands yesterday continued to rally to the Monument Grounds.

Exhibits of the Army Air Forces, the Transportation Corps, the Quartermasters, Engineers, Signal Corps, Medics, Chaplains Corps, Special Services and the Ordnance Department, most of them under tents, were visited by 13,000 Washington residents.

Drab skies throughout the day and a pin-point mist during the afternoon and night, brought thousands of telephone queries to The Washington Post, the Treasury Department and "Back the Attack" headquarters.

"The show will go on today according to schedule," Col. McCabe explained.

Show to End Sunday

The "Back the Attack" address which was to be given from the huge stage by Chester Bowles, OPA official, was broadcast from the studio of Station WMAL, as was the talk of Joseph Eastman, the previous night.

Colonel McCabe, explaining the arena was too wet for the action show, also answered two questions, often put to him through the inclement weather the past 48 hours. The answers:

1. "The show will not be extended beyond September 26 at 10 p. m.

2. "'Back the Attack' will be disbanded immediately following the end of the Washington spectacle.

The remarkable success of the great venture already has set an all-time attendance mark for any similar exhibition in the United States or elsewhere.

More than 1,192,000 persons have visited the hundreds of displays and exhibits and attended the action show. Fifteen thousand witnessed the arena performance in the rain Monday and yesterday's throng was heartening, according to Maj. John H. Galloway, public relations officer for the show.

Air Force Exhibit Today

Brig. Gen. D. W. Chidlaw of the Air Force reviewed the exhibits last night.

One hundred Air Force pigeons, as distinguished from Signal Corps pigeons, which have been on exhibit throughout the show, will be released in the center of the arena at 11 o'clock this morning for a 300-mile flight to Polk Field, N. C., and the winning bird will be announced from the 126-foot stage during the night performance.

"Young men of 17 are being sought to enlist in the Air Corps as Aviation Cadets," Capt. John R. MacFaden, in charge of the exhibits here, said.

their first acquainfance with air combat tactics.

The cadet is then staged where he is considered ready for more power, speed and maneuvering. When he climbs in the PT-23 front cockpit he realizes he is beginning a series of tests which will decide what branch of flying he later will specialize in.

Young Reservists

Seventeen-year-olds, after successfully passing physical and mental examinations, becomes a reservist until their eighteenth birthday and may be called any time thereafter to start active training, Capt. MacFaden explained.

"Photographic reconnaissance has become so important as the 'eyes of the Army' that 400,000 prints were made during March in the northwest African theater alone," he declared. "Unlike the last war, camera reconnaissance now is regarded as combat work; the negatives are processed at the front in portable laboratories 30 minutes after the plane lands.

Photographic Equipment

Colonel Powers was keenly interested in the air exhibit, which he said has the largest display of photographic equipment ever exhibited to the public.

"The show should prove a big factor in recruiting the many cadet reconnaissance pilots needed by the Army," he said.

In the meantime Transportation Day for the "Back the Attack" show was postponed yesterday and Maj. Russell Oaks, in charge of their exhibits, was making plans for the Transportation Day feature the date of which is to be announced today.

The ceremony in which seven of its enlisted personnel will receive appointments as warrant officers will coincide with the Transportation Day program.

The warrants will be presented on the arena stage by Brig. Gen. Robert H. Wylie, acting Chief of Transportation, and the orders of authorization will be read by Brig. Gen. James T. Duke, commanding general of the Charleston Port of Embarkation.

Ceremony Planned

The ceremony will be conducted by Lieut. Col. Aram Kojasser. Hollos, Sergt. Robert Anthony from the Army just prior to the ceremony in order to make them eligible to receive appointments.

Those who will be presented warrants: Sergt. Lawrence Lee Evans, Sergt. Vatroslav Eugene Hack, Pvt. John Potter, Sergt. John Gilbert Piening, Sergt. George Heinke and Sergt. Francis Joseph Mitchell.

These men, who came to Washington for "Back the Attack," will become ships' officers when they are assigned to Army vessels operated by the Transportation Corps.

Today will also be a "dog fanciers' day!" when officials and regional directors of Dogs for Defense, the nonprofit organization that recruits dogs for the Quartermaster Corps' K-9, officials and members of kennel clubs, dog experts and enthusiasts are greeted by remount officers of the Army's dog training program.

Pinball Contribution

Visitors to the Signal Corps exhibits are enjoying the display of visual training aids which give them a chance to test their knowledge of electrical and radio appliances in everyday use.

Many parts of these training aids, including lamps, switches and timing devices, were taken from pinball machines confiscated by public authorities and turned over to the Eastern Signal Corps Training Center, Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Ordnance demonstration daily—at 3:45 and 7:55 p. m.—affords the visitors one of the most interesting sights to be found on the Monument Grounds when a medium General Sherman tank rolls over a soldier in a foxhole.

A medium and a light tank, an armored half-track and a tough jeep then fight their way through an obstacle course consisting of mounds, ditches and heavy logs.

During the demonstration, Ordnance troops show how they protect themselves when enemy tanks roar into action on the battlefield. There are slit trenches, chevron trenches, British cross trenches, kneeling and standing fox holes.

An Ordnance soldier stands in a fox hole when the tanks speed over the course. At night the course is lighted.

District Gas Quota Raised For Reserve

By Linton Burkett
Post Staff Writer

While the local offices of the OPA were "tailoring" the issuance of B and C gasoline coupons to reduce gasoline consumption in the District, a spokesman for the Petroleum Administration for War announced that the allotment of gasoline for the city was being increased by about 15 per cent.

This would mean that instead of the average of 8,000,000 gallons of gasoline allowed each month during the first six months of the year, it will now be in position to obtain about 9,200,000 a month.

However, this is being done to build up reserves, which will be badly needed with cold weather when it will be necessary to convert gasoline transportation facilities to bringing in fuel oil.

To arrange for a more accurate check of the amount of gasoline consumed here, the Supply and Distribution Committee of the PAW has designated Washington as a supply area with no counties or other units included.

This removes from the Washington Terminal Supply Area the counties of Montgomery, Prince Georges, Charles, St. Marys, in Maryland; Arlington, Alexandria, Fairfax, Loudoun, Fauquier, and Prince William in Virginia.

Henceforth, the Maryland counties will be in the Baltimore area, and their allotments will be included in the Baltimore allotment and the same will be true in Virginia, where the Virginia counties' allotments will be included in Richmond quota.

Thus, it is hoped that the quota allotted to Washington will agree with the actual sales as reported by the District gasoline tax division.

Recent figures, covering the first six months of the year, showed that the total allocated to the old Washington Terminal supply area was 52 million gallons, while during that same period District tax records showed that Washington alone consumed 48 million gallons, leaving the other units but four million gallons for the entire six months.

'Flying Band' Plays Today At Bond Rally

Men From Top Musical Group To Perform to Aid Third War Loan

Air Service Command's "Flying Band" from Pattersoon Field, Dayton, Ohio, will play for a bond rally in front of the Washington Post at noon today.

The band will open today's program with the official Army Air Forces song and then will present a number of swing numbers which will feature vocalists Sergt. Vernon Ishmael, Sergt Jack Loeffler and Private Bobby Wertz. Among the numbers that the band will play will be "Sunday, Monday and Always," I get a Song Out of My Heart," "Close To You" and their own arrangement of the "Strip Polka."

Under the direction of Sergt. Al Cassady, the "Flying" band gained national ne last year when it was picked by music critics as the outstanding service band of the year. The group is composed of men from hit dance bands such as Tommy Tucker's and Jimmie Harry James'.

Travel by Planes

Sergt. Cassady, whose regular Army duties are that of an instrument repair man, organized the band early in 1941. The members form a complete miniature sub depot group for the maintenance of airplanes.

Air Force officials stated that the band obtained its name from the fact that in nearly all engagements the group is transported by planes on routine flights. The organization has played in every place from crash trucks to department store windows and street corners on bond-selling campaigns.

The "Flying" Band will play again at the Army Air Forces special demonstration at 5 o'clock this afternoon at the "Back the Attack" show and then leave by cargo plane for Patterson Field.

Losing Its Battle

This added impetus to bond sales in the city was arranged on the heels of an announcement that Washington was losing its battle on the home front in the sale of bonds.

John A. Reilly, chairman of the District War Finance Committee, revealed that only $55,700,000, or 59.2 per cent of the 94 million dollar total, had been raised.

"Washington citizens are losing their Third War Loan battle," he said.

He revealed that the individual on the home front was failing to back with his bank roll the sons and husbands who are fighting for the possession of Naples. Figures show that only $12,200,000 worth of the quota of 50 million dollars in bonds in the individual category had been sold.

Other Sales Lag

Similarly, there has been a failure in the commercial bond sales, for only 15 per cent, or $4,700,000 of the 30 million dollar quota has been sold.

"Unless local bond buying in this category is intensified to a great extent," Reilly said, "Washington will be known as a sector of the country which fails to support the sacrifices of our men on the battle fronts."

Spurred by the knowledge that the city was failing to meet its quota, the army of volunteer bond salesmen organized to stage a steady siege in order to raise the funds necessary to purchase the group of carrier-based planes, to bear the official flag of the District, into the heart of the enemy country.

Subscriptions amounting to $32,600,000 from individuals will be necessary before this goal is obtained.

J. C. C. Rally Tonight

Reports from groups and individuals yesterday showed that:

A bond rally will beld tonight at the Jewish Community Center by the Society of Mutual Benefits to raise $9000 to complete its $25,000 quota.

A rally will be held at the Shoreham Hotel tonight at which Mme. Ginia Ury, concert singer, will sing the songs of the United Nations. Norman Rockwell's Four Freedoms will be depicted in the life. The purchase of a bond will be required for admission. It is given under the auspices of B'nai B'rith, under the leadership of Mrs. Anne Hurwitz.

Yellow Cab Co. officials announced that half of its quota had been achieved. The company plans to sell each driver a $25 bond and thus raise $15,000.

Today's Schedule For Jeep, Pigeons

Today's schedule for the jeep and carrier pigeons touring the city in the interest of the War Loan drive follows:

Noon: Navy Yard.

2 p. m.: 15th st. and Good Hope rd. se.

3:30 p. m.: Pennsylvania ave., between 11th and 12th sts. nw.

Bebe Barron, 11, and her brother, Roger, 8, shown checking their plane.

Roger L. Barron, 8, of Springfield, Va., is scheduled to pilot his own plane today in the Army Air Forces show which will follow the regular 2:30 p. m. show of "Back the Attack." Bebe Barron, his 11-year-old sister, will serve as mechanic.

Roger's plane runs on gasoline; it can take off, climb, fly at a speed of approximately 60 miles an hour, dive, swoop and land. Although Roger won't be in the cockpit, he'll control all of its action.

Roger is one of four youths who will exhibit the model airplanes they have built at the Washington Monument Grounds this afternoon. The others who will take part are Howard Kuhn, 21, and Herman Simolin, 26, both engineering draftsmen for the United States Navy Powder Factory at Indianhead, Md., and John Olds, 16, who is president of the Chevy Chase Balsa Beavers Model Airplane Club.

The boys will demonstrate "control line flying" in which the model airplane's flight is governed by two wires, about 50 feet long, attached to the elevators of the plane. All of the planes are of original design and are operated by miniature combustion engines.

The demonstration has been arranged by the Academy of Model Aeronautics, which is the model division of the National Aeronautics Association and the governing body for aeromodeling activities in the country.

Roger will be assisted by his sister, Bebe, who makes planes of her own and flies them. Both are members of the Annandale (Va.) Model Airplane Club, and Bebe wears two medals won in competition sponsored by the NAA Academy.

Among the guests of the National Aeronautic Association who will witness this afternoon's demonstration will be Brig. Gen. William Hall of the U. S. Army Air Forces, Representative Jennings Randolph of W. Va., and several CAA and WPB officials.

1st War Fund Calls to Go to 'Old-Timers'

Sounding the theme "Crown Thy Good with Brotherhood," the Advance Gifts Section of the Community War Fund met yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce to receive instructions and individual assignments.

With a Fund goal of $4,800,000 to be raised this year the division will solicit before the actual drive gets under way next month the 1700 persons who in previous years have made large contributions. Last year the Fund, with a goal of four million dollars, raised 97 per cent of that total.

Coleman Jennings, campaign chairman, in explaining that gifts made in the past were inadequate to the present emergency stated "We are all in this war effort. We have dug deep into our incomes to buy bonds and to pay taxes. In addition, we are asked to 'Crown thy good with Brotherhood,' to add to that final costly free will offering which will express our brotherhood, not only in our own country, but to all those to whom we would extend a helping hand beyond our own shores."

Following a luncheon, a general list of prospective donors was unveiled by George Barrett of the campaign staff, and workers made selections of the eight or nine people whom they would solicit for funds. This procedure, tried for the first time this year, permits workers to select names according to their locality and association, and is expected tot reach all potential donors. In previous years names were assigned without distinction and many were never asked to contribute, Barrett explained.

The meeting, the first of four weekly gatherings, was presided over by Abbot P. Mills, chairman of the Advance Gifts division. Attending were the vice chairman, Mrs. Charles C. Glover, jr.; Mrs. Paul McNutt and Dr. Wilson Compton. Also in attendance were the section chairmen and their committees.

Scottish Rite Ceremony Honors Col. W. H. Murphy

Schottish Rite ceremonies last night commemorated the memory of Col. William Herbert Murphy, first member of the local Scottish Rite to give his life in this war. A class of 65 received the fourth degree during the ceremonies.

Colonel Murphy was killed in action in the Pacific theater February 3, 1942, while serving in the Signal Corps. He also served in the Signal Corps as a captain during the First World War.

He was born in Berlin, Germany, in 1889, while his father was serving as American consul general. His wife, Mrs. Catherine Probey Murphy, and two children, Catherine Anne, 12, and William Herbert, jr., 14, live at 4700 Connecticut ave. nw.

Dr. John C. Palmer acted as degree director. He was assisted by Evan Jones and Marx Kahn.

WMC Parley To Consider Labor Supply

Regional Officials Of Four States To Attend Session Today, Tomorrow

Henry E. Treide, recently appointed War Manpower Commission director of Region IV, will hold his first conference with area directors and other responsible officials of the division today and tomorrow at regional WMC headquarters here, it was learned yesterday.

Conceived as a "training conference," the meeting will be attended by Fred Z. Hetzel, District of Columbia area director, and the State directors of Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina and West Virginia, comprising this region.

Gill to Preside

Wirt A. Gill, acting chief, program and analysis division, will be chairman, and area planning chiefs will also attend.

It was indicated that one of the main problems before the conference will be the regulation of labor migration from labor supply areas within the region to critical areas, particularly Washington which expects a labor deficiency of some 35,000 by next April.

Statistics of employment stabilization activities, released here yesterday, show that 656 statements of availability were issued in July to out-migrant workers while almost 1,500 requests were received from in-migrants during that month.

A total of 2,775 District workers were placed by the USES in out-of-town jobs from May 5 until August 20, most of whom were reported to be construction workers. Additional men with certain construction skills not used here at present are continuously recruited for shipyard, steel work and other jobs.

Labor Force of 650,000

Out-of-town employers who come here to recruit workers must clear through the local USES, it was pointed out again, and cannot get any workers who are not released by the USES as less essential in the District.

WMC officials, at the same time, emphasized they hav only control over about 15 per cent of the local labor market since almost half of the District employes work for the Government and come under Civil Service Commission jurisdiction and another 250,000 work in occupations not controlled by WMC regulations. Washington's labor force is estimated at some 650,000.

Statistics for July indicate only the District and Maryland are critical labor areas in this region, while North Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia have a labor surplus.

Of the total of 66,146 requests for statements of availability in Region 4, July statistics show, almost 87 per cent were granted. More than 40 per cent of all requests for job changes were granted in the interest of "more effective prosecution of the war" or "use of higher skill."

Neglect Charged

Women Seek Stanton Park Improvement

District neglect of police protection, overcrowded houses with inadequate sewage facilities, and insufficient garbage collections and alley cleanings in Stanton Park were challenged yesterday by organized housewives of the area in a plea for correction addressed to District officials.

The housewives formed a Community League because they are tired of "meaningless promises" and want to make citizen demands more militant.

Yesterday's plea set forth in detail instances of neglect in providing for the health and safety of adults and juveniles in the area, located practically in the shadow of the Capitol of the United States and made specific recommendations with the warning, "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

They requested an immediate inspection of housing in nine streets where there is overcrowding in poorly ventilated and unfinished basements, where used water is thrown into alleys because sewage facilities are inadequate.

They protest only two collections of garbage a week in the thickly populated neighborhood, with rotting refuse standing in some parts from Saturday until Wednesday of the following week. They request at least three collections a week, and also ask collections of trash more than once a week, since in thickly settled Stanton Park it is impossible for the citizens themselves to burn it.

They say that alleys are swept rarely more than once a month, although the Health Department sates a circuit should be made "every ten days or so."

Children they say, for lack of better space, play in the alleys amidst the filth as do dogs and cats, contributing, they say, to spread of diseases.

With only four areas open for supervised play on a year round basis in this area, the league ask that schools with play space be opened more liberally to children who now spend spare hours on sidewalks and in alleys. They also request a 9 p. m. curfew law for children under 16, another boys' club, additional day care facilities for white children and establishment of a colored day care center.

There are not enough policemen to make regular patrols, the league said, and those now stationed in the precinct never stay long enough to become acquainted with the community. "If they had time to become acquainted with the children perhaps there might be more law abiding citizens in the future," the league wrote the Commissioners.

In addition, the league asks better enforcement of soot and smoke regulations in the Union Station neighborhoods, a better building for the child clinic at 9th and Maryland ave. and equipment of it to handle any epidemic needs which may arise out of present conditions.

Soldiers Lug Lunches At Pentagon

By Emily Towe
Post Staff Writer

Soldiers on duty in the Pentagon are being used as messenger boys by at least one Army Air Forces office to deliver light lunches and between-meal snacks to civilian stenographers and typists, it was revaled yesterday.

An ingenious worker of the Army Air Forces has worked out an efficient order sheet for snacks and light lunches—but when hungry workers make delivery boys out of soldiers, this efficiency story has a different angle.

The order sheet, a copy of which reached The Post yesterday, is not an official form, but was undoubtedly the idea of workers within an Air Forces office, and mimeographed for only that group, it was announced in the Pentagon office of the Welfare and Recreation Association, which operate the restaurants and food bars at the building.

Army officers reiterated that soldiers are not authorized to act as deliverymen for civilian employes, explaining that regular messengers are used throughout the Pentagon. The officers said they had not see the forms, nor even heard of them.

With "Form BB1" inscribed in the top left-hand corner, the blank provides space for names of employes to give orders. Under the coffee classification is space for designation of sugar and cream if desired. The Coca-Cola row is also divided for orders of large and small containers.

Other food items listed are doughnuts, milk, ice cream, sandwiches, pie, fruit juice, candy, and a larger row for cigarettes, apparently for designation of brand. The financial rows provide space for amount received from the orderer, cost of the food, and change due.

The forms were revealed when some of the soldiers rebelled at being called upon to be errand boys.

Unrationed coffee may be just as delectable as it was when there was a shortage if you take care of that coffee pot. Wash it in rich, sudsy water after each use and tackle stubborn stains with a long-handled scrub brush. If your coffee maker has a filter, rinse cloth thoroughly after each use and keep it in a glass of cold water.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

Martha Ellyn

Bringing home the bacon isn't a chore. But having the red points with which to buy meat does require one's best arithmetic at times. Those days when we served a rasher of bacon for breakfast without any special thought are gone for now. But now we build a supper for four persons around a half pound of bacon. And it contributes to a gold meal, too.

Proper cookery of bacon is an important part of meat conservation. Especially is it true that bacon should be cooked slowly, so it will not burn and so the drippings will be light and clear and can be used again.

Start bacon in a cold frying pan. Cook slowly and turn for even cooking. Drain on absorbent paper, if necessary. However, if some one in the family likes crisp bacon to be eaten with the fingers, then pour the drippings off as they accumulate.

If you are planning a broiled supper, broil the bacon, too. Place the slices on a broiling rack about 3 inches from the source of the heat. Turn once to cook evenly. Slices of fruits or vegetables can be broiled at the same time to complete the menu.

Let's plan a dinner menu which uses one-half pound bacon. The name of the dish is "scramble." And once this dish is tasted there will be a scramble for more.

DINNER MENU

Bacon Scramble
Sauteed Green Tomatoes
Carrot-Cabbage Salad
Enriched Bread, Butter
Gingerbread Apple Sauce
Coffee

BACON SCRAMBLE

Pan fry ½ pound bacon until crisp. Remove from pan and keep hot. Brown lightly 2 tablespoons chopped onion in bacon drippings. Add 2 cups cooked rice. Mix 3 lightly beaten eggs with 2 tablespoons milk and ½ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Combine with rice and stir together. Cook over low heat until eggs thicken slightly. Serve on hot platter, sprinkled with chopped parsley, surrounded by crisp bacon slices.

This pair of porkers are enviously eying the broiled tomatoes which will soon join the kidney-bacon brochettes. They know the broiled bacon strips used with the lamb kidneys will greatly enhance the flavor of this entree.

BACON-CORN-TOMATO GRILL

Place 2 cups whole-kernel corn in broiler pan and put ½ pound bacon on broiler rack so bacon drippings will season corn. Broil 3 inches from source of heat until bacon is browned on one side. Turn. Arrange 8 tomato slices on rack, brush with drippings (if desired, sprinkle each slice with chopped onion and bread crumbs) and finish browning bacon and tomatoes. Serve hot.

BACON AND RED APPLE RINGS

Core 3 red apples but do not peel. Cut into ½ inch slices and brown lightly on both sides in bacon drippings. Pour 1/3 cup sugar over slices and cook until candied. Add ¼ cup water, cover and let cook until apples are tender. Sprinkle with red sugar. Pan fry ½ pound bacon slowly until crisp. Drain and serve on hot platter with apple rings.

LIMA BEANS AND BACON CASSEROLE

Cover 2 cups dry lima beans with water and soak 4 hours. Simmer 1 to 1½ hours until tender. Season with 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper; add 1 cup tomatoes and ½ cup chopped green pepper. Place in a greased casserole and top with 8 bacon strips. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about 30 minutes. Serves four to six.

X-Ray

A recently built giant one-million-volt X-ray unit inspects thicknesses of metal in a few minutes . . . a job that formerly took hours.

To Remove Scorch

If you scorch cottons while ironing, plunge the article into cold water immediately and allow to stand for 24 hours.

Keep Them Soft

Chamois and doeskin gloves are best washed off the hands else they may stretch or cut along stitching.

HEAT SAVING GUIDE FOR YOUR HOME

Heating fuels of every kind are vital to the war effort and must be carefully conserved by all of us. These suggestions will help you make substantial savings in fuel and at the same time have a warmer, more comfortable home. A copy of this heat saving guide suitable for posting in your home where the whole family can see it, is available.

★ Check heating system. Clean the boiler or furnace of all dirt and soot. Be sure there's insulation on all steam and hot water lines. Cement up air leaks around fire door and ash door. Have a service man go over your heating system to see that it's in good condition.

★ Insulation. Roof insulation is most important. If your attic has no floor, put insulation between the joists. Better still, finish the attic's walls and floor. Insulate walls adjoining a garage. Insulation under floors above unexcavated parts of the foundation saves lots of heat.

★ Storm sash and storm doors. Storm windows are needed especially if windows have no weatherstripping around them. If you're using the sun porch be sure to put up storm windows there. And don't forget the basement windows. Equip all entrances with storm doors.

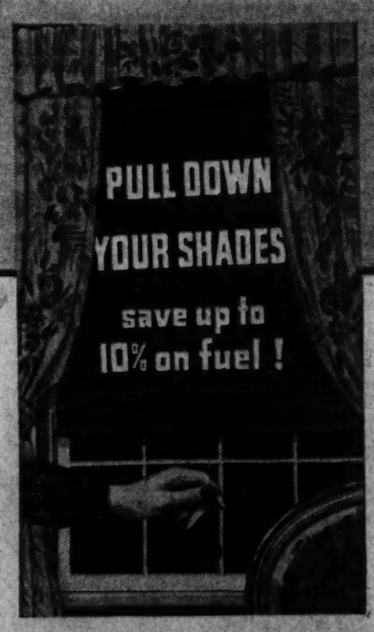
★ Weatherstripping and caulking. When wood door and window frames shrink, heat escapes around edges. Put weatherstripping around outside of doors and windows. Caulking compound applied at joints around window frames and at top and sides of door jambs is helpful.

★ Lower temperatures. Most homes have too high a room temperature. 68 degrees is healthful and comfortable for most people. Reduce temperature when you're away from home and at night. If you have a heated garage, don't heat it to house temperature.

★ Eliminate drafts. Close door transoms. When ventilating rooms, close doors to keep cold air out of other rooms. Put rug against doors that don't fit tightly at bottom. Lock windows down snugly. A storm vestibule eliminates front door drafts and keeps lots of heat from escaping.

★ Close doors quickly. There's no use heating the outdoors. When people leave, don't stand in open door talking. Make sure door closes tightly when you come in or go out of the house. Automatic door closers are a big help in preventing heat loss.

★ Other things to remember. Don't get rooms so warm you have to open windows. Close fireplace damper. Locate your thermostat so that no cold air or draft can hit it. Replace leaky or defective radiator valves. Don't waste fuel—make it go as far as possible.



30% of all heat loss is through window panes. Some heat saving measures cost money. Others may not be taken now because of shortages of certain materials. But there's one easy way to save heat within the reach of everyone. It's simply to—pull down your shades. Tests by the Armour Research Foundation show that 30% of all heat loss is through windows and that by proper use of your cloth window shades you can reduce this loss as much as one-third thus saving up to 10% on fuel. During the day, draw shades to sills in all rooms not being used and draw them half way in rooms being used. At night draw shades to sills in all rooms. By these simple precautions you'll have a much warmer home this winter.

Woman Holds Her Own Sex to Blame for Trend Toward Informal Address Between Men and Women Government Workers; Calls It Decline in Manners

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Certain letters of opinion published in your column during the past week invite one's attention to the rise of a new trend in the relationship of men and women; and bring to mind an overwhelming number of things that could be said on the subject. I refer, in particular, to two letters; one from "Mother of a boy and wife of a young executive," published September 13, which sardonically called for social planning to save decent men from the clutches of designing hussies here in war jobs. And the other, published September 14, signed "G. G.," in which a Government secretary champions the latterday practise in Government offices, of men executives calling their women employes by their first name,—a practise which she says makes for closer cooperation in working together in the common cause of wnning the war.

The whole subject of men-women relationships in business and private life is much too big to be covered in a few newspaper articles, I know. But from the good deal I have seen and heard, since coming to Washington three years ago as the wife of a seasoned executive, the standards of office etiquette between men and women in Washington have hit an all-time low. The practise among office associates, of calling each other by their first name, is one manifestation of this. Still another is the equally prevalent custom of having staff cocktail parties, with a "mixed" company of guests,—to which husbands and wives of workers are not invited. Your correspondent "G. G." says when her employer calls her by her first name, she looks upon him as a friend rather than as her boss. The logical inference from this would be that she will respond by calling him "Bill," or "Charlie," or "Horace," as the case may be. Which certainly would make for a cozy office atmosphere,—but hardly one to encourage streamline efficiency, as she claims.

"G. G." explains that her boss is a very conservative man, who came to Government service from a very conservative firm, where his old secretary, who had been with him for years, is still addressed by him as Miss Smith;—and that while he was at first surprised by the informality of Government workers, he said he liked it; in fact, heartily approved of it; and immediately entered into the spirit of the thing. She seems to think this puts the stamp of conservative endorsement on the practise. But the fact is that even the highest type man,—dignified, cultured and courtly,—instinctively accommodates himself to the kind of behavior that women around him invite or expect. It is part of his code,—a fact which business girls should keep in mind, along with the proverb to the effect that "Familiarity breeds contempt."

Sees Threat to Morale Of Society as a Whole

The reason for this lapse into a carnival level of manners in Washington is fairly obvious. The city is teeming with working girls recruited from small towns all over America,—many transplanted for the first time from their folksy native habitat. Although ostensibly here to do war work, they are here primarily in search of excitement, because they were poorly adjusted to life in their home towns. And here they are associated side by side, six full days a week, with men who likewise are learning the ropes in a new environment,—many of them married men, here without their families. The standard of manners in mixed company in this new environment is set by the women,—as is always the case. And it is untortunate for all concerned that the girls are failing to set these standards high, by behaving with impersonal courtesy. It is no secret,—in fact, it is a traditional commonplace,—that free-and-easy flirtations flourish readily in an atmosphere of free-and-easy manners; and that such flirtations usually cause trouble for all concerned, with the girl nearly always paying the heaviest penalty.

With Washington becoming increasingly a business man's town,—since representatives of all industries are being drafted to serve the war effort here,—it naturally follows that innovations in business office behavior generally practised here will set the pattern for post-war business office standards elsewhere. Which means that the low standards currently in vogue in Washington offer a serious threat to the future morale of the business world,—which in turn will affect the home life of the Nation. Thus, I am wondering if we wives and mothers DO perhaps have an obligation to band together,—as your correspondent ironically proposes,—to discuss "social planning" to reverse this disturbing decline in manners. My husband and I are educating our two very attractive, popular daughters for professional careers,—so that they will not grow up to look upon marriage as their only hope of security. And we, at least, certainly like to feel that they will find the same use for gentle manners,—implying a certain restraint, reserve and respect for privacy-of-personality,—in the business world that one finds in responsible circles of society everywhere. Sincerely, HOMEMAKER.

Finds Goethe Greater Teacher Than Gounod

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In your column of September 17 you carried an excellent letter of civilized comment, signed "Old Washingtonian,"—which impressively illustrated the high mental caliber of your readers and correspondents. The writer of that letter nobly rebuked the rigidly self-righteous type of matron who holds unfortunate girls strictly to blame and entirely accountable for their sex transgression; and added, "It would be well for such uncharitable critics to study the great opera, 'Faust,'—which Dr. Forel calls the perfect portrayal of the psychology of seduction."

I would like to amend her erudite suggestion. I feel that she has overlooked the fact that the more or less mediocre libretto for the opera, written by Gounod, is based on Goethe's "Faust,"—one of the greatest masterpieces in literature. And I sincerely believe that a reading of Goethe's "Faust," Part I, would fit the suggested purpose far better than an examination of the sugary libretto of the opera of the same name. Dr. Forel, incidentally, had reference to Goethe's work. And those familiar with the play will understand why Faust, upon realizing the extent of the shame, despair and anguish he had brought upon the seduced Margaret, exclaims: "Mankind's collected woe overwhelms me here!" Those who are able to understand Goethe will also agree with him that "mankind's collected woes" arise, to a large extent, out of the uncontrolled passions of MAN,—not from the controllable and far more controlled impulses of woman.

Wagner's Witty Opera Tells Deep Truth, Too

Still another example in musical literature, touching on the same subject, is contained in Wagner's truly great opera,—a comic opera,—"Die Meistersinger." Hans Sachs, in his monologue, has this explanation to offer, concerning the origin of the world's woes: "A glow-worm didn't find his mate . . . that started all the trouble!" All of the above is simply a fuller exposition of the kernel of "Old Washingtonian's" fine contribution. Keep such letters coming, Mary Haworth. You are helping toward a better world. PETRONIUS.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain

And so they were married and lived happily ever after—and she did change him! It happened that his friends liked her and they warned he was going to be hard to live with because he wouldn't eat this and he wouldn't eat that. He detested salads and almost anything else in the "good for you" class.

Well, he is a changed man and he doesn't mind. He doesn't know it. She never argued about his food habits. Since he wouldn't drink milk, she gave him milk soups—delicious milk soups—and sometimes a custard topped with wine sauce. She sneaked liver into the menu by smothering it with onions and serving it with a strip of crisp bacon. He pronounced it good. She chopped greens and stuffed them into a tomato. And he ate that and liked it. He likes a lot of foods he wouldn't touch in his bachelor days.

You may say that's all right for anyone just starting domesticity, but try and change a man after he is set in his way! But I can tell you about a woman who did that. I got the story from Dr. Helen S. Mitchell, one of our leading nutritionists, and she got it first hand. After cooking the old-fashioned way for a good many years, this home maker decided to find out about nutrition so she went to nutrition classes. Gradually she put what she learned into practice. She cut down on the amount of water for cooking vegetables so as to save the minerals and vitamins and on the cooking time to save vitamins. She served more green salads and fruit for dessert and, in general, lighter menus. This went on a few months and she noticed her husband wasn't having any more of those sick spells he called "bilious attacks." She asked if he had been to a doctor and he said no, he felt so well he didn't need to. Then she had to tell him it was nutrition and all about the classes. "Well," he said, "Aw, gee, honey, I'd been wondering what was wrong with your cooking! I like it better the other way. Can't we have any more fritters and dumplings and things?" So she went back to the old way of cooking with all his favorite dishes and he praised her all week—until Friday. That night he came home with a sick headache and another "bilious attack" and, looking a bit sheepish, he said, "I guess you'd better cook the healthy way after all."

You should be able to please your husband and give him the right nutrition, too. If you can get him to eat a new food, eventually he will like it, provided, of course, it is well cooked. Good nutrition and good cooking should be synonymous.

"Have you heard about A?"

"No. Did he finally get B?"

"Sh—I think one of B's men's here. Let's get over behind these palms . . . Well, it seems that A——"

"Sh! Be careful! I think that woman in the leopard beanie has some connection with A . . . Now go on . . .

"Well, I just heard that A has won out and will take over the whole works."

"I'm not surprised. One of his gang told me last night they were going to purge B. But I bet B doesn't give up without a fight."

"Sh! That girl with the amethyst caterpillar looks as if she's listening . . . Well, of course A's been after B's scalp for a long time."

"They say he's out now to knife C in the back and take over his agency."

"Sh! That woman with the sequins breastplate is one of C's gang."

"I just wonder what they'll do next."

"No telling. This last move looks pretty dangerous to me."

"They're a dangerous crowd. Bert says they'll never stop until they get us all regimented."

"Exactly! Arch says this isn't a free country any more."

"It isn't! We might as well be in Germany."

Well, one thing certain—the people won't stand it forever."

"That's what Bert says. He thinks it'll lead to revolution."

"I wouldn't be surprised—especially if they ever start rationing clothing."

"I don't think even the OPA would have the nerve to do that!"

"Do you think they'll get anywhere trying to block him this time?"

"I doubt it. He's so firmly intrenched."

"Still, he's been losing a lot of his forces."

"Yes, but you never can tell what his next move will be. He's very shrewd."

"Yes, but they have very crafty fighters too. They're not asleep."

"They can't do much by themselves—unless there's a popular uprising against him?"

"I'd like to see them do something to her—she's the dangerous one."

"They may—in time. Some of those Congressmen are mighty tough."

"Yes, but you must remember they're up against a Roosevelt."

IV

"You know we've got to do something?

"That's just what I was going to say?"

"They're getting entirely too strong."

"Yes, they really constitute this Nation's greatest danger."

"I'm afraid of what they'll do in the next election."

"Yes, and at the peace table."

"If we don't watch out they're going to lead this country into imperialism——"

"Yes, and socialism——"

"Say, what are you talking about?"

"Me? Why the Communist element, of course. What are you?"

"Why I—I was talking about the reactionaries—the Fascists."

V

"Look quick? There goes Heatherstone"

"Oh-h! Is he the one who's fighting Arbuthnot?"

"Yes, and he's also aligned against the Rookwood faction."

"But I thought Rookwood was trying to undermine Antimacassar."

"He is. But he's also trying to block Heatherstone and Arbuthnot."

"Then who is Terwilliger playing with?"

"Just—Terwilliger."

"Then where does that leave Gwynne-Otter?

"He's plotting against the Van Bibber element."

"Who is Van Bibber fighting?"

"Oh everybody, I suppose—except the Nazis."

Zonta Meets Today

The Zonta Club of Washington will have Miss Carlene Roberts, assistant to the vice president of American Airlines, as its guest speaker today at 1 p. m., at the regular luncheon meeting of the club at the YWCA, 17th and K sts. nw. The subject of Miss Roberts' talk will be "The Street Above Your Home."

Until recently the airline industry has been so distinctly a man's field that a successful woman in this particular sphere is decidedly news. Miss Riberts has held her present position since the Spring of 1942; and the story of her five-year climb in American Air lines from secretary to airline official contains much evidence that this young lady gained her present heights through much hard work coupled with her ability to do any job.

Advice for War-Working Girls

By Genevieve Reynolds

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

Starting on your first job? If so try to combine a little realism with your patriotic fervor. That is whenever possible enter a trade or profession for which you have been trained, and in which you would like to continue in the postwar world. This is the advice of sagacious Bettie Weary, national program consultant for the Women's Division, of National Catholic Community Services, member agency of the USO.

"In other words don't tie to a job—unless a war need or necessity—that offers no experience that will help you get a solid foundation for your chosen profession," she explained. "Naturally, if the pressing needs of war call you into a job which is temporary, you could not refuse. But you can try to find one for which you are best fitted."

A journalist by inheritance, choice and profession, petite Bettie Weary's father, grandfather, aunt and uncle were English journalists. All were Oxford-stamped. Bettie was born in New Jersey, while her father was in New York City as London Times correspondent. She is best known in this country as a job expert, author of the New York Sun column, "What Job for the Graduate"

"War has brought to the fore such latent abilities as engineering, chemistry, mathematics," said Dr. Weary—she has completed work for her Ph.D at Columbia University, but hates to be called doctor. "Women always had ability in engineering and mathematics, but the colleges and professions detoured them into A. B. degrees. Consequently the A. B. is a drug on the market . . . not good for anything but teaching. And that might account for so many frustrated schoolmams.

"A very sound economist has said 'War is an economy of physics, and peace is an economy of chemistry,'" she continued. "Well, what does that mean? Economy of physics means the best guns, best mechanisms of destruction, while the economy of chemistry gives new inventions for better living."

Looking into the postwar world, the occupational expert declared:

"We shall have to delevop a need for noncommunicables—those things that we need to use without consuming, such as greater recreational facilities, public parks, etc., and, above all, a superb facility in human relations. An individual is your laboratory."

Further elaborating on the job situation, Bettie Weary predicts a great opening for public health nursing, nutrition. However, she warned that while nursing is a step in the right direction, it must be further developed in order to enter the public health field. She thinks that if a girl is interested in nursing, she could aid the war effort tremendously by going into that field and at the same time lay a foundation for a peacetime profession. Whereas, if the girl wanted to be a nurse but sidetracked to welding for the duration, she would be doing herself and the war effort an injustice

Traveling about the country, visiting many colleges, Miss Weary said that she found college-trained girls thinking seriously about postwar conditions, even those with one or two years of training. Usually those who lack any college training are thinking entirely in terms of the present.

A few weeks ago, Miss Weary dropped into one of the NCCS USO clubs in the Eastern war area. There she ran into a job puzzler. Civil Service had recruited and trained 5,000 girls for war communications work. Then, when the girls were ready to start work, the Government said, "We don't need you."

Now these girls had come from all parts of the United States. Many had left areas where there was a definite dearth of men. At the training center, there were plenty of beaux, and the girls certainly didn't want to return to manless towns. Upshot, 5,000 girls in tears.

Immediately plain Bettie Weary gathered in representatives of the American Association of University Women, League of Women Voters and several other organizations to thresh out the dilemma. These representatives put their heads together with the job expert and worked out means of redirecting for jobs. WAC, WAVE, SPARS and other representatives of auxiliaries of the armed forces were asked to speak. In a few days Bettie, with the aid of those called in, had several solutions to offer, and the girls were happy again.

After the war, Bettie probably will return to her column writing. But in the meantime, she is busy giving advice to servicemen's wives, sweethearts, girl warworkers, who turn up at the various USO clubs throughout the country.

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Once the baby has reached an age when he can manage foods by spoon (and the age for this differs), almost anything which is agreeable to the taste will be acceptable to him. Especially is it easier in the early months of life to get baby to accept new foods than later when his taste is more discriminating.

One cannot but notice vegetables are not always baby's best-liked food; so it is well to introduce them early in life and make them so appetizing baby will not repudiate them.

Begin with only one teaspoon of a mild-flavored and sieved vegetable. Dress it up with a little butter and salt and offer it when baby is hungry. Follow with the milk feeding.

Stick to those vegetables he likes and add new ones cautiously. Sometimes he can be wooed to an acceptance of a new vegetable by adding it to the ones he likes. Little by little the new flavor overpowers the old one and willy nilly he is eating a new vegetable with no battle over it.

Babies like mashed potatoes and do not mind a spoonful of another starchy vegetable or even a green one added to it.

Babies who have a distaste for vegetables themselves may be quite amiable about vegetable soups. These may be made of a variety of vegetables cooked with or without a meat bone and the vegetable sieved out and replaced with toast crumbs or egg.

Spoonful by spoonful the sieved vegetables can be added back to the broth until baby is eating vegetable with a soup flavor rather than just soup with a vegetable flavor.

A determination to override the child's dislike and make him eat vegetables is a course doomed to failure. The mother's attitude should be that here is something nice and of course he'll like it, coupled with tactful, patient methods of making vegetables enjoyable.

This will result in any baby developing a liking for enough varieties to result in an interesting diet of them.

Our leaflet, "Feeding From Two to Nine Months," suggests the time and the portions of vegetables to be added to the child's diet. It may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred, in care of this newspaper.

About Washington . . .

IT HAPPENS ALL the time. Writers continuously flocking to Washington from out of town "discover" a person who has been prominent and popular for years; pen a piece about that man or woman, and sell it to a magazine as "the first and only interview ever granted" by the individual in question.

Mrs. Marshall

For almost a decade Mrs. George Marshall, wife of the Army Chief of Staff, has been cooperative "copy" for Washington newspaper women. Antithesis of the proverbial Army wife who is afraid of both her husband and her own shadow, Katherine Marshall never declines either to answer a question outright . . . or gracefully explain why she cannot. She has long been accustomed to the spotlight; has been giving interviews since the days when she was a Shakespearian actress. As the wife of the Army Chief of Staff, she has "granted" an interview to The Washington Post a countless number of times; gives one every week, in fact, when Elizabeth Henney, service-column writer for this page, calls her regularly.

Point I'm leading to is that the October issue of The Woman magazine carries an interview with Mrs. Marshall, advertised as "the first and only interview which she has granted to the press." All of which leaves the impression that the author of the piece is either a highly enterprising reporter . . . or that those of us around Washington have been covering the town in Rip Van Winkle boots!

Now I'm all for bigger and better publicity for Mrs. Marshall, even when it's overadvertised and underdone. She's one of the grandest women in Washington, and if I had my way she would be prominently played up in a magazine or newspaper piece every five minutes. If all high-placed Army wives were as interesting, as gracious, as unimpressed with their own importance as she is, Washington columning—and interviewing—would be a cinch. It's only that I don't want any out-of-towner to get away with the boast that she has obtained the "first and only" interview this very great lady has ever "granted the press."

MRS. JOHN H. TOLAN, wife of Representative Tolan of California, yesterday dropped by the Women's Division of the War Finance Committee with the story behind the story of the bill her husband introduced Tuesday on Capitol Hill. The bill proposes to have the well-ventilated and heated Senate garage transformed into sleeping quarters for servicemen on furlough. It would accommodate at least a thousand.

Mr. Tolan conceived the idea one evening when his son, Lieut. John H. Tolan, USNR, was telling him about the difficulty soldiers and sailors have in finding a place to sleep in Washington. "You ought to take a look around Union Station just any night after midnight," he said. "You'll find boys in uniform sleeping in telephone booths, on window ledges, on every seat; even on the floor."

The Representative decided to see for himself. On Saturday night he set his alarm for 3 a. m. When it rang, he arose, dressed, and took off to Union Station. He found the USO lounge crowded to the walls. In the vaulted waiting room boys were uncomfortably sprawled everywhere. Every telephone booth had a sleeping soldier inside. Every window ledge was draped with a man in uniform. "Something's got to be done about this," he said to himself, as he started home. En route, he happened to pass the Senate garage. "Big enough to take care of those soldiers I just saw," he went on, still talking to himself. On Tuesday, he told it to the House of Representatives. But, it seems, some Senators are none too eager to give up their garage. Well, we'll see . . .

WASHINGTON SERVICE wives who yearn for a more active part in the war effort might take a leaf from the book of a general's wife who is doing a full-time job in New York while her husband is overseas. She is Constance Gibson, wife of Brig. Gen. Herbert D. Gibson who is now in command in Hawaii.

Mrs. H. D. Gibson

Born in England, educated at Bryn Mawr, a pre-war social celebrity, whose home at 22 Gramercy Park was quite a gathering place before Pearl Harbor, Mrs. Gibson is now in command of an expediting section of the Sperry Gyroscope Co.

Her work has to do with seeing that men on the fighting front get their Fortress gun turrets, precision fire control and secret Sperry devices neither too little nor too late. My New York informant reports that Mrs. Gibson rides the subway to Brooklyn daily, puts in eight-plus hours hounding and assisting subcontractors as a "vendor follow-up woman," and declares she "loves every minute of it."

The Deweys Return to D. C. For Winter

Knee-deep in housecleaning is Mrs. Albert Dewey, who is getting her house in Georgetown ready for the season, after being away all summer with Mr. Dewey at Upper Saranac, N. Y., and Newport, R. I. Mr. and Mrs. Dewey purchased their little house on P st. more than a year ago. "I've given up trying to be a perfectionist in these times," says pretty Mrs. Dewey. "There is still much to be done before the house is really complete."

Mrs. Dewey has been back and forth from Upper Saranac to Washington this summer and more recently spent several weeks in New York doing some shopping for Mr. Dewey's two sons who are preparing to return to school. She will go up again soon, this time to look for something for herself. New York, Mrs. Dewey finds, is a much easier place to shop now than Washington. There is no shortage of anything as far as she had been able to discover and she and Mr. Dewey gorged themselves in the cafes and restaurants, revelling in 2-inch steaks and talking about it afterward for a week.

Here, Felicia Dewey is wrestling with the domestic problem and at this point is about to give up. "I do most of the cooking myself, and have designed a special cooking costume," Mrs. Dewey says with a chuckle.

In spite of New York's advantages and Washington's disadvantages at the present moment, "I adore Washington," says Mrs. Dewey "and wouldn't like to live anywhere else."

Pignatellis Lease Home of Mrs. Harriman

Back by spring is the promise of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, who has leased her famous home, Uplands, to Prince and Princess Pignatelli for the winter.

The former Minister to Norway has made no plans for the coming season, but expects to divide her time between the Capital and New York. Her duties as District chairman of Russian Relief will require her presence here from time to time.

This Foxhall rd. mansion, famous for its salons when Mrs. Harriman holds sway there, had a series of distinguished tenants while its owner was serving her country in Norway. They included Mrs. William Bankhead and the late Speaker of the House, and Maj. Richard Mellon.

Mrs. John White of Bethesda Is 'Playing for Victory'

Almost Every Day She Is at The USO or Stage Door Canteen

By Betty Ruth McDevitt

When it comes to "playing for Victory" Mrs. John Alfred White, jr., of Bethesda, Md., probably tops musicians in the Washington area for giving her time as a volunteer to boost morale on the home front.

Wherever there's a piano, with servicemen gathered about it you're sure to find Mrs. White at some time or other enthusiastically bringing out tunes to chase the blues away. Practically every day she has an engagement to play at a USO lounge, the Stage Door Canteen, a veterans' hospital and other places frequented by the armed forces. "I'm devoting all my spare time to entertaining the boys and try never to turn down an invitation," she remarked. Mrs. White maintains playing piano is her only hobby and therefore feels that is her best contribution in the war effort.

Has Composed Many Songs

A composer as well as an accomplished pianist, Mrs. White, who writes under her maiden name of Margaret Scott Penn, has composed more than 100 songs, many of which are published.

Since Pearl Harbor most of her compositions have been devoted to turning out Victory songs, at least a dozen of them. Now copyrighted and soon to be published is her song "Victory," the verse as well as the melody written by Mrs. White. As soon as Lieut. James Thurmond, USN, director of the band at the US Navy Music School, completes the orchestration of the song the band will play "Victory" on one of its Friday night broadcasts, Mrs. White says.

The song was recently presented at Carnegie Hall, New York, in a patriotic tableau, when the composer accompanied Helen Robichaux, Washington soprano, soloist for "Victory."

A stirring march tempo, here is the verse of "Victory":

Our land and our flag, all of us honor and love—
Liberty and freedom—many blessings from above;

Now we must sacrifice to hold
Our freedom more precious far than gold
And because Right is Might
We will win the day—Victory is on the way.

Chorus:
Victory is on the way. Victory will come to stay—
When the fighting has been done,
And the battles have been won,
Victory will bring us peace.
Peace, we pray, will never cease—
V-I-C-T-O-R-Y, we will write it in the sky—
Our Liberty depends on Victory;
Victory, our battle cry.

Was Named Pianist For Air Corps

Until recently Mrs. White traveled throughout the country playing at Army camps. In fact, her war work actually began in Miami, Fla., when she was spending the season there. When Gen. Ralph H. Wooton was commanding officer there he named her pianist for the Air Corps after hearing Mrs. White's talent. A native of Texas, the city is an inspiration for Mrs. White to write songs whenever she visits Dallas and Sherman. Winning the friendship of servicemen wherever she entertains, Mrs. White played steadily for three hours last Thanksgiving Day in Oklahoma City. Mayor Kelly's 14-story service club in Chicago, the Seamen's Club of the American Theater Wing in New York have also been on Mrs. White's schedule.

Taking the advice of her husband, director of the medical department for the Washington Terminal Co., not to travel these days unless necessary, Mrs. White has curtailed visiting out of town camps until transportation is eased. Instead, she will concentrate on cheering up the wounded men back from the wars in various hospitals. She plans to take the Gray Ladies' course so she may play for patients at the Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, not far from her home.

In 1940 she won wide acclaim for her song, "Roosevelt, We're All for You," which was sung at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago. All royalties from her hit, "Meet Me in Miami," published a year and a half ago, have been turned over to recreational funds for servicemen.

Highly educated in music, Mrs. White received her bachelor of music degree at Southern Methodist University and took postgraduate work at the University of Pennsylvania. She also attended North Texas College and Kidd Key Conservatory of Music.

An honory member of Kappa Gamma national educational sorority, she belongs to the Studio Club in New York, the Miami Music Club, the Schubert Choral in Dallas and the Coral Gables Music Club.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

A lot of debate over drafting fathers was held behind closed doors. If the public had been let in, it would have witnessed a hot flareup between Senator Wheeler of Montana and Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff.

McNarney touched off the fireworks by declaring that Wheeler's bill to postpone the induction of fathers might "prolong the war for a year."

"The time factor is all important in defeating the enemy now, rather than waiting until next year or the year following," said General McNarney in caustic tones.

"If you give the enemy time to establish his defense," continued McNarney, "the cost and time of our operations may be greatly increased and it will mean the drafting of that many more fathers in the future. It would be very unfortunate if you pass a bill of restrictive character to control the war effort—to put the hobbles on it."

"That doesn't make sense to me," interrupted Wheeler. He declared that there need be no holdup in increasing the Army, since there were enough deferred single men who could be taken. He added that the Army still had about 2,700,000 troops in the USA to draw on.

"Well, maybe you know more about it than I do," snapped McNarney.

"No, I don't claim to know more than you," shot back Wheeler.

A little later he fired this critical statement at the War Department.

"The taking of married men with children is breaking up the American home. The Army manpower question has been mishandled to a point where it has done more to break down the morale of the people back home than almost anything. It ought to be corrected."

Latin American Troops

Undersecretary of War Patterson was questioned closely by GOP Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire and others on the possibility of recruiting troops in Latin America, chiefly Mexico and Brazil. Brazil probably has the best trained troops south of the Rio Grande, Patterson replied, but he added, "We cannot alter our plans through the hope of getting Mexicans and Brazilians."

South American nations are giving us greater assistance, in the form of raw materials, than during the last war, the Undersecretary stated.

Practically all discussion of the British and Canadian conscription programs was significantly deleted from the record. But Patterson explained that plans for drafting men in the United States and Great Britain are worked out by the combined chiefs of staff. "We have to take our share," he added.

Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley of Kentucky injected one chuckle into the proceedings when it was revealed that some men with only one eye or one leg had been drafted for limited service. While McNarney was being questioned about this, the droll Kentuckian suddenly observed:

"Lord Nelson was blind in one eye and they say that if he had to look at something he didn't want to see he always put the telescope to the blind eye."

FDR and Hoover

HERBERT HOOVER came in for some rough mauling during President Roosevelt's conference with the leaders of the Big Four farm organizations last week.

Roosevelt said that several statements Hoover made recently, criticizing the "mess" the Administration has made of the food problem and demanding an over-all food czar, almost provoked him to a public reply.

Such criticisms undermine public morale in wartime, the President told his guests, adding:

'No doubt Mr. Hoover is getting a lot of glee out of emphasizing the shortages of meat and other commodities, which we all have to put up with in these times."

The President dwelt on Hoover for some time. He endeavored, while not saying so directly to get over the point that his Republican predecessor was attempting to make political capital out of the war privations.

Roosevelt was in fighting trim all through the conference. The first thing he told the farm group spokesmen was that he was disappointed about the "disunity" in farm ranks over price subsidies. Subsidies, he said, were necessary both to prevent inflation and to boost the production of vital farm crops.

"I'm willing to give and take, Mr. President," said James Patton president of the National Farmers Union, "but I won't stop arguing on fundamentals. I want to raise my small voice for about four million small farmers who need more than higher prices to keep them alive. They also need greater financial assistance from the Government.

Farm income has reached an all-time high," Patton continued, "but this hasn't helped the little farmer very much. All the profits are going to the big farmer. He can afford to operate on a volume basis in dealing with distributors and processors."

Roosevelt agreed that the Government would have to render greater aid to the small farmer.

President Surprised

The President got something of a surprise from other farm leaders at their general approval of the price-subsidy program. He has been trying to sell this to the Congressional farm bloc for months, without success. The farm leaders now call subsidies by another name, "price support," but the White House is not quibbling over names.

Regardless of the name, all the farm spokesmen agreed that Federal price-support subsidies are needed to insure a bumper farm crop next year. Even Ed O'Neal, president of the Farm Bureau Federation, one of the strongest opponents of subsidies, concurred.

O'Neal admitted that such a program would help to head off inflation, but he caused the President almost keel out of his chair by protesting against the American Farm Bureau's number one battle hymn—higher farm prices.

The Farm Bureau president declared that if prices went too high that might react against the farmer after the war when prices might fall from high wartime peaks.

Note—Albert Goss, master of the National Grange, made it clear that while he would go along, he favors price-support subsidies on a selective basis, for certain crops, not for all crops on a general basis.

Plan for Postwar Labor Peace Asked

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—Ralph A. Bard, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, in an address prepared for the ninth annual convention of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, recommended today establishment of a management-labor postwar planning organization to avoid labor strife after the war ends.

He said that after peace is attained the American people are not "likely to stand idly by in unconcern if the war on the battlefields is immediately succeeded by a domestic conflict between warring groups at home."

Newsprint Plea Of Tribune Hit By Chicago Sun

By the Associated Press

The Chicago Sun, in a brief filed yesterday with the War Production Board, charged the Chicago Tribune with attempting "to perpetrate a fraud" on WPB in connection with newsprint allocations—an accusation promptly denied by the Tribune at a hearing before the WPB.

The Sun's brief was submitted in reply to the Tribune's supplemental appeal September 14 for additional newsprint for the third quarter. The Sun asserted the Tribune's purpose "was not to get more newsprint, but an attempt to put the Sun in a straitjacket" by setting up a formula for determining allocations to Chicago newspapers.

E. M. Antrim, the Tribune's assistant business manager, declared the Sun was "the only paper in the country asking for newsprint tonnage based on the amount used."

"It is only fair and proper for them to have a definite base in accordance with their circulation at a given period, the same as any other newspaper," Antrim said.

Leo F. Tierney, the Sun's lawyer, replied that the Sun was founded December 4, 1941, and that it would be unfair to take its circulation in its first year of operation against a strong competitor as the base period. The Tribune had suggested 1942 as the proper base circulation period for the Sun.

MORE for LESS

Those "three little words" express the reason in no uncertain terms. Chambers furnishes fine funerals at prices as low or lower than any undertaker in the world. Chambers supplied these funerals for less, long before the O.P.A. was born. Now that prices are being forced down at the factory, Chambers can keep step with them and continue to offer MORE for LESS, because Chambers, we believe, has the largest stock of caskets of any undertaker in the world.

This Beautiful Casket and 60 Services
